Blowing snow veils the carnage of Canada's worst traffic accident near Barrie Sunday evening. Rescue workers believe 15 persons were killed when a lumber truck, then a bus, plowed into a lineup of about 30 cars.

15 Die in Ont. Pile-Up

Times News Services

BARRIE, Ont. — A lumber truck, a bus and about 30 cars collided during a blinding snowstorm Sunday evening, killing at least 15 persons and crumpling the cars like pieces of tin which turned into flaming coffins.

Only nine bodies had been recovered from the wreckage by this morning as searchers continued to pull apart the mangled remains of Canada's worst traffic accident.

A doctor who walked through twisted metal at the scene said it might be days before an accurate death count was established among the debris.

Witnesses said visibility was almost zero as blowing snow and drifts swept across six-lane Route 400, about 50 miles north of Toronto.

David Fetter, a lumber worker from Ayr, Ont., said, "I came along a few minutes later. It was terrible, terrible. An awful mess. There must have been 25 to 30 cars, the truck and the bus.

"Bodies were in the road. The truck was on fire and a whole bunch of cars were beneath it. At least five or six cars were on fire."

"There were quite a few injured standing by the side of the road," he said. "They appeared to have broken arms, broken legs and cuts. People were stopping to give first aid."

Another witness said one car trapped under the rear wheels of the truck was flattened to a height of 10 inches.

Early today, police were still uncertain how the accident happened or how many more bodies they expect to find.

Police and eyewitnesses believe the tragedy started with a minor accident in the southbound lanes of Highway 400, about six miles south of Barrie.

LIKE AN ACCORDION

Cars started backing up from the accident and then a tractor-trailer loaded with lumber smacked into the cars, crushing them together like an accordion.

The truck jack-knifed and sent its load of two-by-fours on to the top of the cars — how many it was not made clear.

Police said the lumber and truck caught fire and soon gas tanks started to explode. People in the cars were trapped.

Shortly after, an Ontario Northland bus, en route to Toronto from Timmins, slammed into the wreckage. Bars had to be used to free the bus driver and many of the 22 passengers had to kick out bus windows to escape.

Survivors at the scene told of incredible terror and piercing screams.

One woman had to be hauled from a car by the hair. Seconds after she was clear, a gas tank exploded.

Police said the combination of an icy road and a sudden burst of blinding snow led to the pile-up. There was no indication of excess speed, they said.

Cpl. Ed Kelso of the provincial police narrowly missed joining the crash in his patrol car and described the scene:

SCREAMS

"Flames were shooting into the sky. I heard people screaming from the cars under the lumber: "Help . . . Get me out . . . I'm burning."

Hours after the accident, smoke from the burning wood could be smelled a mile down wind and the flames could be seen for two miles.

Snow drifted over some of the cars. Broken skiis and women's purses littered the highway.

Paul Kneeshaw, a tow-truck driver from a nearby service station, said there were cars in the pile-up that didn't even look like cars any more.

Ranch Sales Curbed

In future no major ranch in B.C. will be sold to non-Canadians, and at the time of any such sale the various leases and permits will be subject to review, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

In such cases, large areas of land will revert back to the crown, if the review indicates that is necessary for wildlife and recreation needs, Williams said.

He was commenting on allegations last week by a regional wildlife biologist that absentee American owners of the Gang Ranch in the Cariboo are responsible for serious mis-management of Crown land.

OVER-GRAZED

The biologist, Harold Matchell, claimed that the Gang Ranch, the largest ranch in North America with more than one million acres under its control, had been overgrazing its land for at least 14 years.

As a result, he said, cattle graze up through the 8,000-foot level of the Coast Mountains and are destroying delicate alpine areas. In the process they compete for grazing with the rare California big horn sheep and threaten its survival.

Mitchell also accused cowboys on the Gang Ranch of slaughtering bears, including grizzlies, on the pretext of protecting cattle. (See other story on Page 18).

Williams told reporters today the fish and wildlife branch is aware that Gang Ranch has been up for sale, and a policy has already been established concerning that.

"We have made it abundantly clear to our staff, and they in turn have advised owners or potential buyers that we would not accept the idea of the ranch being sold to non-nationals, to non-resident people from outside Canada," Williams said.

REVIEW

He said it has also been made clear that the various leases and permits held by the present owners would be subject to review at the time of any sale, "and that the Crown would require the reversion of significant portions of the ranch that we would want for the exclusive preservation of wildlife and recreation."

The policy would apply to the sale of all other major ranches in B.C., he added.

Asked if the provincial government had an intention of taking over direct control of Gang Ranch, the minister replied: "None whatsoever."

The ranch headquarters are located about 60 miles southwest of Williams Lake in the Interior. It's territory includes 47,600 acres of deeded land, 16,732 acres of leased land and 821,000 acres of Crown Land under grazing permits.

Saigon Threat To Use Force

Times News Services

SAIGON — The South Vietnamese military command threatened today to launch military operations in the next few days to relieve two of its bases north of Saigon if the International Commission of Control and Supervision does not investigate alleged ceasefire violations.

The command claims Communist troops have laid siege to the bases 25 and 63 miles north of the South Vietnamese capital.

Members of the ICCS, where unanimous agreement is required, could not agree to a Canadian proposal to ask all parties in the Vietnam conflict to end the fighting.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said his ICCS delegation wanted to send 31 South Vietnamese government allegations of ceasefire violations to the four-party Joint Military Commission "with an appeal to the parties" to cease hostilities.

"But we couldn't get agreement on this," he said. "Finally, we got agreement on nothing."

In Washington meanwhile, United States intelligence sources report that military equipment has continued to flow from North Vietnam since President Nixon warned Hanoi to stop infiltrating South Vietnam.

"It's still going on," one source said. He indicated Sunday there has been no measurable slowdown of such movements in the wake of Nixon's statement last Thursday that the North Vietnamese "should not lightly disregard" U.S. expressions of concern.

Intelligence analysist estimate that the North Vietnamese have sent between 400 and 450 armored vehicles, including tanks, into South Vietnam in the less than two months since the Vietnam ceasefire.

Intelligence specialists say some of the new tanks reported in South Vietnam since the ceasefire came down from southern China, where they were stockpiled until the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam was halted.

Sharp Returns, Decision Soon

Times News Services

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp flew back from Vietnam today and said he will make a decision "very quickly" on the future of Canadian ceasefire observer operations.

He told reporters minutes after landing at nearby Uplands airport he has not quite made up his mind on the issue and refused to indicate what recommendations he will make to the cabinet.

Earlier in Hanoi, Sharp told newsmen: "It's not just a simple question of whether we stay or don't stay. There are many possible variations."

The remark seemed to indicate that the minister will be working with his advisers over the possibility of another limited or conditional commitment to the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — A least 34 miners were killed Sunday night in a series of underground explosions in a colliery in the northeast Indian state of Bihar.

Storm Rips Great Lake Regions

Times News Services

Floods forced thousands from their homes, gales ripped ships from their moorings and blizzards blocked roads and rescue efforts in Southern Ontario over the weekend.

In the United States, high winds and snowstorms also brought devastation to the Great Lakes and Eastern states, while torrential rains in eight southern states killed seven persons, caused mass evacuations and sent damage estimates past $75 million.

The Ontario storm began Friday afternoon with winds up to 50 miles an hour, accompanied by rain and freezing rain, followed by snow.

Gigantic waves on Lake St. Clair and Lakes Erie, Huron and Ontario flooded waterfront homes and washed away great chunks of shoreline.

In the Windsor area, the Essex Country Emergency Measures Organization estimated between 2,500 and 3,0000 persons were at least temporarily forced from their homes.

Throughout southern Ontario, snowdrifts or flood water blocked highways which were dotted with abandoned cars.

Almost two feet of snow fell in Owen Sound. Roaring winds knocked down trees and ripped 11 ships from their winter moorings in Goderich harbor on Lake Huron.

Before they were corralled two of the drifting vessels smashed into the still-moored grain carrier Patterson, causing extensive damage.

At Ipperwash Beach, 35 miles northwest of London, a variety store, a tourist lodge and two cottages slid into Lake Huron.

At least 2,000 acres of farmland and several homes were flooded in Tilbury East township, 17 miles west of Chatham, when water broke through a 50-foot section of dike.

The department of national defence was asked to send helicopters today to drop crushed car bodies and other material to plug the gap.

As the weather began to clear and the intensive cleanup began today, damage estimates from the floods and the snowstorm soared into the millions.

Power and natural gas services were cut off in flooded areas. But just outside Belle River one house was reported to have blown up in flames when the gas line ruptured.

Stalemate At Priory

Three nuns holding out in the kitchen of St. Mary's Priory will not be allowed to jeopardize the purposes of the Society of the Love of Jesus in its care for the sick and aged.

This was the essence of a statement today by Sister Leonette Hoesing, mother prioress of the Colwood institution operating an extended care hospital and St. Anthony's boarding home on Goldstream Avenue.

The three sisters of the old society, who have lived in the priory for 25-35 years, have refused to budge since Thursday. Each faction in the dispute has its own security guards.

The three — Sister Mary Agnes Eaton, Sister Mary Lucy Ford and Sister Mary Josephine Donovan — have been told by Sister Leonette to vacate the building, which is being closed.

They said they had been threatened by eviction, but up until noon there was no sign of a court order.

In her first statement on the dispute, Sister Leonette said:

"The lawful authorized officers of the society have determined that three 'dissident' sisters will not be allowed to jeopardize the purposes of the society in the care of the aged and infirm.

"Since these sisters have refused all offers made to them, they are therefore the authors of their own painful situation."

A meeting of the society would be held soon, she said. It requires two weeks' notice.

Asked what the meeting would accomplish to alleviate the situation in which the three say they will hold out until ordered by law to leave, Sister Leonette said she hoped "some provision might be made so that each sister of the society could be provided for."

The dispute goes back several years and Leonette said for eight years efforts had been made to solve the "painful situation.

"We've tried to settle it to the welfare of each and re-

U.S. DOLLAR STRONGER

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Major money markets reopened today for the first time in 17 days and the U.S. dollar, helped by monetary reforms, displayed early strength. But bankers and dealers agreed with the warning by one French dealer that "this should not be interpreted as a new faith in the dollar."

They said one key to the quiet, stable trading was the apparent decision by speculators, who caused earlier runs on the dollar, to size up the new situation before making their move.

The money markets closed March 2 in the wake of the Feb. 1 devaluation of the dollar by 10 per cent and the subsequent speculative turmoil that dropped the dollar's value still further.

Since then, leading financial nations constructed a new if temporary — monetary system which scrapped the old system of fixed exchange rates and relied instead on floating rates.

With the official reopening of money markets, central banks regained the right to intervene if the major currencies should float too far from each other. But there was no sign of intervention today.

In London, the dollar opened officially at $2.4655 to the pound — up a cent and a half on last Friday's unofficial rate, then dropped back by about one cent. In Tokyo, the dollar opened at 260 yen, then gained strength to 264.

Other capitals told a similar story. In Paris, the dollar opened at 4.5300 francs and strengthened to 4.5350. In Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Zurich and Brussels, it was well up on its Friday closing figure.

Plane Explodes Killing 59

SAIGON (Reuter) — Government officials flew to the town of Ban Me Thuot today to investigate the crash today of an Air Vietnam DC-4 with 59 passengers and crew aboard.

Police officials reached by telephone in Ban Me Thuot said the four-engine propeller aircraft exploded as it made an emergency landing after an engine caught fire.

Airport sources in Saigon said an investigation is under way to determine whether the plane was hit by ground fire.

Pipeline Test Speeded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court today granted a federal government request to speed its consideration of a lower-court ruling that blocked construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The supreme court agreed without comment that the schedule for filing papers in the case be accelerated. Left undecided for the time being was the second step of the government request which asked the court to hear and decide the case this term.

Normally, a petition for review brought to the supreme court at this point in the term would be heard next fall or winter if accepted by the court. The government asked that the case be heard in mid-May and decided before the term ends, probably in June.

The federal government, the state of Alaska and a consortium of oil companies are challenging the decision of the U.S. Circuit Court here which blocked construction of the pipeline because a wider right-of-way over public land would be required than is allowed by federal law.

The circuit court did not address the larger question of whether the environmental impact statement prepared by the interior department in issuing a permit to build the pipeline from Alaska's North Slope satisfied the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

The supreme court has been asked to decide this question as well as the right-of-way issue.

Doctors Favor Fee Pact

British Columbia doctors have voted in favor of a new agreement with the provincial government covering fees and other matters, the B.C. Medical Association announced today.

The doctors were 83.6 per cent in favor of the new agreement.

The over-all increase in funds available through medicare is 6.7 per cent but the increase in individual fees for the variety of doctors services vary. It amounts to an average 5 per cent increase in income.

The association said that for the first time the agreement includes a personal medical education fund to assist doctors in keeping abreast of latest developments in medical care.

"Doctors will be able to draw on this fund which will be an amount related to each doctor's medicare earnings each year to help defray the heavy costs of medical education," said BCMA president Dr. D. M. Backop.

"We view this fund as an essential factor in ensuring that we maintain the high level of health care now available in B.C."

Final approval of the education fund as well as a disability insurance program is dependent on acceptable arrangements being worked out between the profession and the government, he said.

$50,000 HEART RANSOM

MONTREAL (CP) — A $50,000-ransom has been demanded for the return of Brother Andre's glass-encased heart, one of the most prized relics at St. Joseph's Oratory. It was reported stolen Friday night.

Police said Sunday an unidentified man had called Father Marcel Lalonde, the priest in charge of the oratory, and told him he had masterminded the theft and wanted $50,000 for the return of the relic.

Police said Father Lalonde had informed them he was ready to negotiate for the safe return of the relic but did not mention any amount.

High School Accredited

DUNCAN — Complete four-year accreditation has been awarded Cowichan Senior Secondary School.

The accreditation, granted by the department of education after an intense 16-month examination of the school by the teaching staff, the district superintendent and the department, extends to June 1976.

It means the school can recommend up to 60 per cent of its students pass their courses without writing final exams, and allows the staff to develop their own courses, subject to department approval.

Ship Pilots May Again Strike

Times News Services

B.C. pilots are on the verge of striking for the second time in less than a month.

Capt. Alex MacKinnon, president of the B.C. Coastal Coast Pilots Association, is in Ottawa attempting to see Transport Minister Jean Marchand and other officials to break a deadlock in negotiations.

The pilots withdrew their services for three days last month but went back to work Feb. 20 after the B.C. Pilotage authority granted waivers to allow some shipping to move within B.C. waters without a pilot.

British Columbia is classified as a compulsory pilotage district, meaning that all foreign ships entering B.C. waters must have pilots.

MacKinnon and Captain Bob Cook of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild said there could be a strike in "the very near future" if the pilots do not get satisfaction in their talks.

After the earlier walkout ended, talks were resumed with the authority, but Cook said there was no progress. He said the men voted during the weekend for strike action.

The pilots are demanding an increase of 12 per cent in the tariff paid for guiding ships into port. The pilotage authority has offered five per cent.

The tariffs are based on the size of the ships and the distance they travel in B.C. waters.

Cook said the pilots average about $26,000 a year.

He said the trouble with the negotiations is that the authority cannot offer any more than a five-per-cent increase under present government guidelines.

MacKinnon now is in Ottawa seeking a change in the guidelines.

Smugglers Caught

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian authorities have arrested 65 persons accused of a smuggling operation that cheated the Egyptian government of more than $16 million worth of foreign exchange, says the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram.

The paper says foreign oil companies were a major arena of activity for the ring, and those implicated included Americans, West Germans, Jews, Italians, French, Greeks and Lebanese as well as Egyptians. The oil companies named were Amoco, Offshore, Santafe and Tidex.

The operations, called by the government the "biggest illegal currency transaction operation in Egyptian history," took place during a four-year period, says Al Ahram.

... PRIORY DISPUTE

peatedly tried to hold meetings and they refuse."

There was no intention to be hard on the three, she said.

Present for the statement was Mgr. Michael O'Connell, of the Bishop of Victoria office, who agreed that "every effort had been made within the community to reconcile" matters. He said Bishop Remi de Roo is out of town and was expected to make a statement on his return.

Leonette said that because the society is running a business, it was impossible to carry out decisions because there had been no meetings of the two factions in the past two years.

Of the security guard, she said they were hired because it was thought the building was going to be empty and she did not want it to suffer from vandalism: "I didn't know all this was going to happen."

Two and a half years ago she said an offer had been made to the three to buy a home "where they could live peacefully with sufficient funds to maintain themselves." It was refused.

"I have no ill feeling," she said. Saying more is like adding to a bonfire. It's like a family and three people can't overrule. I can't judge them — what's in their minds."

SISTER LEONETTE

Starting Sunday, there were green uniforms upstairs and brown uniforms downstairs at St. Mary's Priory — security guards for each of the feuding factions.

The three nuns spent Saturday and Sunday nights in sleeping bags on mattresses on a the floor of a downstairs dining room.

A wing with washrooms and bedrooms upstairs had been unlocked for them by the upstairs guards Saturday evening.

"We were afraid to go up. We were afraid they'd lock us in the bedrooms," Sister Mary Agnes said Sunday.

Saturday, after being invited to use the downstairs kitchen to make themselves coffee, the dissident sisters found themselves locked from the rest of the house.

Saturday evening security guards for the three sisters arrived, headed by Bob Whyte of Cowichan Security and Investigations, based in Duncan and Nanaimo.

They were hired by Mother Mary Cecilia, 83, who founded the order, headed it for years and now operates an animal shelter at Mill Bay. Mother Cecilia was on hand in the well-stocked priory kitchen both Saturday and Sunday to support the sisters.

A door at the end of the wing above the kitchen now has been locked from both sides by the security men for each faction.

Sunday, Mother Cecilia said it is now "a case of whoever holds out the longest." Her security guards will continue on the job.

She said she understands there is "a great uprising in the cathedral" over the dispute.

The priory sit-in began Thursday morning when the trio returned from mass to find themselves locked out. They were able to get in through a rear entrance without being noticed by the security guards and have refused to budge since.

The two factions are disputing control of the society which lawyer Hugh McMillan, representing the three sisters, says has assets of about $1 million in property and $500,000 in securities.

The dispute has continued for close to a decade, with the dissident sisters losing one Supreme Court case which they are appealing.

A stalemate has developed because neither side can muster two-thirds of the membership which makes up a quorum under the society's constitution. For that reason, the last two annual meetings have not been held, McMillan said.

Sister Mary Agnes challenged Leonette's statement that "lawful officers" of the society were involved, and that of seven sisters comprising the group, five are on the "dissident" side.

There are both legal and religious appeals pending in the dispute.

Sister Agnes said the three had been threatened with cancellation of their vows, if they did not join the other side. "They can't take our vows; our vows are with God," she said.

Galbraith Returns

Service Friday For 'Nip' Parker

A memorial service for Basil "Nip" Parker — a man who personified the old-fashioned image of a good sport — will be held Friday at 3 p.m. at St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Saanichton.

A former senior master of St. George's School in Vancouver, Parker retired in Saanichton and organized the first European-style cross country race in the area to give all students a chance to particpate in sports.

He said at the time he had found too many students were left out of sports in schools. The Saanichton run, an annual event since 1968, has been termed "anybody's race."

Parker, 63, lived at Hovey Down Farm.

He was born in Kamloops, the son of a rancher, was later educated in England and graduated from Oxford University.

He returned to Canada, spent a number of years ranching in the Prairies, and became the first master at St. George's School, where he remained until 1962.

A veteran of the Second World War, Parker lost a leg while serving with the Seaforth Highlanders in Italy, but it didn't deter him from participating in sports. He played polo, tennis and cricket.

He moved to Vancouver Island in 1962 and taught at Glenlyon School until 1968.

Parker leaves his wife, Margot; mother, Isabel; son, Jonathan and a daughter, Mrs. Anthony Yonge, and four grandchildren.

The funeral service is being handled by First Memorial Services Ltd.

the weather

A large area of low pressure near the Queen Charlotte Islands is responsible for the unsettled weather that prevails across the province. The low is weakening and moving northward so a slow improving trend is idicated. Any improvement will be shortlived however as another storm is expected to reach the outer coast late Tuesday.

Cambodia Capital Sealed

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Phnom Penh was placed under an official state of seige and martial law today, with its foreign visitors and residents described as virtual prisoners, following a weekend of bloody violence that included the bombing of the presidential palace and the Communist shelling of a capital suburb.

U.S. embassy officers expressed "grave concern" over one tough new security measure imposed by President Lon Nol that bars the department of all travellers, including tourists, from the country.

The only flight out of the capital today was held up as diplomats argued with airport authorities who refused to let them aboard.

The U.S. embassy and other foreign installations alerted their citizens that Phnom Penh was virtually surrounded by Communist troops and warned more attacks could come.

New crackdowns included an extended curfew and a halt of all press operations by non-government printing plants.

ROADBLOCK GUARD at Wounded Knee sits comfortably in grocery cart, gun in hand, as Indians in the occupied South Dakota settlement draw up a "final ultimatum" to the United States government after all but rejecting latest government peace proposals.

Pet Owners Fight Notice

Dog and cat owners living in a Saanich townhouse development are fighting threatened eviction at the end of June with a petition asking for B.C. government intervention.

Half the residents of the 120-unit North Gordon Head apartments are affectted by an ultimatum from the owners to get rid of their pets or get out, resident Mrs. Delphine Lucas of 3989 Panther said today.

"There are 120 tenants in here that deserve some consideration," said Mrs. Lucas.

"That's one of the conditions that we moved in here, because we could keep dogs," she said.

The townhouse property was bought last summer by Edgecombe Properties, a wholly-owned subsidary of Toronto's North American Life Assurance Co.

After receiving complaints from residents without pets of lack of supervision of dogs and cats, the owners last fall asked pet owners to post bonds for the animals, $50 for the first pet and $25 for any others.

The attorney-general's department ruled the bonds were a form of security deposit, and therefore illegal.

On Feb. 28 all residents received a note saying keeping of pets would be prohibited, and giving them 60 days to obey. After complaints to the company's head office, this was extended till the end of the school year.

Property manager Ray Martin said the problem is really with big dogs which have been ruining the property around the townhouses, not small house pets.

He denied charges of some residents that he and assistant manager Roger Proulx harassed children in the development, chasing them off the playground area.

"I enjoy a good relationship with the children here," he said.

Besides preparing the petition, the cat and dog owners have written Saanich MLA Hugh Curtis and Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace.

Child Dental Care Studied

The provincial government is considering a program of free preventive dental care for children as part of an eventual denticare plan to cover all residents of the province.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Sunday the first step being considered under the plan is to provide free checkups, cleaning, polishing and x-rays of teeth for children under 12 years old.

Such a proposal is being prepared by members of his staff in co-operation with the B.C. College of Dental Surgeons, he said, and will not be presented to the cabinet for approval before the end of 1973.

He denied earlier reports that the program could be made effective in a matter of months, saying there are several reports on the subject still being prepared and that the government won't act on the plan until it has received all the input it wants.

Cocke said it is government policy to get into the preventive dental field. The logical first step is to treat young children, he said.

For the first year of operation of the under-12 preventive program, Cocke said the government would likely have to pay out about $20 million. The cost per year would decrease slightly in following years, he said.

The minister said it has not been finally determined at what age the free preventive work will be cut off. He said the government may have to phase in coverage under the plan through a number of age groups before 12-year-olds are covered.

Cocke said he has received reports on preventive dental care from his own staff and from Dr. Richard Foulkes, who is conducting a year long study of health facilities in the province. A report is expected shortly from the College of Dental Surgeons.

Cocke said the reports he has received "indicate the feasibility of a preventive program within the next couple of years."

He said he won't seek cabinet approval for the scheme until he has a "good solid presentation" to make, adding that this will not be ready at least until the end of 1973.

Cocke acknowledged that provision by the government of full dental work for all B.C. residents is a provincial NDP policy. But he said that kind of coverage is still a considerable distance from reality.

Before full denticare can be made effective, cost estimates and provision of adequate dental staff will have to be worked out, he said.

Dental work other than that covered by the program will continue to be the responsibility of the child's parent, Cocke said. This will include the filling of cavities.

The health minister said the preventive work for children will be carried out in a variety of different establishments.

His department visualizes mobile units for rural areas, he said, and more permanent establishments like school clinics in populated areas.

An Umbrella for Ocean Falls

British Columbia's NDP government has thrown another scare into the people, hard on the heels of its two earlier controversial projects: entry into the automobile insurance business and a wide ranging system of land reservation to preserve farmland, green belts and other socially-oriented categories.

Purchase of the almost abandoned town of Ocean Falls and the pulp and paper industry that was its reason for existence will not be, Resources Minister Williams admits, a profitable venture. But it will be a viable one, he says, because of the present high selling price of newsprint, a major product of the plant. That sounds as though what he means is that the inevitable subsidy from provincial tax revenues will not be very high — at first. But if the price of newsprint should go down, or, more likely, if the cost of producing it should go up — and at Ocean Falls the plant is admitttedly "undersize and inefficient"—then the suspicion is that the subsidy could escalate rapidly.

At present only a handful of residents and employees remain at Ocean Falls, since it was scheduled to close down permanently within a few days. But if the government's restoration of operations results in 1,000 or more persons returning to the site, there will then be a built-in reason for continuing to keep the town in operation at any cost. The argument will be obvious: "We can't afford to put all those people out of jobs." No government would be likely to try it.

Ocean Falls, then, appears set to become a permanent charge on the public funds, and the main question emerges as one of whether keeping the town alive will be worth the cost. Could the money have been better expended in some other venture without so many disadvantages?

If present vague plans to add to the town's industrial base were to prove viable, or even profitable, the community might have a reasonable future. But the location—a long haul for raw materials and a long way from markets — will seriously limit the possibilities in this line. The climate, with its 195 inches of rain a year, would discourage establishment of a resort, retirement centre, or educational complex, as suggested by Mr. Williams. Use as a centre for drug addicts could prove incompatible with an industrial future.

This is not to say that some profitable or productive use cannot be found for Ocean Falls. But it is to say that the government has entered upon a major socialist experiment which has far too many ifs and buts to deserve designation as a plan or a program. The town, plant and power dam, a multi-million dollar property, have been bought for $1 million. It is optimistic to think of this as more than a down-payment. If the government is going to fight economic reality, it may be a long struggle. Meanwhile, the public, with varying degrees of anxiety, will be mulling over two questions. What now? And what next?

Warts on the Island's Nose

Hugh Curtis, Saanich mayor and Conservative MLA for Saanich and the Islands, has revived an issue troubling many Vancouver Islanders with an appreciation for the diminishing beauty of lands bordering main highways. He calls for government consideration of means by which less attractive developments along such routes should be screened from the passing motorists' view. Such screens — presumably belts of trees — would eliminate the visual pollution of unattractive commercial installations ranging northward beyond the Malahat.

The so-called Island of Enchantment becomes less than enchanting to the motorist whose eye is offended by unsightly piles of construction supplies, ugly structures and what appear to be junk assemblies.

Highways Minister Robert Strachan, agreeing that despoliation is occurring in some areas, says that government action to curb it would "interfere with the rights of property owners" — a complaint lodged by opposition members in some instances.

But there should be a point of compromise at which public and private rights can both be served.

Dogs and Cities

Mr. Alex McGinn, general manager of the Society for Animals in Distress in Toronto, predicts that dogs will be banned from urban centres, probably within 10 years, because of sanitation problems.

It is scarcely likely that Mr. McGinn would hold the office he does if he were hostile to dogs. But even from their friends comes an inevitable warning. Dogs and clean urban sidewalks are incompatible, a fact for which the experiences of London and New York provide unimpeachable evidence.

In Victoria, where homeowners are generally proud of their lawns and gardens, as well as their public beaches, the force of the McGinn prediction is multiplied.

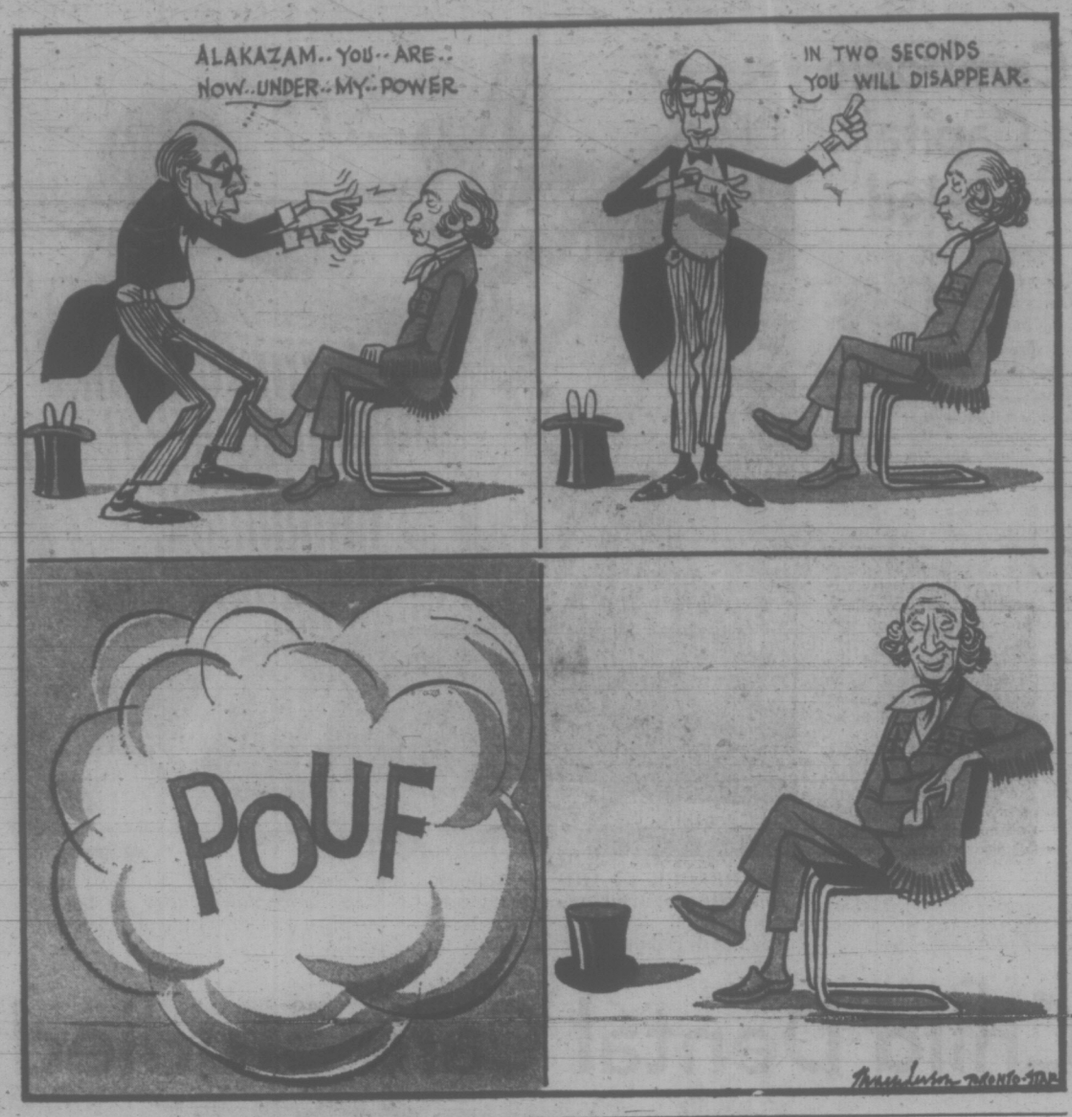
Conceivably some alternative to elimination of dogs in cities may be evolved — but not as long as owners walk their canine pets, with due regard to the animals' healthy purging, on public property, or on the private property of someone else.

What's New?

Science has apparently brought the Canadian postal service to its own confessional. A recently devised tiny radio transmitter that can be mailed in an envelope like an ordinary letter emits signals providing a continuing trace of its progress.

Hence the confession: "We know that our service wasn't what it should be, but we were perhaps inclined to blame it on weather conditions and inability of airlines to fly from point to point, thereby delaying our mail. What we have found instead was that the weather was a very minimal factor . . . Failure within our own processing system made by far the majority of our breakdowns."

Confession, they say, is good for the soul. But will it do anything to speed the Canadian mail?



MAURICE WESTERN

'An Outright, Subsidized Lie'

OTTAWA — The New Democrats have reacted with characteristic, 98 per cent shock to the revelation by Robert Andras that a disturbingly high proportion of persons on the unemployment insurance rolls in Toronto-Hamilton have been found ineligible for benefits.

Mr. Lewis and his colleagues, after much heart-searching, have now persuaded themselves that there is a certain incidence of sin in the Canadian labor force. Either through revelation or the selective study of statistics, they have come to the view that the cheaters and chisellers comprise exactly 2 per cent of the force; a pleasantly reasurring figure which now surfaces with monotonous regularity in NDP speeches.

Any research which points to a higher percentage is to be deplored and ought not to be mentioned in ministerial statements. As noted by John Rodriquez, an NDP spokesman, it "will merely feed the reactionary thinking of people across this country."

The non-reactionary thought of the New Democrats is reminiscent of Montaigne's early 17th century view of the noble savage; naturally good until corrupted by outside influences. While sin flourishes in various social groups, the labor force remains pure (or at least 98 per cent incorruptible) and that should be the end of the matter. While there is, no doubt, a good deal of political appeal to the theory, it is not the only one deserving of consideration in present circumstances.

Alternative View

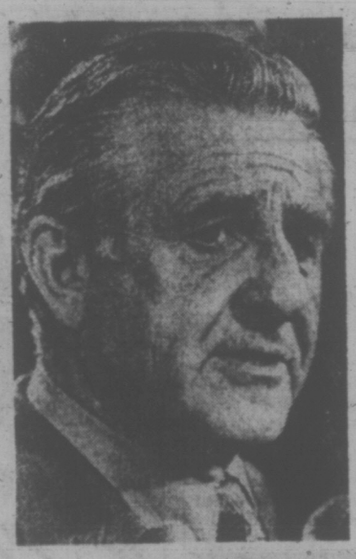
An alternative view is that our public morality, at the best of times, was of the common or garden variety. But the modern state, to which socialists have made a notable contribution, has a considerable and day-to-day impact on all sections of society. If public morality has deteriorated, continues to deteriorate and probably will go on deteriorating, due credit should be accorded the example, as distinct from the preaching, of government.

It may be of limited consolation to our sensitive politicians that the same trend has been observed elsewhere. The manner in which government has contributed and goes on contributing to citizen delinquency may be illustrated by a few well-known examples.

First, there is government-induced inflation; a form of concealed taxation or confiscation. By debasing the currency, government robs people of their savings. Any citizen who takes the government for his model is on a slippery moral slope.

Inflation has another effect. It encourages social groups to conform to the laws of the jungle in their efforts to survive. In Britain the phenomenon was described in the famous phrase, "I'm all right, Jack." Socialists were once opposed to the laws of the jungle but that was before the great unions discovered the virtues of inflation and the moral turpitude represented by controls.

Secondly, there is the tax system which has become a game of wits with all the advantages on the Government's side. Our money is seized before payment is due, with no allowance for interest.



DAVID LEWIS
. . . exactly two per cent

The system has become so complex that great numbers of anxious citizens feel forced to pay tribute to tax firms in order, as they hope, to protect themselves. They are, of course, exhorted to seek toll-free aid from the department of national revenue but the responsible minister, on Wednesday, declined an invitation from Peter Bawden to say that the department would stand behind such advice.

In a special, 1973 contribution to public morality, the government is currently spending millions of the taxpayers' money, not to provide us with information — which might be legitimate — but to brainwash us into the belief that it is easier than we think. It is beyond doubt that many citizens regard this as an outright, subsidized lie.

Thirdly, we have the politics of the public trough which various parties deplore but none with much conviction. Even those with only a casual interest in politics are uneasily aware that the government, through ever-more ingenious programs, makes available countless millions to the more-or-less deserving at the expense of the many; sometimes for outlandish, often for marginally useful projects. What does this do for public attitudes? Are you missing out on goodies? Write a clever application. Come and get it.

Fourthly, the government, which initiates the law-making process, observes the law in selective fashion. In the exercise of this sort of discretion, it receives invaluable advice from corner-cutting mandarins and the weathervane lawyers to whom it turns for advice. Admittedly, it stumbles on occasion. Thus certain farmers, not so long ago, took the government to court and forced it to make lawful payments under the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act. But the government, quite often, has its way with the law.

Why the Horror?

Although the field is rich, these few examples will suffice for the moment. Why then do NDP members recoil in incredulous horror at indications that we have fallen by more than a permissible 2 per cent below our former state of noble savagery?

The government, in its wisdom, required us all to contribute to a system of unprecedented generosity — said, indeed, to be the finest yet devised by the mind of man, and manifestly open to widescale abuse. On the evidence of the latest data, many persons apparently regarded their contributions as money in the bank or perhaps as tax overpayments on which refunds were to be expected. They seem to have engaged with some zest in the game of wits with officials. It has become tragically necessary to cut off young men from maternity benefits and to disqualify others who had arranged for payments to be mailed to them at the Banff Springs Hotel.

Mr. Rodriquez feels that it was wrong of the minister to mention the Banff Springs case; it might feed reactionary fires; that is to say, annoy people who work for a living. It is wrong at any time to suggest that more than 2 per cent of us are corruptible. With a bit of effort an MP can work up a head of indignation about almost anything. It may, nevertheless, appear to many people that the NDP members on this occasion have clearly excelled themselves. Truth is wonderful, except when it clashes with the NDP's authorized version. In that case, away with it.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

New Day Dawning Has Risks

BONN — The policy of encouraging East-West detente in Europe is beginning to have a dangerous by-product. It is producing seedlings of neutralism in West Germany.

Weaning Germany away from the West has long been presumed to be a major Soviet purpose. Since West Germany joined NATO in large part for protection from the Soviet menace, Moscow has presumed that Bonn's interest in alliance with the West would fade if the menace declined. And the Kremlin may be right.

The appearance of a Soviet menace in Europe is fading. Whether the fact has changed is a matter of dispute but there can be no doubt that the perception of it has.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt has contributed to this change. His Ostpolitik (Eastern policy) has sought to ease fear and antagonism across the iron curtain — and it has had much success.

Initial Resistance

Many West Germans initially resisted Brandt's opening to the East. It was traumatic to be told that assumptions on which they had acted for more than 20 years — that the East was the enemy, the West the indispensable friend—were no longer wholly valid.

Once having been told this, however, and having become convicted of it, they began re-examining the inevitability of alignment with the West. The pendulum having been given a push, it started swinging toward the opposite extreme.

Brandt does not encourage this process, nor does he welcome it. On the contrary he is trying to keep it under control. The Ostpolitik has specific objectives and they do not at this stage include a weakening of ties to the West.

But Brandt may not be able fully to control what he and the Soviets (for different reasons) have begun. To date, the process is under control, but there are signs that it might get out of hand.

A Westerner took part recently in a grass-roots discussion group in a provincial German city. The principal participants were West Germans of good education and considerable influence in the local community — a kind of Foreign Affairs Council.

A Russian diplomat, invited for the occasion, spoke first. He pointed to progress toward easing of East-West tensions, referred to the cold war as something of the past, welcomed the non-agression treaties which Bonn has signed with the East, and said there no longer was need for military blocs like the Warsaw Pact and NATO.

WILLY BRANDT
. . . eased fear

The audience largely bought this line. They could not see why the West needed to keep up a military guard. They agreed the menace from the East had largely faded, and thought American occupying forces could safely and usefully be withdrawn from West Germany.

When the Westerner got his chance to reply, he argued as forcefully as he could that unilateral American troop withdrawals, much less a dissolution of NATO, would risk reviving the very menace whose "disappearance" the group was welcoming.

He pointed to efforts now under way in Vienna to explore mutual troop withdrawals from each side of the iron curtain, and pleaded against the voluntary sacrifice of Western bargaining power.

The argument had some effect, but the group broke up still deeply influenced by a feeling that a new day had dawned and that rival military postures were therefore an anachronism.

It is, of course, always possible that a new day is in fact dawning and that the West Germans in this group had an accurate feel for the event. The Soviet Union has impelling reasons to seek a genuine detente with the West.

But if detente is indeed to be genuine and lasting, a number of things are going to have to happen which are not yet in the cards. There will have to be an easing of Moscow's grip on Eastern Europe; a verified disengagement of forces along the iron curtain — the verification to include inspection teams; and a new and more humane face on Communism, its extremes of repression having been eased.

'Don't Push Us'

Of this there is not yet a persuasive sign. On the contrary, Soviet diplomats in Vienna and Helsinki (where East-West negotiations for a new face of Europe are also in a preliminary stage) say to Western opposite numbers: "Don't push us into accepting more than our system can sustain."

They do not want to open the door to Western ideas, Western publications or freer Western travel. Nor do they want to let their own people have the right to emigrate, to write and talk more freely or to enjoy normal international intercourse. "Even Peter the Great could not have done that," they remark.

Until the Kremlin does dare to ease some of the psychological and physical barriers which have partitioned Europe, it will be risky to behave as if a new day had already dawned. In so doing the West could lose control over the process of shaping that new day.

Editorial Correspondence

Recreation Centre

On Monday the Oak Bay Council will presumably make up their minds whether to build and operate a recreation centre with or without a referendum. The large vote in favor of building without a referendum, at last Thursday's meeting in the Oak Bay Junior High School, may be decisive for them.

May I say that I approve in principle an Oak Bay recreation centre. I have four grandchildren in Saanich for whom the centre will be most convenient. I do not approve however that this $2,000,000 project should be rushed through without a money by-law and fuller details.

How can the sports fans who crowded the Oak Bay Junior High meeting urge building without a referendum when they have only a misleading printed Council memo on building and operating costs?

Or don't they care about costs? And why are they opposed to a referendum? Surely a referendum and money bylaw constitute the proper democratic procedure.

If they are afraid of owner-electors turning the rec centre down (I personally do not fear this) it means they would have everybody pay for their centre whether a majority want it or not . . . which is not very sportsmanlike.

I would rather my grandchildren never learned to skate or swim if they can do so only by what is very near sharp practice on the owner-electors. My integrity is more important than their recreations. — Harry Gregson, 2160 Beach Drive.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of March 19, 1913

Salonica — King George of Greece was assassinated yesterday while walking in the streets of Salonica. Aleko Schinas, the murderer, appears to have lived much abroad. He is a Greek returned to this city when it was occupied by the Greek army after the surrender of the Turkish garrison. Premeditation appear to be established by the fact that Schinas lurked in hiding. He rushed out when his royal victim was only six feet away and fired pointblank into the back of the King. Two Cretan military policemen seized the man.

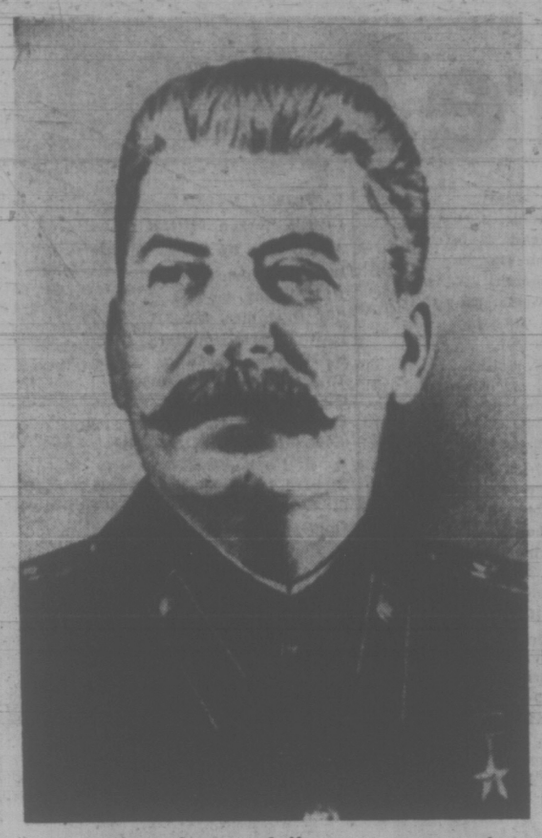
Stalin Is Gone But System Endures



Joseph Stalin . . . followers compromise

By BERNARD FERON
Le Monde, Paris

Rarely has a world leader been so adulated and so execrated as Joseph Stalin. When his death was announced on the morning of March 5, 1953, millions felt they had lost a father. In a spontaneous gesture, thousands of Muscovites swarmed into a packed Red Square. The new leaders in the Kremlin pleaded with them not to give way to panic. Foreign leaders, who had found in Stalin an implacable foe, did not conceal their uneasiness. They feared that the old leader, primarily concerned with maintaining his empire, might be replaced by ambitious younger men, keen on establishing their authority through spectacular gestures.

Only the blind were still unaware of the crimes committed in Stalin's name and on his orders. And yet this man, with his conspicuous place in the history of tyranny, was lamented by the masses and regretted by some of his enemies.

Twenty years after his death passions have somewhat abated. Rare indeed today is the person prepared to display openly unswerving devotion to a man whose perfidy was exposed by his succesors. Even the most dyed-in-the-wool Stalinists now admit that their hero was not altogether spotless. As for his enemies in the Communist world, they certainly would have liked to pursue further the posthumous trial initiated by Nikita Khrushchev, but the Soviet authorities had decided otherwise. Perhaps they were fearful of having to explain how and why the world's first Socialist state came to be delivered up to a dictator.

Many explanations have been put forward. Everyone felt that the Soviet homeland, surrounded by capitalist enemies, was in danger and needed a firm hand at the helm. Stalin had indeed taken a totally disorganized country and turned it into a powerful state capable of repulsing the Nazi invaders. The 1945 victory is even used to justify the bloody purges between 1934 and 1938.

But did the construction of the Soviet State really require the decimation of intellectuals, the massacre of so many veteran Communist officials, and the incarceration of so many technicians? Was it really necessary to execute so many officers to strengthen the army, or, to create a bright new world, begin by destroying the very values claimed for it?

Made Scapegoat

During the Khrushchev era, the Soviet leaders at least had the merit of taking stock and rehabilitating Stalin's victims. But Khrushchev's famous secret report of February 1956 demonstrated the limits and foreshadowed the failure of de-Stalinization. One man, together with his evil advisers, was made the scapegoat for all the nation's ills.

While good Marxists like Italian Communist party leader Palmiro Togliatti hoped for a critical analysis of the system, "Mr. K" limited himself to a denunciation of a larger-than-life personality. He commiserated with the hundreds of thousands of persecuted Communists, but showed little concern for the millions of non-party members hounded by the Stalinist regime or the peasants ground under because they slowed the pace of collectivization.

When at the 22nd party Congress of December 1961, the decision to change Stalingrad's name was taken, Pravda printed a very narrow interpretation of the struggle against the personality cult. In its view it was necessary to denounce the man who had laid down the law, but, at the same time, to assert the soundness of the policies followed by the party under his leadership.

In other words, Stalinism had been just a troublesome, but superficial, blemish on an otherwise healthy body politic, just as though during that period Soviet history and the history of the party were not identical or as though Stalin had amazingly become head of the party without recasting it in his image.

Stalin was little qualified to succeed Lenin. Hardworking, but ignorant of the outside world, he seemed colorless beside the cosmopolitan Leon Trotsky. His heavy oratorical sytle bored the masses, electrified by the brilliant revolutionary theoreticians. He held aloof as much as possible from the major political debates. While his colleagues shone at political meetings, he cultivated the appearance of the leader of the party bureaucracy.

Underestimated

There was little about this man to disturb seriously those who felt they were destined for great things. Of course, the other members of the Politburo were aware of his capacity for intrigue, but they too underestimated their rival. Whereas they busied themselves galvanising their followers, Stalin was content to conquer, one after another, the key posts.

Yet his success was due not only to the fact that he was wilier than any of the others but that he truly represented the aspirations of the new ruling class. Trotsky dreamed of spreading the revolution to the industrialized countries, but the more nationally minded Stalin began patiently to build socialism in a single country. He was the one who gave communism its Russian character. Of course, he continued to proclaim the Soviet Union as the cradle of world revolution, but in reality he used the International for Russia's ends.

In support of the thesis that Stalin betrayed Lenin's thinking, it has often been said that the Soviet Union would have developed differently if its founder had not died prematurely. Unlike Stalin, Lenin possessed enough assurance to face up to debate and detested the unnecessary use of violence. Moreover, he was exasperated by the cruelty of his Georgian "cook," as he called Stalin.

And yet Stalinism appears to be the natural, although monstrous, sequel to Leninism. At the beginning of the twentieth century when Lenin's thinking still closely paralleled that of the Mensheviks, Trotsky reproached him for having created a party which "intended to take the place of the working classes." He predicted that Lenin's methods would lead to a party organization in which a small committee would begin by replacing the party as a whole, followed by a central committee to replace the organization and, finally, a dictator to replace the central committee. It was also Lenin who imposed democratic centralism upon his "new style" party and then provisionally forbade these tendencies when he felt the revolution to be in danger.

Stalin had no need of a coup d'etat to come to power and only needed to push Leninist concepts to their extremes to stay on top. This is one reason why the Soviet leadership could never decide on a complete de-Stalinization. Not only are they loath to explain their own roles during the "personality cult" period, but they are fearful of disturbing the basic structure of the system by examining Lenin's ideas too critically.

So they have opted for a compromise. Stalin, they say, began to commit serious errors only after 1934. Following the assassination of Kirov, he suffered from a persecution complex and ordered purges which eliminated good Stalinists.

Excesses Gone

This official version of history has another advantage. It permits the present Kremlin leadership to apply — when it thinks fit — Stalinist policies stripped of their excesses. The labour camps have been emptied, but they still exist and can be used by the police to intern troublesome dissidents. Authority is much less brutal than it was 20 years ago, but the government can at any time reactivate a machinery of repression which has never been dismantled. In addition, it has halted efforts towards a true guarantee of the rights of all citizens. Nevertheless it now displays a far greater flexibility in all spheres, especially in regard to the outside world.

Three years after his death, Stalin's followers denounced him, sometimes very violently. They have not rehabilitated him, though they are more inclined now to give him his due. But the controversy that has taken place over a man as extraordinary as Stalin matters less than the argument over his system of government. Stalin is well and truly dead. One daren't say as much for Stalinism.

Barrett Lacks Muscle, Money for Railroad

By DAVE ABLETT

NIXON, CONNALLY . . . oil interests at heart

WASHINGTON — A few days after the U.S. election, the wife of a department store owner gave a couple of hundred thousand dollars to Richard Nixon's re-election committee, although Nixon had already been re-elected with a $5 million campaign surplus.

She has just been named an ambassadress.

Let us not denigrate the shrewdness of the lady's investment. If things are up for sale why not buy them? And they are up for sale here. They really are.

There is only one thing that is more useful than money in Washington and that is political muscle, though it is usually those who have the money who have the muscle.

All of this is not to run down the U.S. system of government. After all it's their business and the influence of money is not exactly minimal in Canadian politics either.

It is to say that Premier Barrett had to be kidding when he asked innocently during his Washington press conference: "Who's running the show — the government or the oil companies?"

Well, technically, it is the government but who is the government? To a surprising extent it is made up of oil executives or former lawyers who have had more than a passing acquaintance with oil industry matters. And those who aren't in the oil business very swiftly learn how much the oil and gas industry pay to the government in campaign donations.

Maybe that's wrong, but that's the way it is. The most important former oil industry lawyer is President Richard Nixon himself, who, it may be recalled, arranged that Newfoundland refinery deal for Shaheen Resources, where the province built a refinery, the federal government built a supertanker dock and Shaheen got the right to buy the whole thing back several years later for a song.

And there is John Connally, who made his first big money administering an oil trust and who is now talked about by Nixon as a possible presidential candidate and described as an adviser to the president, to Connally's constantly increasing enrichment.

The secretary of transportation is an oil man, the deputy defence secretary; the interior department is larded with them and so, most importantly, is the White House.

How did these people react to Barrett's propocal? Well they seemed to take it quite calmly. That is because they are ever so confident it is going exactly nowhere. Why? Because there is no money behind it. There is no political muscle. Nor is there likely to be.

Why should the oil industry agree to turn over all its pipeline revenues to a publicly-owned railroad? And why should the railroad industry, which has enough problems, push for it? After all, the next time the railroad industry needs help, the first guy they have to talk to is that former Sun Oil president who is sitting in the transportation department.

That is just a part of the context in which Barrett placed his proposal for a railway to Lower Post, B.C., with a 1,200-mile pipeline south from there through B.C.

Another part of that context, quite important right now, is the U.S. Congress. Now, congressmen are like me and thee, dreadfully overworked and able usually to grasp only hte barest essentials of things that don't directly concern us. A lot of congressmen don't think the Alaska pipeline is going to win them any votes down home so they don't think much about it, they don't read much and they don't know much.

Those who have taken a position have done so for quite clear down-home political reasons.

West coast congressmen, particularly the Alaskans, want that pipeline. It means jobs to them, investment, growth. It may be, as Barrett suggests, that the jobs are short term, that a pipeline is a one-shot affair, a construction boom to be followed by a bust, and a railroad is a better long-term proposition. But by the time the bust arrives, the congressmen may not be around, especially if there is no boom.

The congressmen from oil states believe fervently that the oil industry is right, or they know they'd better say it's right.

On the other hand there are middle west congressmen and senators who think Alaskan oil should come to the middle west because that is where the cold schools are — or were — and that is where their voters are.

And still others talk about the route through Canada that would bring it to the mid-west as a favor to a senator who did a favor, in pro forma response to an important constituent, or for any of a complex of reasons, many of them having little to do with oil.

In any case, the issue has boiled down in the Congress to a simple, understandable choice — the Alaska line or the Mackenzie line through Canada. And, with Ottawa's continuing silence on a Mackenzie line, the odds are that congressmen, if they have a choice in the end, will go for the Alaska route.

Well, how does Barrett's proposal fit into this part of the context? It doesn't.

The jobs that Barrett would offer Alaskans to build a railway will be offered more quickly by construction of the Alaska pipeline — by Barrett's own figures about two years more quickly. And it may be short-sighted, but you won't find many of Alaska's unemployed who don't opt for the pipeline.

The jobs that the proposal would generate in British Columbia would be considerable — and the massive thrust of development into the north of the province and Yukon is good for B.C. and the Yukon — but what about all those jobs Seattle is supposed to get fixing up tankers?

On the other side, what good does this proposal do for a U.S. politician who has it fixed in his mind that his home district in Wisconsin needs oil and the best way to get it there is by Canadian pipeline? Is he now going to move over and accept a proposal for a system designed mainly to take oil to the west coast? Not likely.

The best argument that opponents of the Alaska pipeline have going for them is not environmental — that is about oil tankers and permafrost and such. However much the oil is needed on the west coast, their argument is that it is needed far more in the midwest. In fact, that argument is the only way they avoid being tarred with the now devastating political charge that they are voting to worsen the "energy crisis" when they oppose the Alaska pipeline.

In short Barrett's proposal just doesn't fit. It hasn't got a constituency. It hasn't got political muscle. And unless Ottawa decides to cough up the $1.2 billion Barrett's proposal would require as the federal share, it hasn't got money either.

And so, in the end, the Barrett railroad and pipeline is likely to wind up just like Wenner-Gren — remember Wenner-Gren? — memorialized in yellowing newspaper clippings. There have certainly been enough of them and, if that was Barrett's purpose, it sure was an interesting example of how to generate news coverage and comment; one example of which it should be noted you have just read.

The Last Highrise

By RICHARD NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

"Whenever men have become skilful architects at all, there has been a tendency in them to build high." That's what John Ruskin said, and he was right — for example, the Colossus of Rhodes, which soared well over 100 feet; and the Pyramid of Cheops in Egypt, which is just under 500. Out in North Dakota, there's a TV tower which goes up more than 2,000 feet; and the world's tallest building, the 1,450-foot Sears Tower in Chicago, should be completed next year.

This brings me around to something which might br might not have happened in my favorite city, and which involves a building magnate named Bernard Babel, president of Babel Construction Ltd. Like many of his rivals, Bernard Babel put up 50-storey and 60-storey buildings — hotels, apartment houses, office blocks, whatever — simply for the sake of putting them up. Whether they would make money or not, whether they were needed or not, whether they would be occupied or stand empty, was the least of his worries; merely to build the thing was enough in itself.

In these enterprises, Bernard Babel was assisted by a crew of architects, engineers, electricians, stonemasons and all such who spoke an enormous variety of languages. You might think this would lead to confusion, but no. The Italians spoke a bit of German, the Germans spoke a bit of Polish, the Poles spoke a bit of Portuguese, the Portuguese spoke a bit of Greek, the Greeks spoke a bit of Japanese, and so the work proceeded merrily along, with the towers of Babel Construction Ltd. racing up at the rate of one floor a day.

One night, Bernard Babel had a dream, and the next morning called his entire staff together, saying, "Why are we putting up all this piddling stuff? Sixty storeys, my pile-drivers. What's wrong with 100 stories, 200 or even 1,000? Go to, let us build us a tower whose top may reach unto Heaven, and let us make us a name. Onwards and upwards, men, and from here on Babel Construction Ltd. has a new slogan — "Nearer, my God, to Thee," at which all the workers cheered loudly in Greek, Italian, Polish, Swiss and Australian.

Up, up, up went the tower, going above the smog, then above the clouds, and then aiming directly for Heaven. The people who lived in the city were impressed and amused by the prospect of a tower penetrating into the celestial regions. One said, "I would like to have an apartment on the top floor when it's finished, because I understand that in Heaven there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage, what a divine prospect." Another said, "I understand that in Heaven, you are reunited with deceased members of your family, so I will settle for a suite on the ground floor, thank you." Still another said, "Put me on the ground floor, too; I couldn't hack all those hymns and psalms, on account I know only three songs — Three Itty Fitties, Abdul the Bul-bul Emir, and a somewhat indelicate version of Tiptoe Through the Tulips."

Up in Heaven, of course, the reaction was different. God remarked to St. Peter, "My sight may be failing a bit, which is not surprising after several million years, but I do think I see a building coming up in our direction, with an enormous crane on top. What the Heaven do they think they're doing?" St. Peter replied, "I've noticed it myself, but I didn't dare tell you in case you might think I'd been into the ambrosia. Shall I let loose a thunderbolt and demolish the God-blessed thing?"

"No, no," said the Deity, "they'll simply collect the insurance and start all over again. I think what we ought to do is to confound their language. Clear their minds of Greek, Portuguese, Italian and all the rest; arrange that from here on, they'll speak nothing but Grade 13 English." St. Peter was stunned by the brilliance of this proposal, and said so to God, who gently replied, "Well, you see, that's My line of work — to perform wonders, to plant My footsteps on the CBC, and ride up the Secret Storm."

When the workers of Babel Construction showed up on the job the next day, they found themselves in grievous trouble. A German electrician said to an Italian foreman, "Like, man, you know, ikjhyzfrw, right on, you know, like twqkbn?" The foreman shook his head in bewilderment and replied, "We ain't got, like, skquftrgng, you know, pgmsx. Fnerf?" which caused the electrician to down his tools and punch the foreman right in the snoot.

Similar scenes were taking place all over the building, and thus work came to a stop, and it slowly collapsed. And so did Babel Construction Ltd., and the people in its employ were all scattered to various places. Many of them were grabbed up by the universities, some got teaching jobs in community colleges, some went with the private radio stations, some, as I gather from reading newspapers and magazines, got work in my own field; and one, at least, acquired global fame by disclosing that the Te Deum is the message.

CORTINA.
SOME THINGS ARE HARD TO IMPROVE ON.

We did it, by putting it through even tougher quality tests.

Cortina's always been a tough, little, economy car. So we've found it hard to improve on.

This year we added an energy-absorbing bumper system. And introduced even more stringent quality control checks, to make sure it's uniquely suited to Canada's rugged driving conditions.

But that's all. Because Cortina already has the things an economy car needs to be tough and reliable.

For performance, handling and rugged durability there's a 2-litre Overhead Camshaft engine, 4-speed transmission, rack and pinion steering, power front disc brakes and Short and Long Arm front suspension.

In short, we built everything into Cortina that would make it a tough and durable little car, with all the comfort you want. And how do you improve on that?

Test drive the 2-door, the 4-door or the sporty 2-door GT.

North Flight Rules Tightened

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — An air safety plan, included a navigational aids program and new flight rules, was announced at the weekend by transport Minister Jean Merchand.

The plan follows controversy over the Marten Hartwell air crash, but transport department officials say it has been developed over the last two years.

Hartwell piloted a Beechcraft 18 which crashed on a flight from Cambridge Bay, N.W.T. to this territorial capital Nov. 8 leading to the deaths of three passengers. Hartwell was rescued after 32 days.

Marchand, on a tour of air facilities in the west and north, told a small crowd at the airport here that the department plans a $3.7 million program to extend and upgrade air navigation facilities in the Artic. Work already is under way.

The minister also announced new operating rules for small commercial aircraft. The new rules, which apply throughout Canada, provide for aircraft maintenance standards, pilot training requirements and flight regulations. They take effect next Jan. 1.

Marchand said the plan "will be of great assistance in providing a safe aviation service in the north." The minister was opening a new air terminal facilities at the Yellowknife airport.

Earlier, he opened new buildings at the Inuvik, N.W.T. airport. He returned to Ottawa Sunday.

The department plans to install long-range air navigational aids at Yellowknife, Inuvik, Norman Wells, Fort Simpson, Resolute Bay, Frobisher Bay and Cambridge Bay in the Northwest Territories and Whitehorse and Watson Lake in the Yukon, the transport minister said.

The new aircraft operating rules announced by Marchand will apply to commercial aircraft weighing 12,500 pounds or less. Generally, this includes single engine and light twin-engine aircraft.

The rules require air carriers to have an approved operations manual insuring that all company employees meet certain standards.

All aircraft using instrument flight rules, or flying at night under visual flight rules, will have to fly along specific air routes.

No flight under visual rules is to begin unless weather conditions along the entire route are good. The Hartwell flight began in poor weather conditions.

Marchand told reporters that good flying principles have not been followed as strictly in the north as in other parts of the country. He said this may be because large carriers in other parts of the country have established their own operations rules.

GOODWILL WATCH SALE MARCH 20

A sale of second hand watches and silverware will be sponsored by Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped at the rehabilitation centre, 220 Bay, Tuesday, March 20, at 9:30 a.m.

• IN PERFORMANCE
Gremlin comes with a 6 cylinder engine. A big, rugged 232 cubic inch engine developing 100 net horse-power at 3600 rpm. Power for quick acceleration and unstressed highway cruising speed. It's quiet too, unlike some cars with air-cooled or 4 cylinder engines.

• IN DRIVING, HANDLING & PARKING
Gremlin's wheelbase is about 1" longer than the others. Yet, it drives, handles, and parks with the same ease. The big difference is that the Gremlin is almost 450 pounds heavier and has a stance that is from 2" to 7" wider than the rest. So it gives a good solid feeling and a good steady ride.

• THE INSIDE STORY
Gremlin has either a bench or optional bucket front seats—you choose. Gremlin has a rear seat like the others except when ours folds down the accessible luggage capacity expands to 16.7 cubic feet with the optional space saver spare tire. Unlike some imports that offer "wheels" on a take-it-or-leave-it basis, Gremlin offers a wide choice of comfort and convenience options.

• THE PRICE
Gremlin starts at only
$2415*
which is actually less than some of the top selling imports.

• THE AMERICAN MOTORS BUYER PROTECTION PLAN
Like all new 1973 AMC cars, Gremlin is covered by the exclusive American Motors Buyer Protection Plan, which this year, may be extended for a slight charge and which also offers Special Trip Interruption Protection. Ask for full details.

Drop into an American Motors Dealer now! Test drive and compare Gremlin. We think you'll agree that Gremlin beats the other guys at their own game.

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price. Transportation charges, Provincial and Local taxes not included. Certain items illustrated optional at extra cost. Prices subject to change without notice. Comparison limited to sub-compact competitive models within similar price range and basic dimensions at time of publication.

Labatt

John Labatt Ltd. reports net income before extraordrinary costs for the nine months to Jan. 31 of $14,430,000 or $1.35 a share, up from $12,700,000 and $1.16 in the corresponding period a year earlier.

The extraordinary item, $951,000 or 11 cents a share, involves unusual and non-recurring costs relating to the start of new production facilities for Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd.

Gross sales for the nine-month period rose 9.9 per cent to $389,949,000.

Beer sales volume in Canada increased 9.4 per cent compared with an industry average of six per cent.

Thomson

Thomson Newspapers Ltd. reports 1972 profit of $21,405,553 or 43 cents a share, up from $18,256,926 or 36.7 cents a year ealier.

In addition, there was extraordinary income of $574,388 in 1972 to raise earnings per share to 44.2 cents. There was no comparable item in 1971.

The company reports 1972 net sales at $139,200,395 against $129,190,312 in 1971.

Nu-West

Nu-West Development Corp. Ltd., reports net income of $2,112,517 or $1.24 a share in 1972 compared with $1,185,639 or 70 cents a share in 1971.

The 78-per-cent increase in earnings was on total revenue of $57,945,064 compared with $37,358,661 the previous year.

"The year 1972 marked the first in which your company's net income exceeded $2,000,000," said company president Ralph Scurfield.

TAX TIPS

This information is supplied by the federal department of national revenue. If further details are required, contact the Victoria District Taxation Office between 8:30 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. Monday and Tuesday and 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday to Friday at 388-3551. These hours to be kept to filing deadline, April 30. For those living outside the Victoria exchange area, ask the long-distance operator for Zenith 0-4000 and the call will be placed without charge.

Q. Must I have a social insurance number, and enter it on my income tax return?

A. Yes, if you are required to file an income tax return you are required to have a social insurance number and to enter it on your income tax return. Your social insurance number is used for identification purposes and for the recording of contributions to the Canada Pension PLan.

Q. My social insurance number printed on my personalized tax return form is not the same as the number on my T4 slip. How do I correct this?

A. If the number is incorrect on your income tax form cross out the wrong number and enter in the correct number. If your social insurance number is incorrect on your T4 slips notify your employer and ask him to make the necessary correction.

Q. I have two bank accounts and the interest on one of them was less than $10 so I haven't received a T5 slip. Does this mean I don't have to declare this amount of income when I file my tax return?

A. You should report as part of your income all interest received from bank savings accounts, even if you have not received a T5 slip from the bank.

Q. Do I still have to get receipts for charitable donations?

A. Yes. You still have to secure receipts for all claims for charitable donations. You must list your claim on the schedule provided with your income tax return, and you must attach the receipts to the return.

Q. Can a divorced woman claim the equivalent of married exemption of $1,350 for a 13-year-old child (no income) in a mental institution, if she pays the expenses such as medical, clothing, etc.

A. No. The child would have to live in the self-contained domestic establishment maintained by the taxpayer.

Ottawa Expands Export Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Expansion of a program to encourage export market development has been announced by Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie.

It involves government help for small companies seeking markets abroad.

Under the program, the government will provide help for agents or trading companies acting on behalf of small companies that do not have the capacity to seek world markets on their own.

Gillespie said "the success of this program . . . has been such that we now are prepared to expand it."

The change would enable a single company to act on behalf of several client manufacturers in the search for export markets.

He said the program to date has generated about $13 million in new business or about $112 for each dollar the government has spent.

The trade minister said another section of the program, providing incentives for participation in capital projects abroad, has resulted in more than $55 million in new business or about $201 for each government dollar spent.

The office handling the program has received 1,600 applications for aid from 674 companies, Gillespie reported.

Projects proposed for cost sharing must represent a new departure. Routine costs would not be considered.

However, he made it clear that Ottawa expects to be repaid for its help if a company's new export projects prove successful.

EXPORTS HIGHER BY $255 MILLION

OTTAWA (CP) — Exports in February totalled $1.751 billion, up $255 million from the same month a year ago, reports Statistics Canada.

Shipments of automative products, lumber, crude petroleum and industrial machinery accounted for about $115 million of the increase.

The U.S. and Japan took about $185 million of the increase.

Exports to the U.S. totalled $1.271 billion for the month compared with $1.086 billion in the same month a year ago.

Those to Japan stood at $97.7 million compared with $61.7 million.

Unlimited Growth Meets Resistance

The Canadian Press

"It is not change itself that is disastrous, but the failure to react to it in time."

The warning, from geophysicist J. Tuzo Wilson of the University of Toronto, points up the current debate over economic growth.

Unlimited growth, once regarded as the path to ending poverty, is meeting with growing disfavor. Many doubt that present rates of population growth, pollution and resource consumption can go on indefinitely.

"Instead of seeking to exploit, we must conserve," says Prof. Wilson, chairman of the Royal Society of Canada. "Instead of trying to increase consumption, we must curb our appetites."

He admits such a radical proposition is socially disturbing and a handicap to business. There is a tendency to ignore the problem and hope it will go away, he says.

If scarcity is a fact of life, how should what exists be divided up? Can poor countries be expected to remain satisfied with a relatively small share?

WEALTH CONCENTRATED

The World Bank reports that of an astounding $1,000 billion increase in the world's gross national product during the 1960s, only six per cent went to countries that contain 60 per cent of the globe's population.

Eighty per cent went to countries with one-quarter of the world's population.

The latest commercial letter of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce says the values, attitudes and institutions of Western industrial society are being questioned. The revaluation is more profound and fundamental than the social and political ideas of the 19th century.

Is there any exit from poverty other than growth? Can people be deflected from seeking a higher standard of living? Can a blind faith in the miracles of technology be sustained?

H. Ronald Fraser, president of Anglo American Corp. of Canada Ltd., told the Prospectors and Developers Association last week:

"I have faith in posterity. I think it will cope with its problems by providing the technical growth to meet its demands."

EASTER SEAL DRIVE LAUNCHED TODAY

Donations will go to the 25,000 disabled children and adults of B.C. Easter Seal funds support clef-lip and palate clinics, camps for the handicapped, winter swim programs and transportation to clinics and special schools for 1,500 children and adults.

The cleft-lip palate clinic at Queen Alexandra Solarium assists an average 80 Vancouver Island children annually. Some may need 16 years of plastic surgery, orthodontia and speech therapy to correct abnormalities.

The clinic is supported by Easter Seal funds and staffed by volunteer surgeons, orthodontists and therapists.

This year's campaign for funds runs from March 19 to April 22.

Great Response To New Choir

Response has been overwhelming in the appeal for young voices to join the Saanich Youth Choir.

Applications were called for last fall by Beaver Lake and Prospect Lake school principal Michael Witter and music counsellor Pete Stigings. Since then 365 elementary and high school students have given auditions.

Seventy-five have been chosen for the choir.

"We knew that a lot of students were interested in extending school music" said Witter, "but we did not expect anything like this. For a beginning group, they are doing a fantastic job."

Meeting every Wednesday in Keating Elementary, the new choir is tackling the rock opera Joseph for future presentation.

This Wednesday the choir has been invited to give a concert in Brentwood United Church at 7:30 p.m.

The large group, says director Witter, permits them to sing challenging pieces with dynamic quality rather than the "folksy" music of a small choir.

Legislation Delay Irks Union

The Comox branch of the B.C. Government Employees Union has asked the government why no bargaining rights legislation has been introduced so far in the legislative session.

Branch secretary George King said a membership meeting voted to make the request "after heated debate" because there have been no signs "of any move by the government to implement the promise made to the union by the premier, Dave Barrett, to arrange for a clear-out contract to be written between the government and the union."

Speaking Contest Tuesday

A trip to Ottawa is in store for one of eight high school students participating in a Rotary-sponsored speaking contest at Claremont Senior Secondary Tuesday.

The contestants are Cindy Criss, Beth Leaver, Stuart Crombie, Don Bamford, Michele Gagnier, Marian Haupt, Don Larson and Phyllis Humphreys.

Sidney Rotary Club sponsors the annual "Adventure in Citizenship" and sends one student to join 265 others from across Canada in a three-day program which includes dinner with Prime Minister Trudeau.

Judges for the Peninsula contest which starts at 8 p.m. in Claremont lunchroom are Harry Tobin, Mary Jane Lewis, Louisa Argyle and Ann Foerster. Claremont teacher Andy Bryant will be moderator.

Logger Dies Under Stump

LAKE COWICHAN — A 25-year-old Duncan logger was killed Friday when he was pinned under a large stump.

RCMP said Kenneth Murray Harper, 1011 Marmont, an employee of Carley Logging Ltd., died in an accident in the Gordon River area, 25 miles southwest of Lake Cowichan.

Duncan coroner T. H. Lines has ordered an inquest, but no date has been set.

Clean Air Device Rapped

WASHINGTON (WP) — The wrong kind of clean air device is destined to end up on American cars in 1975, says the U.S. National Academy of Sciences Committee.

E. L. Ginzton, chairman of the academy's committee on motor vehicle emissions, told the Environmental Protection Agency that it is "imperative" for the government to turn the situation around.

"The nation is now headed in a direction that is wrong" because Detroit is planning to add questionable devices on auto exhaust systems to meet clean air standards set for 1975, Ginzton said.

The equipment Ginzton and the majority of his fellow committee members faulted — called catalytic converters — is designed to intercept engine exhaust fumes and purify them before they go out into the open air.

More promising in the committee's view is more radical changes in today's auto engines — such as the rotary Wankel engine in the Japanese Mazda and another system developed by the Japanese manufacturer Honda.

The catalytic converters Detroit intends to put on its 1975 cars are "likely to precipitate major difficulties" for their owners, Ginzton said in discussing the committee's report.

The committee majority, he added, believes "it is important to find a way to push the industry into alternative technology" rather than settling for the catalysts now being tested.

EPA administrator William D. Ruckelshaus told Ginzton that he agreed "we ought to try to push as many of these technologist as possible."

But Ruckelshaus went on to explain his dilemma in weighing Detroit's request for a one-year delay in imposing the clean air standards.

He said it is "entirely conceivable" that the government could end up pushing the auto industry the wrong way. By that, Ruckelshaus has explained, he means that standing on the 1975 deadline for meeting air purity standards might well impel North American auto makers to install the only devices now in their hands for cleaning up engine exhausts on time, controversial cataylic converters.

Hryb Retains His Wrestling Crown

THUNDER BAY, Ont. — Taras Hryb, former Oak Bay High School student now attending the University of British Columbia, turned back an American challenge to remain Canada's freestyle wrestling champion in the 180½-pound class.

The Victoria wrestler defeated Dave Ouelette of the U.S. to defend his title in the Canadian open amateur championships here at the weekend. Hryb also won a third place bronze medal when he moved up to the 198-pound class in Greco-Roman competition.

Victoria's only other entrant, Mike Southwell, failed to place in the top three of the 125-pound division, won by Toronto's John Barry, another defending champ.

Harry Geris of London, Ont., and Vancouver's Rick Walmsley emerged as the only double winners, capturing gold medals in freestyle as well as in the Greco-Roman category.

Wings Pick Right Time To End Hawks' Mastery

By the Canadian Press

The numbers game caught up with Chicago Black Hawks Sunday afternoon and it couldn't have come at a better time for Detroit Red Wings.

The Red Wings, in a seesaw battle with Buffalo Sabres for the fourth and final playoff spot in the National Hockey League East Division, hadn't beaten Chicago in 15 regular season games stretching back to 1970.

Goaltender Roy Edwards posted his sixth shutout of the year at Chicago and Detroit ended its three-year drought with a 2-0 win to remain deadlocked with Sabres who shelled Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 in a night contest.

"I guess you could call it the law of averages," said Detroit coach Johnny Wilson. "But I'd have to say that my team played awfully well."

Elsewhere Sunday, Peter Mahovlich completed a four-goal weekend when his second of the game at Philadelphia lifted Montreal Canadiens into a 4-4 tie with the Flyers, Boston Bruins crushed Atlanta Flames 7-1 led by Johnny Bucyk's two goals, New York Rangers downed St. Louis Blues 3-1 as ex-Blues' winger Mike Murphy scored twice, and California Golden Seals blanked Minnesota North Stars 2-0.

Buffalo pulled into a fourth-place tie with the Wings Saturday when they tied Montreal 3-3 while Detroit was idle.

In other games Saturday, Toronto surprised the Rangers, who blew a three-goal lead, 7-5; New York Islanders upset St. Louis 6-4; Atlanta turned back Chicago 3-2; Vancouver Canucks romped 6-1 against Pittsburgh Penguins and Minnesota edged Los Angeles Kings 4-3.

The Rangers and Minnesota meet in a key game at Minneapolis Tuesday night while the fledgling Islanders and ailing Californians square away in a meaningless game at New York.

Seals' owner Charles O. Finley admitted Sunday night after a weekend meeting with dissident players that the NHL board of governors offered last week to purchase his financially-plagued franchise.

"We were on top of the Hawks the whole way and the few chances they did get were taken care of by Edwards," said Wilson whose Wings had been resting for the encounter since a 5-4 loss at Detroit Friday night.

Hawks, on the other hand, were coming off a tough encounter at Atlanta with only about 16 hours rest and coach Billy Reay said "the legs just weren't there in the second and third (periods)."

"And we were badly outplayed."

Mickey Redmond's 46th goal of the year at 13:26 of the second period with Chicago's Pit Martin in the penalty box was all the offence Edwards needed.

The veteran goaltender made 25 saves but the only two he could recall were by Jerry Korab who "nearly cracked my right elbow when he came in from the left side in the first period."

"Then, in the last period, he got off a good shot down the slot during a power play."

The Sabres, held scoreless in the first period, rammed three goals past Toronto goalie Ron Low in the middle period and went on to end an eight-game winless string.

Craig Ramsay, Rick Martin and rookie defenceman Larry Carriere were the second-period marksmen and the Leafs never recovered despite a brief rally early in the final period when Darryl Sitler counted on Roger Crozier.

The Bruins spotted Atlanta a 1-0 lead on Curt Bennett's goal early in the game, but veteran Jacques Plante—obtained in a trade from Toronto two weeks ago—shut the Flames off after that.

Bucyk got the equalizer at 4:45 of the second period and before the session ended Greg Sheppard, Phil Esposito, Derek Sanderson and Bucyk had increased the lead to 5-1 as they rained 20 of their game-total 44 shots at Atlanta's rookie goaltender Dan Bouchard.

The Rangers, with a game in hand, remained two points behind Boston in their match-up for second place in the East with Murphy scoring twice against his former team-mates in the second period.

The Rangers, who traded Murphy to St. Louis in November, 1971, reclaimed him recently to help fill a wing vacancy left by Bruce MacGregor's broken leg that will keep the veteran right winger on the sidelines for the rest of the year.

The Flyers rallied from a one-goal deficit to take a 4-3 lead on scores by Bobby Clarke and Bill Flett before Peter Mahovlich, playing only his third game after being out of the lineup for several weeks with a knee injury, tallied with about three minutes remaining in the game.

Tactical Change Saves a Crown

KAMLOOPS — Mt. Douglas Ramblers shook off an early threat with a switch in tactics and, as expected, retained the British Columbia high school girls' basketball championship with a 51-31 triumph over Salmon Arm Jewels Saturday.

Favored going into the 16-team provincial tournament, the Earl Hockin-coached Ramblers clearly established themselves as the best in B.C.

And if there is any consolation for rivals, it comes with the knowledge that Hockin will be faced with a rebuilding chore next season. Mt. Douglas will lose six players through graduation.

They are Ronni Hind, Mairi Anne Longmore, Jill Smith, Marion Main, Dodie Zethof and Nancy Griffin.

For four—Hind, Longmore, Smith and Main, the sparkplugs of a team that dominated high school girls' ranks for two straight years—Saturday's victory marked their second successful championship effort in seven days. The four were instrumental in helping Victoria First United Saints to the Canadian junior women's championship in Montreal the previous weekend.

Three of them drew honors by being named to the B.C. all-star teams. Hind and Smith were first-team choices along with Marg Mainwaring of Oak Bay, Tara Smith of Salmon Arm and Carol Turney of Chilliwack.

Longmore, Sandra Tatchell and Gloria Genereux of Salmon Arm, Debbie Shewchuk of Vancouver Sir Charles Tupper and New Westminster's Rosemary Sabellin were second-team selections.

Janis Turner of Reynolds, who finished 10th following a 24-23 victory over Langley on Saturday, drew honorable mention.

Salmon Arm, seven-time B.C. champion but runner-up to Victoria-area teams for the past four years, threatened to score an upset by jumping off to a 16-9 first-quarter lead. Breaking Mt. Douglas' full-court press, the Jewels still led 23-20 at the half.

Hockin switched tactics at half-time. Ramblers dropped their press, blocked up the middle on defence and turned to the fast-break on offence. Mt. Doug outscored Salmon Arm 17-4 in the third quarter to assume command.

Oak Bay, voted most sportsmanlike team, finished third by defeating New Westminster 42-36 behind Mainwaring's 24-point performance. Oak Bay's talented ace also emerged as the free-throw champion by sinking 18 of 20 shots.

FINAL

MT. DOUGLAS (51)—Nancy Griffin, Heather Knight, Ronni Hind 12, Mairi Anne Longmore 14, Jill Smith 10, Marion Main 8, Dodie Zethof, Linda Saunders 7, Pat Vickers, Alix Bawlf, Cheryl Hooker.

SALMON ARM (31)—Tara Smith 6, Sandra Tatchell 7, Barbara Peutz 4, Lynn Miller, Susen Berger, Doreen Mosher, Carolyn Jamieson, Gloria Genereux 10, Sue Strickland, Linda Lockerby, Carol Bouvier 2, Christine Lockerby 2.

CONSOLATION FINAL

NEW WESTMINSTER (36)—Rosemary Sabellin 12, Sharon Creelman 2, Vivian Law 16, Florence Bell 4, Rhonda Josey 2, Connie Henderson, Carol Booth, Ann Melville, Linda Angelucci, Rosemary Benson.

Hot Finishes By Sun Devils

An outstanding campaign and a pair of spine-tingling victories Saturday established Elizabeth Fisher's Sun Devils as the Vancouver Island junior high school boy's basketball champions.

Beaten only once in 39 games this season, the Langford squad dethroned Lansdowne by clipping the defending champions 37-35 at Belmont.

Trailing 28-20 at the half, Sun Devils scored the final four points of the game. Dave English and Jim Cochran each scored nine points to pace Elizabeth Fisher while John McManaman counted 10 for Lansdowne.

Sun Devils reached the final by shading Central 58-57 in overtime. Terry Armstrong sparked the winners with 26 points Lansdowne overpowered Courtenay 63-49 in Saturday's other semi-final.

Bill Van Buskirk's 18 points carried Colquitz to a 37-36 consolation victory over Mt. Prevost of Duncan and third place.

See-Saw Golf Winner Has the Right Numbers

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jim Colbert has a strange philosophy, possibly a unique approach to the game of golf.

"My reaction to anything that happens on the golf course is no reaction," the little veteran said after his teeter-totter triumph in the Greater Jacksonville Open.

"There are no birdies or bogeys, no eagles or double bogeys. They are only numbers. If you can get that way you can play this game. It's my way."

Colbert bogeyed four of his first five holes. He opened with a two-stroke lead in the mild, sunny weather of the final day, then found himself four strokes behind Jimmy Wiechers after only five holes.

He regained the lead, built it to two strokes, lost it and dropped behind again, regained it in dramatic fashion and preserved it even more dramatically.

The final touch came on the 17th green at the 7,008-yard, par-72 Deerwood Club course. He held a one-stroke lead at that stage, but had missed the green and needed to make a seven-foot putt to save par. If he missed the putt, five men would have been tied for the top spot going to the final hole.

"He amazed me," said Johnny Miller, one of the quartet lurking just one stroke behind. "He just stepped up to it and hit it like it was a putt on the practice green. Amazing."

CLIPPERS CRUISE TO SEMIS

Nanaimo Clippers defeated Bellingham Blazers 7-5 Sunday to win their best-of-seven B.C. Junior League quarter-final 4-1.

Clippers downed Blazers 6-3 Saturday in Bellingham, Al Able pacing the win with two goals. Brian Day hit for three Clipper goals in Nanaimo Sunday.

Vancouver Villas avoided elimination Sunday by upsetting Chilliwack Bruins 7-3 after losing 4-2 in overtime Saturday. Chilliwack leads the series 3-1.

In Okanagan Division quarter-finals, Penticton Broncos beat Kelowna Buckaroos 5-3 and 4-3 for a 3-2 series lead while Kamloops Rockets took a 3-1 lead by downing Vernon Essos 6-3 and 4-2.

Bantams Spoil Title Bid By Using Too Many Players

Because of a rule infraction, North Shore Winter Club lost an unbeaten record and relinquished the B.C. bantam hockey title to Quesnel at the conclusion Sunday of a three day round-robin tournament at Pearkes Arena.

North Shore dressed 17 players, one more than the maximum number allowed, for two games and the subsequent protests by Trail and Cranbrook were upheld by tournament officials.

Quesnel captured the crown with four wins and one loss in five games while North Shore, minus the two wins, slipped to second place with a 3-2 record.

Defending-champion Saanich Haida Record Braves finished in third place with two wins, two losses and a tie, followed by Cranbrook (2-3-0), Trail (1-2-2) and Vernon (1-3-1).

Saanich finished play Sunday by battling to a 6-6 deadlock with Trail and then absorbing a 17-1 trouncing at the hands of North Shore.

'Good' Is Word for Secretariat

Secretariat, 1972, Horse-of-the-Year, made his debut as a three-year-old Saturday at Aqueduct in New York by winning the seven-furlong Bay Shore Stakes with an explosive stretch run.

And Linda's Chief, second only to Secretariat in the Kentucky Derby future book, continued to look good as he won the one and one-sixteenth mile San Felipe Handicap at Santa Anita, Calif., for his fourth victory in five starts this year.

"He's just like he was, good," said Canadian jockey Ron Turcotte after Secretariat blasted through tight quarters about an eighth of a mile from home and then drew away for a 4½-length victory over Champagne Charlie.

Secretariat, carrying Derby weight of 126 pounds, earned $16,650 from a purse of $27,750 for his eighth victory, six in stakes, in 10 starts.

Recently syndicated for a record $6,080,000 he is scheduled to start next in the one-mile Gotham at Aqueduct, April 7.

Linda's Chief, unable to beat Secretariat as a two-year-old, strengthened his three-year-old credentials and established himself as favorite for the Santa Anita Derby, March 31, by winning the $69,700 San Felipe.

In Saturday's richest race, the $75,000 New Orleans Handicap, Combat Ready $25.60) charged to a two-length victory over Hustlin Greek.

Sports In Brief

If Boucha Were Only Younger

ED BOUCHA
. . . a busted beak

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Speaking of desires . . .

Victoria Cougar coach Bob Briscoe would love dearly to turn the clock back on Ed Boucha.

And if the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Hockey Players would allow him, Bob Turner of Regina Pats might be tempted to attach an occasional firecracker to the back of Dennis Sobchuk's playing britches.

The coaches were on the same wave length Saturday — to win a Western Canada Junior Hockey League game. The players were a study of contrasts as the Cougars came through with a 6-4 victory before 1,478 fans at Memorial Arena. It was Cougars' first win ever over Pats in a two-season span covering eight games.

Playing with a mask to protect a broken nose, Boucha banged in two smart goals and figured in a third to help Cougars break a 10-game winless run.

One of the brightest spots in an otherwise disappointing season, the 19-year-old Boucha winds up his junior campaign Wednesday when Edmonton Oil Kings come around to Memorial Arena to finish out Victoria's 1972-73 schedule.

Briscoe, for one, will be sorry.

"There are a lot of players around with desire," said Brisco, "but they don't top Ed. This is his first and only year in a good league, and his improvement has been tremendous.

"Oh how I wish he was 17 or 18, and could be coming back next season . . ."

Eligibility to return is Sobchuk's good fortune. Regina's starry 18-year-old centre scored one goal and set up another but that wasn't enough to impress Turner.

"He hasn't been playing well for about five games," the Regina coach added. "His linemates (Clark Gillies and Mike Wanchuck) have been playing very well, but Sobchuk hasn't.

"Sobchuck is the guy who gets us going. When he turns it on, then we're equal to any team in the league."

Subchuk rarely looks spectacular because of his fluid style. Saturday his play bordered on mediocrity and the spirited Cougars made the most of the situation. That included scoring three of their six goals against Sobchuk's line.

Cougars took a 2-0, first-period lead on Dale Cook's 46th goal and another by defenceman Rick Lapointe. Regina goals by Wanchuk and Rich Urich, within a span of 22 seconds, tied it early in the second but Cougars refused to wilt.

A breakaway by Ron Poole, Boucha's two and another goal by Al McLaren put Cougars back on top, 6-2, heading into the final period. Sobchuk and Gillies, connecting in another 24-second burst, revived Regina's hopes but Cougars held out the rest of the way for their 13th victory of the season.

Backing up Cougar's strong effort were goalie Perry Mulhall and defenceman Rick Williams.

Sobchuk's deflection of a shot by Doug Marit was the only flaw as Cougars weathered four other short-handed situations.

Turner's playoff outlook didn't improve greatly Sunday. Sobchuk scored another goal and an assist but the Pats bowed 6-3 to the Bruins in New Westminster. The result was tempered by the fact Flin Flon also ran into grief, bowing 11-0 to the Blades in Saskatoon.

Edmonton Oil Kings, meanwhile, took over first place in the Western Division with the help of a penalty shot and a 4-2 victory over Calgary Centennials.

Victory moved Oil Kings one point ahead of Medicine Hat Tigers, who were clipped 3-2 by Brandon on a successful penalty shot by Peter Wurster. It was Wurster's fifth goal of the season, and his second via the penalty-shot route.

Nats a Hit On the Road

By The Canadian Press

Ottawa Nationals have found a home — in Winnipeg.

The Nats, after a near-disastrous season at home in which the financially-plagued World Hockey Association franchise played to mere echoes in the Civic Centre, are gaining recognition on the road.

They downed the Jets 3-2 Sunday for their third successive victory in Winnipeg, making it eight wins in their last nine games, to climb into a fourth-place tie with Philadelphia Blazers in the Eastern Division.

Blues Best College Club

TORONNTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues grabbed a two-goal lead in the first period and went on to defeat St. Mary's University Huskies 3-2 in the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union championship hockey game Saturday.

The victory gave the Blues their fifth consecutive University Cup and their seventh national college hockey title in eight years.

The past four wins have all been against St. Mary's.

Nick Holmes, Kent Ruhnke and Gorde Davies, voted most valuable player in the game, scored for Toronto. Doug Abbass and Gerard Gibbons were the Huskies' marksmen.

Odds Against Jobless Rink

REGINA (CP) — Three unemployed Americans and their student team-mate hope to take the world curling championship to the United States, but the odds seem to be against them.

The U.S. entry in the world championship, which starts today, is the youngest in the 10-country event, they have little or no competition at home and they've never won a bonspiel in Canada.

Skip Charles Reeves, 24, of Winchester, Mass., says he hasn't been able to find anybody who would offer him a steady job which would allow him to take off the amount of time he needs to curl.

Third Doug Carlson, 24, and lead Barry Blanchard, 24, have the same problem. Second Henry Shean, 23, is taking post-graduate studies in Philadelphia.

Reeves said there are only three sheets of ice at their home club, about six miles north of Boston, and there's little competition in the club.

To gain experience they travelled to two Ontario bonspiels earlier this year and managed to win a second event — their best showing against Canadians.

The foursome won the U.S. championship by beating Bob Labonte of North Dakota, whose rink had the world title sewed up last year, but lost it to Canada in a bizarre finish when a rink member jumped in jubilation and kicked a rock that would have given the U.S. the championship.

Weather Wipes Out Showdown

A showdown between UVic Vikings and Oak Bay for second place in the Vancouver Island Soccer League was postponed because of Sunday's cold, wet and windy weather. The teams remain tied with 23 points.

The weatherman was no more co-operative up-Island as a Nanaimo-Courtney contest also was postponed.

In the only Island League game played, Cosmopolitan Royals edged Lusitanos 1-0 on Scott Haskett's goal.

JOHN MACE SETS PACE WITH 9 TDs

HOWIE ANDERSON
. . . especially effective

Defence Sparkles for Vic West

Some excellent defensive work helped Victoria West-United blank Paul's Tailors 3-0 Sunday in Vancouver's Kinsmen Park and regain sole possession of first place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

In the only other PCSL match of the weekend, New Westminster Blues temporarily took over the lead Saturday with a 3-1 decision over North Shore United.

Gorge Molsons, the other Victoria PCSL club, took a rest from league chores by nipping Vancouver Eldorado Glens of the Lower Mainland League in a Province Cup match Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Ash Douglas certainly earned his shutout. He made two good saves on sharp angled shots by Zanatta in the first half and made a spectacular stop on an indirect free kick taken by Alan Bristow about 30 minutes into the second half. DOouglas made a full-length dive on the shot and just managed to deflect the ball around the post with one out-stretched hand.

George Pakos opened scoring for United at the 44-minute mark on a pass from Tom Forrester.

Danny Lomas made it 2-0 only 30 seconds into the second half with a shot that bounced off a Paul's defender and into an unprotected part of the goal.

Gerry Massey, the Paul's goalie who was caught out of position by the unexpected change of direction, couldn't be faulted for any of the United fallies. Bob Bolitho came through a short time later and blasted the ball in from about 20 yards out.

About 300 fans turned out to watch the Gorge-Eldorado match and nobody went away disappointed for lack of action although scoring was confined to the first 29 minutes.

Garnet Moen gave Gorge a 1-0 lead at the five-minute mark but Eldorados tied it up 16 minutes later when Al Regan scored on a penalty shot awarded after a Victorian was called for handling the ball.

Dan Henry headed home a George Hyne cross at 29 minutes to give Gorge the winning edge.

In an interlocking match University of British Columbia Thunderbirds of the PCSL downed Khalsa of the Inter-City League 4-0 on Saturday. Cliff Avenue nipped Norburn 2-1 and Vancouver Sporting Club downed Vancouver Olympics 4-2 in Inter-City League tussles Sunday.

Ex-Mate Puts Boot to UVic

Mel Reeves' deadly accurate booting stymied his former clubmates Saturday as University of British Columbia Thunderbirds topped University of Victoria Vikings 22-3 in a Northwest Inter collegiate Rugby Conference battle at Centennial Stadium.

In second-division play on the same pitch, UVic Norsemen scuttled UBC Braves, 25-6.

Dave Kroschinsky kicked a penalty goal for Vikings, who were behind 9-3 at the intermission.

The win, fifth in a row this season for Thunderbirds, assured a first-place finish. It also earned UBC the Whitman Boot Trophy in the semi-annual competition between the two teams. Thunderbirds won the opening game 42-10 in Vancouver.

Jim Wenman paced Norsemen by kicking two conversions and three penalty goals while Mark Felmer scored two tries and Justin Harboard crossed for a single try.

Norsmen, who trailed 6-3 at half time, can clinch the second division title with victories against Oregon State University and University of Oregon later this month.

Fourteen Bowlers Qualify For Coast Fivepin Finals

Seven men and seven women qualified Sunday for the Pacific Coast fivepin championships May 19-21 at Galaxy Bowl in Abbotsford after rolling three six-game blocks at Cush's Bowl-a-Golf Spa, Town and Country Lanes and Gibson's Bowladrome.

Stan Jones topped men qualifiers by averaging 264 for a total of 4,759 while John Broste, Dennis Swonnell, Jake Jacob, Fred Hickey, Wally Weinberger and Brian Scherr followed in order.

Fran Woodruff led distaff bowlers with 4,401 (244 average) and other quallifiers were Barb Hyde, Lyn Hickey, Wendy Swonnell, Rose Davis, Minn Mann and Evie Weinberger.

Evie and Wally Weinberger relinquished their positions because of prior committments. Eighth-place finisher Ernie Moon, who was to replace Weinberger, gave up his spot to Mike Thompson, the ninth-place finisher, because of a scheduled eye operation.

Dorothy Krimmer will replace Mrs. Weinberger.

Record For Abby

QUEBEC (CP) — Abby Hoffman of Toronto, a veteran of nearly a decade of international competition, came from behind Sunday to win the 800-metre race and set a Canadian record in the process.

Miss Hoffman, 26, won in 2:06.09 bettering the previous mark of 2:07.3 by grabbing the lead from Glenda Reiser of Ottawa with 125 metres to go. Miss Reiser was second in 2:07 flat, a national junior and juvenile mark, and Brenda Walsh, Edmonton was third in 2:08.2.

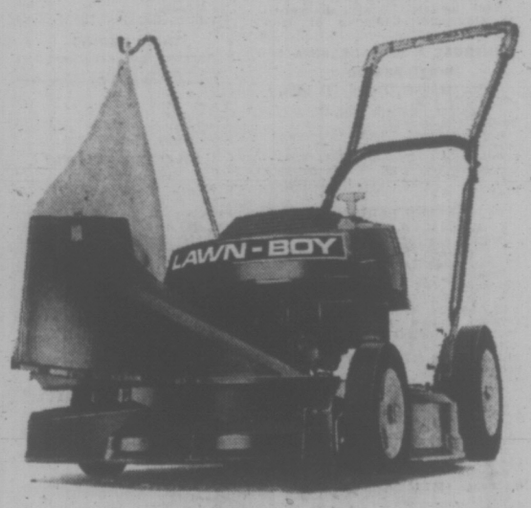
A bargain for years.



Lawn-Boy may cost a little more, but then it lasts a whole lot longer. And that means you'll be cutting your grass and expenses at the same time, every time you use it. When you consider Lawn-Boy has been known to have gone on working for up to eighteen years, that's a real bargain. You see, a Lawn-Boy is built to last. Its Magnesium alloy housing is rustproof for life and it's impossible to rust either the gas tank or engine shroud on most models. And with Lawn-Boy's famous 2-cycle engine, you can mow all the slopes and terraces you want with no risk of engine burnout.

In the years to come you'll be glad you own a Lawn-Boy for a lot of other reasons too. Like the 17 major safety features that keep Lawn-Boy the most trusted name in lawn mowers.

For fast, convenient service see the 1973 Lawn-Boys at your choice of over 1,700 dealers and take home one of the 15 newly-minted models. They come in gas-powered push, self-propelled, commercial, rider and even cordless electric.

'Discrimination in Reverse' Avoided

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The chairman of the Masters tournament committee said Saturday night that black golf professional Lee Elder will not be invited to the prestigious tournament unless he meets qualifications that other American golfers also must abide by.

Clifford Roberts, chairman of the annual classic since its beginning in 1934, said to give Elder an invitation without his meeting the standards "would be practicing discrimination in reverse."

Rep. Herman Badillo, (D—N.Y.), headed a group of 18 congressmen earlier Saturday in urging Roberts to send an invitation to Elder. They drafted a letter which said that "although there are relatively few black professionals on the PGA tour, Mr. Lee Elder stands out as the most prominent and worthy of an invitation to the Masters."

The congressmen said Roberts' expressions of "disappointment that no black American player has qualified under the Masters' qualificational regulations" is a form of "subtle discrimination" which "taints the image" of the Masters.

"We feel certain someone has misinformed the distinguished lawmakers because there is not and never has been discrimination, subtle or otherwise," Roberts said in a lengthy statement released in Augusta. The Masters begins April 5 at the Augusta National Golf Club.

Roberts said the congressmen wanted the Masters to depart from the "long-established qualificational regulations and arbitrarily invite Mr. Lee Elder" to play in the tournament.

"More over, to invite Mr. Elder without his having qualified by personal achievement would be practicing discrimination in reverse," Roberts said.

"We refuse to believe that men in the leadership position as congressmen, after more careful reflection, would want anyone in any sport to be chosen for competition or any other basis other than the contestant's own self-developed skill," he said.

"To adopt any principal other than this would be to destroy the standards under which the Masters has operated" since 1934, Roberts said.

American professional golfers can qualify for the Masters by winning any one of the PGA's 44 major tournaments, or by placing in the top 16 of the U.S. Open or the top eight in the PGA championship, or by being named a member of the Ryder Cup team.

Roberts said the history of professional golf is different "than our congressional friends appear to think it is." He recounted the story of John Shippen, a 16-year-old black caddy who was allowed to play in the 1896 U.S. Open despite objections by foreign professionals. Shippen took fifth place and later continued a successful golf career, Roberts said.

"The qualificational book is still open for 1973. There are two tour tournaments yet to be played. We will be more than happy to see a black player win one of these tournaments and become elibible for the Masters," Roberts said.

Haynie's Charge Overhauls Hagge

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Sandra Haynie, firing a three-under-par 69, came from behind Sunday to win the $25,000 Orange Blossom tournament of the Ladies Professional Golf Association with a 54-hole total of 216, even par on the Seminole Lake Country Club course.

She finished one stroke ahead of vetern Marlene Hagge, who shot a 74.

Haynie bogeyed the 15th hole but sank a 30-foot putt on No. 17 for what proved to be the winning margin.

Hagge birdied two of the first four holes and grabbed a two-stroke lead early in the round over Shelley Hamin, the first-round leader.

Hamlin, who shot a 75, wound up in a tie at 217 with Susie Berning, Jo Ann Prentice and Betty Burfeindt for third place. Berning for third place. Berning shot a 68, the day's best round, Prentice had a 72, and Burfeindt 75.

Who can make you happy when you buy a car?

The Chrysler Man can.

For most people, buying a car or truck is a big investment, and happiness is having everything about the deal live up to your expectations. From the moment you step into the showroom, to the value you receive in the car you choose, to any after-sales service you may require—you naturally expect to be treated right. Believe it or not, we think the same way you do.

Simply stated, we expect our sales and service personnel to do everything they can to make you happy with your new Chrysler-built car. Our salesmen are specially schooled to help you decide on the right car for your needs. Our servicemen are factory-trained so they can diagnose and correct any problem that might develop in on-the-road operation. Most importantly, however, they have the right attitude. They want you to be happy.

All of our people know we're running this ad, and we think everyone can live up to your expectations (and ours). All we need now is the opportunity to prove that the Chrysler man can.

Blues Square Series; Stockers Swept Aside

The Vancouver Island Hockey League's playoff for the Colony Cup is shaping up as a rousing one, and Victoria Stockers are wishing they could have said the same thing about the Island intermediate final.

Stockers, Victoria Intermediate League champs, were brushed aside easily by Port Alberni Labatts, who swept the best-of-three Island final in two straight following a 12-4 Saturday night victory in Port Alberni. Labs won the opener 9-3 Friday.

Port Alberni now will meet Prince George Mohawks in the Coy Cup playofff for the B.C. championship. The Cariboo champs defeated Dawson Creek Canucks 7-6 Saturday to complete a sweep of their series.

Rick Johnston and Bob Mayer each scored three goals to spark Labatts. Selby Statz and Jim McLachlan each counted two while Darcy Ryan and Greg Aines added singles.

Roger Thompson, with two, Bill Gidden and Bob Martin scored for Stockers.

At Chemainus, Blues deadlocked the best-of-five Colony Cup series 1-1, but not before working overtime for the second straight night. Wayne Anderson's goal at 6:32 of the 10-minute overtime period provided Blues with an 8-7 victory over Esquimalt Butler Brothers before a capacity crowd at Fuller Lake Arena.

The third game will be played Friday night at the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Dave Griff, who counted all three Blues' goals Friday, turned in another three-goal effort Saturday. Anderson counted twice while singles went to Lou Shreenan, Bill Woodruff and Randy McLeod.

WESTERN CLUBS BUSY SIGNING EAST STARS

Western Lacrosse Association clubs have picked up a pair of Ontario's best young players. New Westminster Salmonbellies have announced the signing of Sandy Lynch, 22, the Eastern Association's runnerup for rookie-of-the-year honors while playing with Peterborough Lakers last season. Vancouver Burrards signed Pat Differ, 21, whose 48 goals and 73 assists for Missassauga PCO placed him second in Ontario Junior League scoring last year.

Caps Rule Coast

Juan de Fuca Gulls will have to settle for a league championship after Nor'West Caps of Vancouver swept a best-of-three playoff for the Pacific Coast junior "B" hockey title in two straight.

The well-coached Caps tacked an 8-4 Saturday victory onto Friday's 13-0 romp to advance to the next plateau of the provincial playoffs.

Cap centre Stu Ostlund scored three goals and three assists for a second straight game to again spark the winners. Bob Windatt and Keith Tindle each added a pair while Don Harrison scored once.

Ed Nichols, Barry and Brian McLachlan and Bruce Armitage connected for Gulls, who topped the South Island League in its first season of operation.

Big and balanced, Caps fired 60 shots at Gull goalies Kelly Hunter and Mike Waberski while Juan de Fuca managed 31 drives at Andy Mempel. The over-worked Hunter stopped 46 shots before giving way to Waberski midway in the final period.

St. Mike's Edged

VANCOUVER — St. George's of Vancouver nipped St. Michael's University School of Victoria 12-10 in a first-division Independent Schools Rugby League match Saturday.

Jack Locke scored two trys to pace St. George's to a 12-3 half-time lead while Alan Howard scored all of University School points after the break with a try and two penalty goals.

In other matches, St. George's collected wins in the seconds (23-6) and senior colts (9-3) matches but lost a junior colts match in Victoria 27-3.

Optimists Bow To Individuals

Individual Dry Cleaners of the Vancouver Island Midget Girls' Ice Hockey League nipped Victoria Optimists, a bantam club, 3-2 Sunday in an exhibition game at Juan de Fuca Arena.

In peewee exhibitions, Ocean Express topped North Shore Red Barons 3-1 but bowed to North Shore Bluebells 1-0 while Esquimalt Lions nipped Bluebells 3-2 and dropped a 2-0 decision to Red Barons.

Suffering with hemorrhoids for even five minutes can be five minutes too long.

However, if you've put up with hemorrhoid pain on and off for several years now, new Anusol Plus is here to bring you some long overdue relief.

First it contains an anaesthetic ingredient. This numbs the maddening itch of hemorrhoids. It cools that searing, burning sensation. And it eases away even severe hemorrhoid pain. And, while it does all this almost as soon as you apply it, the relief it gives will last for hours.

Then, once the pain is looked after, new Anusol Plus does several things to help your hemorroids heal.

And two antiseptic ingredients help to curb infection.

What's more, Anusol Plus comes in a silky smooth cream form. So it goes on gently, without adding to your suffering.

When new Anusol Plus looks after hemorrhoid symptoms this well, don't you think it's time that you tried it? Sold at pharmacies only, in cream or suppository, ask for new Anusol Plus. It's the hemorrhoid medication that says you've suffered long enough.

Canadian Union Signs CP Rail

TRAIL (CP) — Employees of CP Rail here have voted to join an all-Canadian union, the Transportation Employees Canadian Union (TECU), which was formed in 1971 in London, Ontario.

The 62 CP Rail employees here now are represented by the United Transportation Union, which has about 25,000 members across Canada.

An organizer of the new union, Mark Parkins of Fruitvale says the union must sign up workers at all rail terminals across Canada before it can seek certification as bargaining agent from the federal labor relations board.

He says that so far about three thousand CP and Canadian National Railway employees at 21 terminals have joined the new union.

There are some 150,000 railway workers across Canada, represented by 16 international unions.

The TECU wants to represent firemen, yardmen, engineers, carmen, maintenance of way men, wipers in the shop and railway clerks.

b.c. briefs

Members to Choose

CRANBROOK (CP) — The Social Credit constitution will likely be changed at next weekend's convention to allow rank-and-file members to choose a new leader, party caucus chairman Newell Morrison said here.

Morrison told a party fund-raising dinner that under the constitution as it now stands, a new leader to replace opposition leader W. A. C. Bennett would be chosen by the caucus.

Tribute to Skater

Victim Identified

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have identified a young man, found shot in a sports car, as Ernest David Flamonde, 21, of Vancouver. Flamonde, shot several times in the head, was found in a car in a warehouse section of the city. The body was discovered by a watchman.

Nursing Shortage

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frances McDonald, personnel officer for the Registered Nurses Association of British Columbia, said recruitment of out-of-province nurses and refresher courses for former practising nurses should ease anticipated summer staffing problems in B.C. hospitals. She said hospitals reported 172 general staff position vacancies in January.

Cowboys 'Slaughtering Bears'

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — Regional wildlife biologist Harold Mitchell has accused cowboys on a Cariboo country ranch of slaughtering bears on the pretext of protecting cattle.

Gang Ranch, the largest in North America with more than a million acres under its control, is about 60 miles southwest of here.

Mitchell said he has "reliable information" that ranch employees kill, on the average, seven bears a year, of which three are grizzlies.

B.C. and the Yukon have practically all the continent's grizzly population, while only a few remain in U.S. national parks.

"Our information is that the ranch employees will shoot the bears whether they are doing damage or not," said Mitchell.

"I've heard that the bounty they receive is $50 for a grizzly and $25 or a new pair of boots for a black bear," he said.

The wildlife officer said he had examined cattle the ranch reported were killed by bears and the livestock couldn't have been killed by bears because they didn't have a mark on them.

Siodwell denied paying a bounty for killing bears but Christopher Kind, a Clinton resident who worked for Gang Ranch for five years, said he knew of three men who were paid a bounty by the ranch to kill bears.

"I know they've killed a lot of bears on the ranch, and yearling bears too. Yet I've never heard of a yearling bear killing healthy cattle," Kind said.

"Bears often feed on cattle that have died of other causes and then the ranch claim the bear killed the cattle. The only rest the bears get on the ranch is when they go into hibernation," he said.

Ted (Chilco) Choate, who runs a guiding and outfitting business in the centre of Gang Ranch property, said bears do kill cattle but not in the numbers the ranch claims.

Kind and Choate said ranch employees killed a herd of wild horses a few years ago because they were feeding on cattle range.

Sidwell admitted the ranch had trouble with horses but would not comment on the subject.

He said his men kill only bears that attack cattle or feed on calves.

"I don't want the bears to become extinct but I do want to reduce them so they don't eat so much beef," Sidwell said.

PLANE INTERCEPTION SIMPLIFIED

TOKYO (Reuter) — International pilots agreed today to establish a new system for dealing with aircraft interceptions, a move prompted by last month's shooting down of a Libyan airliner by Israeli jets.

The annual conference of the International Federation of Airline Pilots Association (IFALPA), which has been meeting here since last Tuesday, issued a statement saying a committee would propose "simplification and standardization" of international challenge and recognition signals for aircraft interception.

The statement said that at present these signals "vary all over the world and are archaic and complicated."

The Libyan Boeing 727 airliner crashed while attempting an emergency landing in the Israeli-occupied Sinai Desert after being shot at by intercepting Israeli jets when it strayed off course. All but five of the airliners' 113 passengers and crew died.

The pilot of one of the Israeli fighters has said he fired warning shots at the aircraft after its French pilot did not obey signals to land immediately.

Valley Doomed -Economist

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of B.C. agricultural economist says the proposed provincial Land Commission Act won't save Fraser Valley farmland.

Dr. Peter Arcus said the proposed B.C. Land Commission will inevitably find itself in the same position as municipal zoning bodies — forced to rezone farmland to permit urban uses for a growing population.

"I just don't see the commission standing up under all that pressure indefinitely," Arcus said in an interview.

"There is no zoning authority that has ever existed in the past that has been able to accomplish the goal (of freezing farmland). The best that the commission will do is slow down the growth and make it proceed in an orderly fashion."

Arcus said he favors passage of Bill 42 — which would establish a five-man commission to designate farmland and other open space anywhere in the province — Because it would stop the "higgeldy-Piggeldy type of growth that you get with 80 conflicting authorities, as you have in Fraser Valley."

He declined to estimate how long it would take for Fraser Valley farland to be consumed, but said the annual rate of loss is bound to be less than the 1 per cent at present. He said the present rate would use up all the farmland in 80-to-100 years.

Under the commission, he said, pressure for rezoning of agricultural land will be greatest near established urban areas.

The Jeep Wagoneer is one of the largest selling vehicles in its class—and for some very good reasons. If you want power, the Wagoneer has it to spare. A 258 CID 6 is standard. The optional 360 CID V-8 comes with either 2 or 4 barrel carburetion. Transmissions? A full-synchro 3-speed is standard equipment. Or you can choose between the optional 4-speed manual or 3-speed automatic transmission. And, of course, rugged Jeep 4-wheel drive is standard on every Jeep Wagoneer, so you can keep going on those snow-covered back roads.

But when it comes to luxury, the '73 Jeep Wagoneer really shines. This year, Wagoneer interiors, newly styled instrument panel and steering wheel add to your driving enjoyment. A full line of comfort options, including air-conditioning, power brakes, and power steering, are available as well.

And speaking of comfort, the deals we're making on '73 Jeep Wagoneers are really easy to live with. So see us today and test drive the Wagoneer. It's one vehicle that takes luxury to the out of doors.

A Man in the Woods Building a Monument

Some winters ago, en route to the California desert, we visited San Simeon, the monstrosity willed to the state by William Randolph Hearst, and marvelled at the evidence of the man's fixation with the place.

If someone then had suggested that one day I'd be as single-mindedly absorbed in a mammoth project of my own I'd have responded with at least a small hoot of derision.

One of Hearst's several biographers suggests that the old man began to ship back entire Moorish mosques and parts of Spanish cathedrals and complete Scottish castles and God knows what else as a last desperate bid for immortality. Frankly, I doubt it. I think he just got carried away with a compulsive idea and, as things have turned out I sympathize with it entirely.

My own fixation is so out of character for a man of my well-known sloth that I hate to test your credulity with it. In its own, though unextravagant way, it is just as gargantuan in concept as San Simeon and I'm sure if I'd a biographer he'd be convinced that I was just as eccentric as Hearst.

My project is the Scott Do-It-Yourself National Park, the single-handed creation of six acres of loveliness hued from the primeval forest, a project fully 20 years in the making and with fully 20 years to go.

It began the very first year that we moved to Salt Spring Island in pursuit of the impossible dream of a complete escape from the rat-race, a dream that's been interrupted fully a dozen times since by the crass need to make a living.

In that first year one of our weekend guests was a forester. He paled visibly as we drove through the property and later took me gently by the arm, walked me back up the road and hacked a path into the tangled undergrowth.

Until then I'd been an unquestioning admirer of Nature's magnificent chaos in our back yard. There were great firs and cedars and maple and arbutus raising their proud heads from an almost impenetrable jungle of smaller stuff. Yet here was an expert telling me that most of it had to go, not merely for cosmetic reasons, but for the health of my woods.

For the first time I actually saw the grey, struggling little pines, fighting for sun, rain and survival, the good little firs being suffocated in clumps of alder, the mass of deadwood and brush that was throttling the nobler growth. This tree would have to go, the forester said, and that tree, and that grove of undernourished cedar and that crowd of whip-like alder and that ancient maple that's so beautiful, but in its dotage.

He loosed a few deft blows with an axe and suddenly I could see it all, the Scott Do-It-Yourself National Park with leafy trails under the canopy of boughs, the forest floor cleared, the copper-and-olive tracery of the arbutus bared to full view, the decay cleared out to make way for the new and stately monarchs of the forest.

My reaction must have been pretty much the same as Hearst's when he first conceived his plan for San Simeon. William Randolph went rushing off to Europe with his cheque book in his hand. I went rushing off to Mouat's hardware department for a new saw and axe and began my life-time assault on the unsuspecting woods.

We have had to leave that blessed spot many times since, have had a dozen different tenants, but always we've somehow found our way back, as we were once again this weekend, and the dream of the Do-It-Yourself National Park remains as my life's ambition.

I could not begin to describe how it's changed my thinking, how I now look at the world with the eyes of a Canadian beaver eager to gnaw at raw timber. A visit to any park, Beacon Hill, Kew Gardens or any other, and my appraising eye is busy sizing up the deadwood that will have to go.

For one year, the year when no suitable tenants appeared, I spent each weekend attacking the undergrowth with the zeal of an avenging knight and crawled back to the city in a state of exhaustion. My week-day nights were spent dreaming alternately of millions of miles of sick timber calling for back-breaking surgery or of hushed parkland that would shame the grandest English estate.

There were times when the forest seemed to be springing up faster than I could throw it back. But there were times, too, when a single falling tree would open a vista of bird-filled forest bowers to convince me I was Nature's errand-boy in a divine plan.

Since it is the place to which one day we'll retire I can see now, as Hearst must have seen with San Simeon, that I have mortgaged my life to a project, that I am well and truly hooked to an undertaking that may rank with the Pyramids and the Great Wall of China as one of the world's monuments to man's insatiable yearning to leave his mark.

Call It Kitesmanship

Gusty winds made kite-flying hard work Sunday afternoon, but that didn't stop over 300 people from registering for the fourth University of Victoria Kite Festival. The kites came in all sizes, from the 11-foot-by-15-foot giant of residence student Edmund Carter to the tiny box kite (right) of Tim Napier. Carter's kite won trophies for best over-all performance and largest kite. Napier's was disqualified because judges ruled it was so small the wind was just blowing the thread, not the kite itself.

Society Awaits Funeral Probe

The Memorial Society of B.C., beset with problems following allegations of funeral irregularities, will organize a general membership meeting in Vancouver when an investigation by the attorney-general's department is completed.

Clare Yarwood, of Victoria, society president, said today he has no indication when the investigation will be finished.

The investigation followed charges by a former employee of First Memorial Services Ltd., the society's undertaker, which included claims the firm would sometimes use the same body for as many as five services a day.

Last week, the society's executive director, Jean Mohart, and five of the 12 directors resigned in a dispute over interim arrangements made with two other undertakers, Sands Mortuary of Victoria and S. Bowell and Sons of New Westminster.

Mrs. Mohart said when these arrangements went to the board for ratification, there was a tie vote which Yarwood broke by voting against the proposal.

She charged at the weekend that the 80,000-member low-cost funeral organization has been "dictated to" by its undertaker, First Memorial Services, since 1968.

She said the North Vancouver firm insisted it alone conduct all funeral services on behalf of society members. She wanted local committees formed which would arrange funeral services with undertakers in their area.

In a statement today, Yarwood said "certain unsubstantiated allegations" have been made against First Memorial Services and the society suspended its contract with the firm "on the basis of these unsubstantiated allegations."

Since then "many confusing and contradictory public statements have been made by persons purporting to speak for the society which served to upset and confuse the membership and the public at large."

The society's board had reversed its position and reinstated its contract with First Memorial pending the results of the attorney-general's department investigation.

"The board of directors wishes to apologize to First Memorial Services for its action in suspending the contract without investigation," Yarwood said.

He advised society members that those who have resigned from the board, including Mrs. Mohart, "Are no longer empowered to speak on behalf of the society."

Yarwood also said the society's board is considering requesting the attorney-general's department to appoint a trustee in the interim before the report is made.

His statement was also approved by four society board members, or five of the seven board members left after the earlier resignations.

Six Set For Vote March 31

Nominations for the March 31 aldermanic byelection in the city of Victoria closed today with six candidates, none of them newcomers.

Last to sign this morning was veteran of many contests Bill Scott, 75, a Victoria merchant who has run for alderman, mayor and MLA.

Malcolm Anderson, stockbroker, also signed papers today.

No all-candidate meetings have been set.

Gov't Backs Plans For Island Promotion

The provincial government is encouraging formation of a new organization to co-ordinate tourist and industrial promotion on the Island, Vancouver Island chambers of commerce were told today.

The new body would apply for provincial government grants and make a levy on all six Island regional districts to finance all tourist promotion and to organize economic development.

Joseph Garner of Nanaimo, chairman of a chamber of commerce committee on industrial development, said the proposal has been supported by provincial ministers of trade and commerce and municipal affairs.

In a report prepared for the annual convention of Island chambers of commerce, under way today at The Empress, his committee recommended establishment of The Economic Development and Planning Committee of Vancouver Island.

REGIONAL FUNDS

In a proposed budget, presented with the report, the chamber committee foresaw income from the six regional districts in the first year of $230,563. Additional funds would be sought from the provincial government.

Most of the funds, some $145,000, would be spent on tourist promotion. Another $20,000 would be available for trade fairs and brochures.

The new body would be controlled by a 25-member executive, consisting of 18 representatives from regional districts, six from Island chambers of commerce and a full time paid manager, according to the proposal.

Up to $20,000 would be set aside for annual salary for the full-time manager.

Chamber delegates were to discuss the report later in the two-day convention which concludes Tuesday.

The report says: "It is felt that inclusion of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau and Tourist Bureau operations with the proposed operations of the Economic Development and Planning Committee would provide a clearing ground for matters of tourism and publicity.

PLEAS FOR SUPPORT

"Insofar as financing at the local tourist bureau level is concerned, it is fairly obvious that most bureaus experience local financing problems.

"Vancouver Island publicity bureau's continuing problem is financial. It should not be necessary for this voluntary organization to have to plead each year with the chambers of commerce and municipal councils for very modest suggested assessments in toto, in turn, obtain the 60-40 matching grant for the advertising program."

Each year the Island tourist bureau goes out on a limb by planning programs without knowing what grants, if any, would be forthcoming, the report says.

While the main portion of the budget would be directed towards the Island tourist industry, more could be done in other fields if grants are forthcoming from the provincial government.

A primary purpose of the new committee would be to develop an economic blueprint for Vancouver Island.

New Ice Rink —With Help

Modification of a Surrey arena design could give Saanich a new ice surface for less than $300,000 with federal and provincial grants, Ald. Fred Severson said today.

The alderman, indoor recreation chairman, said a proposal along this line will be considered by the next meeting of his committee April 3.

Meanwhile, he said municipal staff will be asked to make proposals based upon the second of three ice surfaces built by Surrey municipality within the past 10 years.

Severson, recreation manager Bill Young and Pearkes Arena maintenance manager Rob Campbell toured four mainland arenas Thursday, three of them in Surrey, the fourth in South Delta.

"We were most impressed with what we saw," the alderman said.

"We got all the information we need. We could remodel the Cloverdale one and come up with one heck of a fine arena — that is a plan we could do something with."

Severson said the building has no frills, was opened last October and cost about $450,000. It has steel-clad exterior, with an ice surface 85 by 185 feet — 15 feet shorter than what Saanich would require, Severson said.

But there is seating for 350 persons and attached dressing rooms and office space which would suit Saanich, although Severson felt the dressing rooms could be consolidated into the main building and a lobby area separated from the ice area.

A more costly arena in Newton is being built by Surrey municipality with full-size ice surface, separate lobby with windows looking through to the ice, cedar shakes and siding and minimal seating. Due to open soon, the project cost about $600,000.

In North Surrey the party saw a full-size arena erected about 10 years ago at a cost of more than $1 million, cantilever design and seating for nearly 2,000 persons. But the alderman said some aspects of it had become obsolete.

The fourth institution opened last September at a cost of more than $800,000. This one gives South Delta a skating rink plus four sheets of curling ice and a community centre - auditorium adjoining. Facilities are minimal.

Severson hopes detailed information would be available to the public before a referendum likely to take place in the fall.

'PARADE' MUST STOP

A B.C. Supreme Court hearing of an application for an injunction to stop pickets at a Gorge Road East construction site was adjourned this morning until 10 a.m. Thursday, by Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton.

Three companies, J. E. J. Butler and Co. Ltd., Citation Estates Ltd., and Garden City Motel Ltd., represented by J. S. de Villiers have applied for an injunction against the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 1598, and President John Schibli, represented by Louis Lindholm.

They claim that unknown men have been carrying placards and picketing the site at 310 Gorge Rd. East since March 5, and that the picket lines are being respected by certain trade union members working on the project.

Wootton ordered the adjournment on the condition that "this parading will cease" until the matter has been settled.

Lindholm told the court he had become involved in the case only today and requested the adjournment to get "sufficient instructions" from his clients.

Two people have been at the site on "intermittent occasions" carrying placards, said Lindholm.

Wicker Mementoes Fetch $2 a Piece

Wicker armchairs that once lined the ballrooms of the Crystal Garden sold for around $2 each Saturday at Lund's Auctioneers.

Auctioneer Frank Davies said he was surprised the 50 chairs went for that much, as they were in bad condition.

City purchasing agent Gerry Sharpe said they had not been included with other material auctioned off last year when the building was abandoned because they were considered worthless.

Last Winter Storm Whips Coast

Winter had a last lick at the B.C. coastline Sunday, lashing it with a storm that snarled ferry and air services, flattened power poles and severely injured a seaman.

The storm began gathering fury Saturday, reaching a peak of 35 miles an hour at 9 p.m., gusting to 54. Another storm is on its way and expected to hit Tuesday night a few hours after the Spring equinox.

Sunday it began to build again at noon and by 3 p.m. the southeasterlies were hitting 40 miles an hour, gusting to 60.

Aboard the freighter Asteri, 700 miles out to sea Sunday, a seaman was hurled against the ship's superstructure by a huge wave and is believed to be suffering severe internal injuries.

Today the Asteri is steaming as fast as she can toward land. Also moving in her direction is the Soviet ship Ussurijsk with a doctor aboard.

A rescue helicopter of the 442 squadron at CFB Comox is standing by.

A spokesman at the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said today if the two ships do not converge before the Asteri is within 100 miles of shore, the helicopter and an escort craft will fly out to the ship and pick up the stricken seaman.

At the height of Sunday's storm the 12:30, 2:30 and 4:30 ferry trips from Fulford Harbor on Salt Spring Island had to be cancelled. The afternoon run of the B.C. Ferries' Mill Bay vessel was also wiped out.

Cars were backed up well along the Pat Bay Highway Sunday afternoon as motorists travelling to the mainland tried to get home early in case sailings were cancelled.

One crossing between Swartz Bay and the mainland fell victim to the storm.

Because she is operating on only three engines the Queen of Victoria did not leave the Twawwassen terminal at 4 p.m., thus eliminating the 6 p.m. sailing from Swartz Bay.

A B.C. Ferries' official said today it would have been "too dicey" to send her out in the wind-whipped Strait of Georgia with only three engines in use.

To take care of those left behind an extra sailing was put on from Swartz Bay at 11:25 p.m.

Air Canada's DC-9 flight from Vancouver, which arrives here 11:15 p.m., was cancelled.

An Air Canada official said the plane "came over and took a look but there was just too much of a cross-wind to land so she went back."

A Viscount aircraft brought the passengers over about 3 a.m. today.

Victoria Flying Services Ltd. had to cancel its 4 p.m. flight out of the Inner Harbor because the rough waters could have damaged the float plane.

The high winds toppled a limb on Dolphin Road on the northern end of Saanich Peninsula, cutting off power to Goudge and Coal Islands.

About 10 p.m. Saturday a big snag fell on Wains Cross Road, knocking out power for about four hours.

The RCMP at Port Alberni said 25 inches of snow fell on the highway between Port Alberni and Ucluelet while at Tofino there was a dumping of four inches.

Daycare Standards 'Need Redefinition'

VANCOUVER (CP) — United Community Services of Vancouver has released a 12-month study calling for a re-defining of standards for daycare.

Current standards do not consider such things as the cost implications of expensive toys or the problem of arranging one toilet for every 10 children, the report says.

As a consequence, people who need to make use of daycare facilities "constantly make trade-offs between quality and cost," the study says.

Two major steps are considered by the UCS study as vital to solving the current shortage of centres: Encouragement of innovation in the provision of facilities; and an increase in staff-training opportunities.

Quickest Way to Rob Life of Joy Is to Live in Everlasting Hurry

elizabeth forbes

Someone asked me recently if I remembered writing a column a long time ago about a woman who believed there was nothing so vastly important on this earth that it needed a stopwatch kept on it.

With all the hustle and bustle in our lives today, the person who spoke of that column thought it would bear repeating.

At the time I didn't think much of the "repeat" idea. But, the other day, when I was looking through my files, I came across the column And it seemed to fit so well into our crowded lives today, I've decided to reprint some of it.

The column, written almost 10 years ago, was about a long-time friend, then entering her twilight years, who had evolved a way of life that gave her time to listen and to understand many things.

Her motto, expressed over and over again, was that the thing that took most of the joy out of life, was hurry.

It wasn't lack of money, she would say, or not being able to take a trip to Hawaii or Mexico, that soured our days or curdled our years. It was the everlasting hurry that rode on our shoulders and led us into nightmare schedules that would not resolve at our bidding.

People tore from here to there and from this to that, she pointed out, always fearful of not getting an assigned task done on time.

"There is little reason to hurry in this life," she would say, "we have all the time there is. We are living in eternity as much as we ever shall be."

Then she would reaffirm her belief — "To have the passing of time forever on our minds is the quick way to old age, wrinkles, foggy thinking and troubled hearts."

Who devised the idea of hours and days and months and moments, she would ask. Then quickly answer her own question. It was man, not nature.

When we were well indoctrinated, when the fiction was pretty generally accepted, things in this world became "chores," instead of pleasures and the word "hurry" was born in every tongue and language.

Throughout the ages, this slavery continued, and would continue, she believed, until some person (genius, she said), "freed life from its infernal schedule and we live as we were meant to live."

Don't for a minute think my friend had not lived by the code she prescribed. Her home life was run, and always had been, on a leisurely schedule.

When her children were young and there was not too much money, she was never impatient, never hurried. She never appeared harassed. There was always time to guide, lead and have fun with them.

Those children are now grown men and women. In turn, they strive to withstand today's pressures and to inculcate in their sons and daughters — and their grandchildren — the belief that "hurry" is the bugbear of our age.

The code their mother lived by has become their own.

Today, my friend is well into her nineties. When I saw her last, a little over a year ago, she was living quietly, surrounded by treasures gathered over the years, all priceless to her because they brought back happy memories.

That day she again said to me that living is a journey and that it should be a leisurely one with plenty of stopovers at those places where we loved — and wanted — to linger.

If she had her way, she said, the speed limit would be reversed, the best driver would be the slowest, and a medal would go to the one who could teach us how to disregard that word "hurry."

"After all, what's all the rush about?" she still wanted to know.

Good Compost Heap No Health Threat

it's our environment

By THE ENVIRONMENTAL CENTRE Of Greater Victoria

We've done our best to encourage home gardeners to recycle garden wastes and kitchen scraps in compost piles. And we've recommended the finished compost as an excellent soil conditioner and fertilizer. But there are certain rules to composting that must be followed.

QUESTION: I saw a problem last summer that I can't get off my mind. I smelled a terrible stench coming from behind a hamburger stand near a park we often visit. Upon inspection, I found an old box of maggot-infested garbage and meat scraps there. When I inquired at the hamburger stand, the man there proudly announced that it was "the compost heap." Can you do something about this? There are probably other disgusting middens around here that go by the name of compost heaps. — M. O.

ANSWER: That wasn't a compost heap — it was a health menace. Perhaps we can help by reminding our readers to take better care of their compost heaps.

As we've pointed out before, properly operating compost piles are neither smelly nor unsanitary. And they can handle about any type of organic waste.

But our first rule is to keep all meat scraps, fat and bones out of the compost because these wastes attract rats, dogs, cats and other pests including the fly larvae you observed last summer. Even vegetable scraps such as potato peelings and grapefruit rinds can get pretty foul if they're not kept covered. We advise gardeners to keep some soil and a shovel near the compost pile with which to cover the scraps.

It is messes such as the one you saw behind the hamburger stand which causes local governments to enact by-laws against compost piles. But if we're all careful with our compost there should be no complaints — and no reason for complaints.

Kitchen garbage also may be buried in the garden so long as it is covered with 6 inches of earth. Perhaps it would be a good idea if compost piles elsewhere were treated as if they were extra-legal operations that neighbours shouldn't notice.

Persons new to composting should get a copy of the booklet by Times garden expert Jack and Hilda Beastall and Project Recycle which gives a thorough explanation of the process. The booklet is available for only 10 cents at the Recycling Depot, Borden at McKenzie. It explains everything one needs to know to keep a valuable and nuisance-free compost pile in the back yard.

QUESTION: Cannot something be doneabout a very annoying form of visual pollution which is perpetuated weekly by many business firms on the householders of the Greater Victoria area? I'm referring to the practice of throwing advertising paper on our porches, steps and sidewalks. When it is windy, these papers blow along streets into shrubbery and make the whole district look untidy. Another thing that we find to be a great annoyance — we can stop mail, newspaper and milk deliveries while we're on holiday, but a glaring sign of an absente resident is the stack of litter on and around the steps of a home. We have no defence against that while away. — Mrs. C. C. G.

ANSWER: We've noticed this problem, too, and so have municipal authorities. Your best defense might be the merchants who advertise thus. The last thing they want to do is make you, a potential customer, angry. Complaints directed to the managers of the firms involved might help.

We understand you've complained both to Saanich police and to the people who deliver the advertising materials. A few words to the delivery person, explaining that you want the papers in your mail box, should be sufficient. But if that fails, you might take your case to the Saanich business license department.

If the department were to receive a number of complaints, it would have to ask the advertisers to be more careful with their papers.

Municipal officials tell us they've lodged such complaints in the past with considerable effectiveness. Most of the carriers are more careful now, they say, and few complaints have been received in recent months. Officials realize that many householders do not use the advertising material that comes unsolicited.

Holidays can be a problem, as you point out. About the best we can suggest is to have a neighbor or friend keep your porch and mail box clear of advertising material while you're away.

If you have a question about any subject involving our environment, we'd like to hear from you. We'd especially like to hear from readers with recipes for special kinds of home-made soap such as scented bath soap. The address is It's Our Environment, Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas Street, Victoria.

Trying for a Touchdown

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a husband who constantly complains that he doesn't get enough loving, but when his wife lets him know she's in the mood, he turns her down to watch a football game.

Should I take it lying down (excuse the pun), or should I go out and find myself another man? — On the Verge.

DEAR VERGE: Obviously there is nothing to take — lying down or otherwise. Next time he complains kick him in the end zone!

DEAR ABBY: The other day my wife asked me if I minded if she went to a night club with some girls. (The night club is a respectable place.)

I asked her who "the grls" were, and she told me that one was a single co-worker who was entertaining her sister from out of town, and the other was a married woman who is known in every motel in town as "Mrs. John Smith."

I told my wife I didn't mind her going out, but I did not think it would be good for her reputation to be seen in the company of this "Mrs. John Smith." My wife admitted the woman's reputation was not the best, but she said was a "lot of fun, good company," etc., and then started quoting the Scriptures. (She's pretty good at that.) So I heard all about how Jesus cavorted with thieves and prostitutes, forgave seven times seven, and about judging not lest ye be judged.

I ended the discussion by saying she could go if she wanted to, but I thought she had a duty to her husband and children to keep her reputation free from scandal. Was I wrong? — Her Husband

DEAR HUSBAND: No. But you missed an opportunity to quote a bit of Scripture yourself: "Abstain from all appearance of evil." (New Testament, I Thessalonians, 5:22.)

If you are planning to give the man in your life an electric shaver, you will want to know the different types available and how they work.

Although you will find there is a large choice of electric shavers, there are only three basic types: fixed head back and forth action; floating head rotary action and flexible foil and head reciprocating action. Most manufacturers concentrate on only one type.

The three-page So You're Giving Him an Electric Shaver points out that a man who has been used to shaving with a brush, may need up to two weeks to get used to an electric shaver.

You will also learn that the fixed-head type offers a high degree of comfort but is not noted for very close shaves.

As a rule, the rotary action type offers comfort and quiet, but its efficiency varies with the kind of beard.

The flexible foil reciprocating type is reputed to be fast and close shaving, but some older models have caused skin irritations.

One of every four shavers now sold is rechargeable. This extra feature is usually worth the additional cost. And if the gent for whom you buy the shaver, often travels abroad, buy him a shaver with dual voltage.

Send your request together with return postage and your name and address written in block letters to: Consumer Counsellor, Schick (Canada) Ltd., 795 Pharmacy Avenue, Scarborough, Ontario. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, March 20
BY SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Recognition could come in form of publicity or notoriety — choice is your own. There is pressure but you are able to ride with tide. Accent is on marriage, special agreement, public relations. Present case — stick to it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Professional superior presents you with task which tests abilities. Utilize experience. Don't overlook basics. Emphasis is on health and work. Strive for balance. Associate may make radical move. Don't permit this to deter you from your own course.

Seniors Make Radio Comeback family

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Elizabeth Hurst has devised a unique means of getting residents of area old-peoples' homes involved in their own entertainment activities.

Liz, one of 10 young people using the financial assistance of a federal Local Initiatives Program LIP grant, has organized the production of radio dramas by residents of some of the homes.

Miss Hurst previously had done live productions with old folks under a similar LIP-funded project last fall, but found that it was often "very hard for them to remember lines."

However the presence here of Wired World, a community radio station currently using the facilities of CHYM-FM for its once-a-week broadcasts but scheduled to go into full-time transmission later this year with its own FM frequency, gave Miss Hurst the idea for doing radio plays.

While the LIP program, Project Sage, covers 15 homes in the area Miss Hurst carries out her radio drama program in only three of them.

"When I started out I thought that I could work in for or five, but the work involved was just too much," she said in an interview.

"You see, I can't just go to the library and phostat a play. Many of these old people can't read the ordinary print so I have to type the plays out in big print, double space them and then photocopy it all."

Most of the people she works with are in their late 60s, 70s or 80s, although one group that recorded a mystery play at the Wired World studios came from a home providing psychiatric care and some of them are younger.

While she would like to "encourage them to motivate themselves and not rely on me, . . . their life-style isn't geared to it.

"I'm finding I pretty well have to work on an individual basis with them in order for the program to be worthwhile at all."

Mainly, she sees the program as "an excuse to get them talking and associating with each other.

"If they didn't have this, they would just sort of sit around all day and watch TV, or just sit. It's really a very stagnant life they have in these homes."

Her work has been a balance of satisfactions and frustrations.

"The main satisfaction is that I've got to know some of these people personally and made a lot of friends. I've learned things, too, that if I hadn't taken the job I'd be completely unaware of. It's given me insight into what can happen when you get older and it's very scary."

KEEPING TRADITION, Ruth Grant, 18, of Pembroke, Ont., is first girl to be enrolled in the watchmaking course at George Brown College in Toronto. Both her father and grandfather were watchmakers.

Half-Time Retrospective Needed To Trace Weight-Loss Hangups

This is the twelfth in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of Why Grow Old? and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.

Beauty Improvement Plan BY Josephine Lowman

How is it going out there? Have the seams stopped screaming and have you started beaming? This is the fifth week of my eight-week Beauty Improvement Plan (Bip for short). You who started at the beginning are almost at the halfway mark and should be enjoying a little preview of lovely things to come. Have you lost as much as you thought you wiuld and are your measurements beginning to come into line?

If you have not accomplished as much as you wanted to, do not be discouraged. Some people lose more rapidly than others. However, it is a good idea to look back at this time to discover any other reasons for your failure. Did you consume more than your allowable calories during the weekends? Were snacks while watching television your downfall? Change whatever is necessary.

This is the time when some of you may be discouraged because you lost successfully at first and now have come to a standstill. This is an expected part of a reducing program. Continue counting calories and the scales will soon give you the happy news again. I just cannot stand the idea that any of you who began with such good intentions should drop by the wayside!!

Women always want to know how to divide the calories. Let's start with "Do not skip a meal!" This causes fatigue and you will more than make up for it at other times. If you are a natural nibbler you may wish to divide your calories into five or six smaller meals a day. Some women find this more satisfactory psychologically as well as physically.

Fairly recent studies indicate that the smaller, more frequent meals discourage the formation of fat. Divide the calories in the manner which is most pleasant to you. Be sure that you do not go over the amount of food allowed and that you are getting all of the important nutrients.

In order to give you dieters a lift and help you reinforce your determination if it should be weakening I am bringing you some tricks which will trick the pounds.

Serve the plates in the kitchen and ask your family to go to the kitchen if they wish to have second helpings. I am sure they will be glad to do this. This is easier than having the food on the table staring at you.

Keep busy. If you have leisure on your hands take up some special activity during your reducing trek. It should be something which keeps you out of the house, perhaps some volunteer work.

If it is too difficult for you to watch your family eating the things you crave but cannot have, eat alone for awhile. This is helpful for a short time until your stomach becomes accustomed to smaller servings.

Take time to season your food as I have suggested. Dieting does not have to be dull.

Measure daily two teaspoons of butter or margarine to use as you wish.

Jellied or hot consomme (depending on the weather) is great in between meals and has only about 20 calories per cup.

Keep carrot and celery and cucumber sticks in the refrigerator at all times for in between nibbling. Use one of the seasoned salts with them.

Be sure to have a generous intake of proteins. We not only need these for health but they have more staying power since they take longer to digest.

Eat slowly. You will be satisfied with much less if you do.

Whip up some fat-free milk crystals to use instead of whipped cream.

Go shopping for groceries only when you have just eaten and take a list with you. Dash in and dash out as soon as you have obtained the items on the list — nothing more. Do not try new recipes while dieting.

Do not keep "goodies" in the house.

Take advantage of the diet foods. There are so many of them. Also use the no-stick pans.

It may help to tack a picture of a very much overweight woman on the refrigerator door or maybe a picture of you before you gained your overweight.

Spoil yourself in ways other than with food. Have a new permanent if you need it, or maybe a new hairdo, or buy a dress you like but is a little tight. Have frequent hair settings and manicures. Experiment with new makeup. Be as glamorous as you can while you work toward your goal. This will boost your morale.

Thousands of other women have done it and you can too! It is not too late to start Bip. There is still time to streamline before you must shop for spring clothes. Why not make it a pleasure this year?

If you have missed some of this series and would like to have the complete course, you may want my Bip Kit. This gives you all of the direction you need and a wall chart on which you can plot your progress and watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops. If you want the Bip Kit send 50 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope to Josephine Lowman in care of The Times, 2621 Douglas Street.

PUT HANDS through the loops at each end of an elastic exercise rope. Bend the elbows and bring the hands to the chest. Now straighten the arms out at shoulder level. Return to chest position and repeat ten times at first, grandually increasing. This will firm your arms.

PUT HANDS through the loops ion, hair some special attention now.

Lines Around The Mouth

The mouth area comes in for so much attention, the quicker the lines are smoothed out and made to disappear, the younger you will look. A lotion-like substance 2nd Debut applied nightly will make the lines fill in and the skin become smooth once more. You will probably use 2nd Debut on your entire face to banish dryness, but do use a little extra care around your mouth. After applying the 2nd Debut massage very lightly, until it disappears into your skin. Your drug or dept. store has 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength and you'll find it a genuine delight to use.

Pay Legislation 'Should Be NDP Priority'

Enforceable equal pay legislation should be a government priority, states the Status of Women Council in a brief presented to the provincial cabinet.

"Discrimination against women in B.C., solely on the basis of sex, is widespread in industry, service trades, the brief said.

The Vancouver-based group criticized equal pay legislation in the Human Rights Act as powerless and inadequate and made recommendations for sweeping reforms in the legislation.

Examples cited in the brief included average monthly pay for male cooks at $572, female cooks $475. The average wage of a female cashier is $450, a male $571. The operator is $405, for a male $535.

It also quoted the 1971-72 United Fisherman and Allied Workers' Union Fresh Fish and Cold Storage Master agreement as giving a male inexperienced fresh fish worker $2.80 per hour while a female worker in the same category would receive only $2.32.

Among the recommendations made by the SWC for changes are:

—Equal pay for equal work — and that concept of equal work be interpreted as work that requires the same skill, efort and responsibility.

—That complaints be investigated by the Commission and that the identity of the person laying the complaint not be disclosed.

—That persons other than the aggrieved employee be able to register a complaint on her or his behalf.

—That there be severe penalties for violations of equal pay legislation.

—That the difference in pay in back wages be awarded to the employee when an employer has been found guilty of discrimination.

Malnutrition 'Feeds Deformity'

OTTAWA (CP) — A national commitment to proper nutrition for children and pregnant women could prevent much mental retardation and physical deformity, the National Council of Welfare says in a report released today.

And the council, a citizens' advisory body to the federal welfare minister, says that as long as poverty exists, badly-nourished children of the poor will not develop as they should.

The 41-page report says Canadians on the whole subsist on diets that are lacking in nutrition.

But the more affluent, because they are able to overeat, reach a level of nutrition safety.

Poor families often bring up children who are undersized, sick, disabled and exposed to disease, the report says. Under-nutrition reduced physical and mental development of these children and deprives them of a chance to reach their full potential in life, it adds.

While good diets will not guarantee children will be automatically good or wise, they promise more equal chances for all children.

"Through commitment to sound national nutrition we can extend the rule of 'one man, one vote' to 'one child, one chance'."

Those on welfare and the working poor must spend large proportions of their money or inflexible non-food costs such as rent. This cuts into the money available for food.

The council says a $30 increasein January for a family of four receiving money under Ontario's Family Benefits Act increased the shelter allowance by $5 while the rest was assigned to all other ordinary needs, including food, clothing and utilities.

The $5 shelter increase would not come close to meeting the actual change in rent costs over the last year.

Urging provincial governments to take these factors into account, the council calls for a review of assistance plans to determine whether amounts estimated for food costs are realistic.

The report says the most important step toward ensuring adequate nutrition for all Canadians would be establishment of a guaranteed annual income to meet basic needs.

The council also recommends nutrition counselling for expectant mothers; a nationwide system of school meals for children on a federal-provincial cost-sharing basis; promotion of proper eating habits through radio and television; labelling of foods to provide nutrition information and inclusion of counselling services in community centres.

Coffee Clash Revived

BOSTON (AP) — Medical researchers are arguing anew about whether that extra cup of coffee you have today will increase your chances of developing heart disease.

A Duke University Medical Centre researcher says a recent Boston University study linking heavy coffee drinking with a high incidence of heart disease is not valid.

Dr. Siegfried Heyden, professor of community health sciences at Duke, said recently that his studies confirm earlier findings that there is no such relationship.

Heyden's study was published in a German medical journal in December, about the same time as the Boston University study appeared in the Lancet, a British medical journal.

At the time the study was published, Drs. Hershel Jick and Dennis Sloan, associate professors at the Boston Universisty Medical School, said the results of their statistical survey were preliminary and incomplete.

The first Boston study said "people drinking more than five cups of coffee per day have about twice as great a risk of having an acute myocardial infarction—heart attack—as people drinking no coffee at all."

Research Links Senility, Virus

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Senility — at any stage in life — may be an illness rather than part of the aging process, a member of the White House task force on research in gerontology said here Saturday.

Dr. Carl Eisdorfer, chairman of the department of psychiatry at the University of Washington, said recent research has linked premature senility at a virus in the brain tissue.

He spoke at a neuropsychology workshop held Saturday and Sunday at Newcombe Auditororium.

He does not agree with other authorities who claim senility and premature senility are different diseases.

He said that in the past experts had always believed that decreased flow of blood to the brain caused brain cells to die resulting in senility.

"We are not sure any more what causes senility," Eisdorfer said.

He says researchers now wonder whether the brain cells of senile patients are really dead or only dormant.

Eisdorfer says the role of cerebral blood supply in senility resembles the problem of "which came first: the chicken or the egg?"

"Does the brain die because of poor circulation or does circulation drop because part of the brain died and no longer needs as much blood?" he asked.

Eisdorfer pointed out that premature senility (before the age of 55) has never been linked to poor circulation and may be caused by a slow growing virus.

He suspects premature senility and senility are the same disease arbitrarily assigned two different names according to the age at which it occurs.

Eisdorfer says psychiatrists play this naming game all the time. "They have a different name for a disease at almost every age level," he said.

He said people need to get rid of the idea that "aging is a function of the date a person was born."

As an example, Eisdorfer described two men born on the same day. One dies at 50 and the other at 100 years of age.

"The first was 100 per cent old at 50 years of age and the second at 100 years of age," he said.

"We have in the past continually confused illness with aging."

Eisdorfer said that there is no evidence that aging in healthy people involves any intellectual decline. In fact, research now shows that verbal intelligence continues to grow throughout life.

Oil, Gas Reserves Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Petroleum and natural gas associations Sunday reported decreases in proved reserves of crude oil and natural gas for 1972, compared with the previous year.

The American Petroleum Institute, (API) estimated proved recoverable reserves of crude oil in the United States as of Dec. 31, 1972, at 36.3 billion barrels, including the North Slope of Alaska. This was a 1.7-billion-barrel decrease from the previous year.

The American Gas Association estimated proved reserves of natural gas, as of Dec. 31, 1972, at 266.1 trillion cubic feet, down by 4.6 per cent from 278.8 trillion cubic feet at the end of 1972.

Proved reserves are those known with reasonable certainty to exist and to be recoverable under existing conditions.

"Total proved reserves of natural gas are now lower than they were in 1961," said F. Donald Hart, president of the gas association, "and demand has risen by nearly 68 per cent since then."

"The gas industry is spending more than ever before to relieve this alarming shortage," he said.

The association said proved reserves of natural gas for the 50 United States have fallen during four of the last five years. In 1971, it said, total reserves went up, reflecting the first inclusion of 26 trillion cubic feet of new gas discoveries in Alaska's North Slope.

Indian Sit-Ins Win Concession

SASKATOON (CP) — A week-long occupation of the Indian-Metis Friendship Centre ended Sunday night, with members of the Saskatchewan Native Youth Movement apparently winning major concessions.

The board of directors for the friendship centre agreed to set up a steering committee consisting of nine people, including four treaty Indians and four Metis, to operate the centre until a new board of directors can be elected.

The centre had been occupied since last Sunday night when 50 Indian and Metis began the sit-in, calling for an investigation into the centre's constitution and staff-hiring methods.

The board had met with the group last Monday and accepted all demands except the new election. The protesters claimed the directors assumed office after an election in which the voters did not hold membership cards in the centre.

The board of directors and steering committee were to meet tonight with another meeting scheduled for April 3 to discuss the election. The board will not resign until a date is set for the election, but the steering committee will operate the centre in the interim.

The protesters vacated the friendship centre as soon as the agreement was reached.

HUGE STROKE BETTER THAN SMALL ONE: MD

Stroke patients do better with massive damage to one of the two hemispheres of the brain than when the injury involves a small area, a leading neuropsychologist said Saturday.

Dr. Marcel Kinsbourne, associate professor of pediatrics and neurology at Duke University Medical Centre, told an audience of more than 600 that "the worse the damage the better you do."

Kinsbourne was one of the speakers at the eighth annual neuropsychology workshop held over the weekend at Newcombe Auditorium.

He explained that the medical paradox was caused by a "dog in the manger attitude" on the part of the injured cerebral hemisphere.

In right-handed people the left cerebral hemisphere controls language and the functions of the right side of the body. The opposite is true for left-handed people.

Because of this an injury (lesion) on the left hemisphere can result in loss of speech and paralysis of the right side—a syndrome recognized since biblical times.

He said such children escape language disability because up to about 18 months of age other parts of the brain have the potential to take over activities.

But damage to either the right or left hemisphere between 18 months and five years of age will disrupt speech.

"This means that up to five years of age both hemispheres control language," Kinsbourne said. He said that language problems at this age clear up quickly because the uninjured side tales over the dominant role.

In right-handed adults, however, the damaged left hemisphere has taken control and refuses to be dethroned. Tests prove that patients can use the uninjured right hemisphere to comprehend but not to speak.

"If the lesion is smaller, the trouble in a sense is greater," Kilbourne said.

He said that such small lesions can cause "fascinating disabilities" such as the inability to recognize certain colors or faces.

Kinsbourne said that removal of the damaged hemisphere restores feeling in the paralyzed, opposite side of the body.

"The sense of touch isn't as good as it used to be, but it's not bad either," he said.

However, removal of the damaged hemisphere has some drawbacks.

Normal people, fed two different messages simultaneously, will favor the message coming in the ear opposite the dominant hemisphere, but they can also pick up most of the message coming in the other car.

This disability can cause social problems too, Kinsbourne added.

Fish Drink Like Fish

BOSTON (Reuter) — The saying that a man can "drink like a fish" may be higher praise for elbow-bending prowness than anyone ever before realized.

Recent research at two hospitals in this area indicates fish can really put away the sauce, and rise for more even though wobbling in the tank.

But like human imbibers, the fish also seem to suffer severe hangovers. The fish may even flip right out of the water.

Dr. David Ingle, a neurobiologist, has pioneered in the study of fish and alcoholism with Dr. Ralph Ryback, a psychiatrist in charge of an alcoholic unit.

Of course, the subjects — six-inch-long short-tail goldfish — were simming in what could be called a diluted cocktail, a tankful of water into which had been poured the equivalent of two dozen martinis.

INTAKE CONTROLLED

After two hours or so, the fish gave every indication of being drunk, Dr. Ingle observed. They performed intricate manoeuvres and finally showed evidence of the staggers.

Careful tests disclosed that the fish had demonstrated a capacity to "hold their liquor" that few men could equal.

The doctors found that fish which could negotiate a maze while drunk couldn't remember how to do it when sober.

But on another bender, the fish once again could clear the maze with ease. This suggested the possibility that certain memories might be sealed in the brain after drunkenness and unlocked only by a return to the bottle.

The scientists are interested in observing in a creature much less complex than man, the mechanism by which the brain becomes addicted to alcohol, and in gaining more fundamental knowledge of the structure and functon of the brain itself.

Camper Murdered In France

PELISSANE, France (AP) — A 60-year-old London professor camping with his son in a trailer beside the highway was stabbed to death near this village in southern France during the night, police reported.

The victim was Prof. John Cartland. His son Bryan, 29, received critical stab wounds and their trailer was set afire.

The crime occurred less than 40 miles from Lurs, where British nutrition expert Sir Jack Drummond, his wife and daughter were murdered in similar circumstances in 1952. Two years later a 77-year-old farmer, Gaston Dominici, was sentenced to the guillotine for the killings, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment because of his age. He was released in 1960 at the age of 83.

Dominici died five years later.

A film The Dominici Case, opened in Paris last week and is playing to packed houses. Jean Gabin plays Dominici.

Does Wash. State Hold Energy Key?

SEATTLE (AP) — The sun-drenched open spaces of Eastern Washington might hold a key to solving the energy crisis, says Dr. Hans Bethe, a Nobel prize-winning physicist.

Dr. Bethe, who is spending six months at the University of Washington, won his prize in 1967 for work on generation of energy in the sun and stars.

"I'm very much in favor of solar energy. I think earthbound solar energy makes very good sense," he said, adding that any scheme of using satellites to capture the sun's energy and send it to earth "makes no sense whatsoever."

Dr. Bethe said enormous areas are needed for an earthbound solar energy system.

He said it has been calculated that about 5,000 square miles of Arizona could be used. That area would provide all the energy for the United States about ten years from now, he said, "which is pretty good."

Dr. Bethe said the main problems are how to concentrate the energy into a very small space, then "reject" it by transferring it from the hot end to the cold end of the power plant.

The standard way to "reject" the heat is to dump it into water," he said, "but then Arizona is not such a good place; they don't have much water.

"The eastern part of the state of Washington would be much better because you have the Columbia River which has a great amount of water and which you could divert for such purposes," he said.

Dr. Bethe said storing the huge amounts of energy is another problem.

Most Will Stay

VANCOUVER (CP) — About half the remaining employees of the Crown Zellerbach mill in Ocean Falls have so far indicated they are willing to stay now that the British Columbia government is taking over the facilities, the manager of the new government operation said Sunday.

E. F. Vesak also said in a telephone interview that he has received "Quite a number of inquiries" from persons who have already left the town and now are considering a return.

The upcoast town has been dying since April, 1972, when Crown Zellerbach announced it was phasing out production there. Final closure was scheduled for March 29, but resources minister Bob Williams announced Friday that the government had purchased the facilities and will restart newsprint production.

Mr. Vesak said he was conducting employment interviews i Ocean Falls during the weekend and will continue for the next few days. He said he has had "good response, mostly among the operators and some of the tradesmen" employed in the mill.

He said he had interviewed half the remaining employees and all those interviewed expressed a willingness to remain.

The town's secondary school now is finishing its academic year — an arrangement made in anticipation of the town's closure — and Mr. Vesak said a large number of the upper grade students have indicated they would like employment. "This will help us initially," Mr. Vesak said.

Mr. Vesak said the newsprint operation will require a payroll of about 230. Employment in the mill is currently down to 140.

Currently, the mill is producing only kraft specialty paper (toilet paper and paper towels) and Mr. Vesak said one of the specialty paper machines will remain in operation until the newsprint machines can be put back in operation, which he said will probably be some time in May.

Mr. Vesak said one of the two newsprint machines could be started again before May, but there are logistical problems involved in the acquisition of raw materials, fuel and maintenance materials.

"There was a party at the Legion last (Saturday) night and somebody said it seemed like a happy place," Mr. Vesak said. "There are sure a lot more smiles around."

Cities Pushing Tri-Level Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's system of government needs substantial changes to avoid onrushing catastrophe, the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities said in a brief presented today to Prime Minister Trudeau.

"Every major urban problem is characterized by an inappropriate distribution of functional responsibilities and financial resources among the three levels of government.

"The result is a serious impediment to managerial effectiveness and efficiency of our political institutions, constraining both their responsiveness and their capability to perform."

A major theme of the brief, which was to be read by federation president, Mayor D. G. Newman of Whitby, Ont., was the need for continued tri-level consultation and municipal representation on bodies such as the Canadian transport commission.

The brief zeroed in on an apparent contradiction between the federal throne speech of October, 1970, which called for coordination among all levels of government, and the January, 1973, throne speech, which spoke only of federal-provincial consultation.

FIRST MEETING

Between the two speeches, the first tri-level conference was held in November, 1972, and produced "a documented consensus among the three levels of government in favor of the principle of continued consultation on the many problems engendered by urbanization with a view to more comprehensive solutions."

The federation asked:

"If in the fall of 1970 a 'new Canada' required the participation of all levels of government to avoid the catastrophic future that our present course dictates, then can we assume that sufficient gains were made at the first tri-level conference to justify returning the problem to bilateral solution?"

It then answered its own question by declaring that there still is an urgent need for all three levels to act together to resolve community development problems.

The governmental system suffered from outmoded political structures, antiquated organizational technology, conflicts between entrenched and insensitive bureaucracies and "the entire lack of a comprehensive national priority-setting process."

CALLS FOR STUDY

The federation called for an investigation into the whole field of taxing and spending by the three levels of government so the responsibilities of each level could be identified and each could be given the resources to meet those responsibilities.

"Today, with governments in Canada consuming 37 per cent of the GNP (gross national product), with a substantial shift in power having occurred between the federal government and the provinces, with local governments accounting for one-third of total public expenditures in Canada, with local government being confronted by sharply-escalating costs in most functions as a consequence of growing demands and urbanization, and with local tax bases incapable of sustaining the costs of these functions, it is imperative that such a review be undertaken once again.

"But this time, for the first time, it must be a comprehensive review, examining the entire structure and organization of government in Canada."

HITS HOUSING PLANS

Among specific subjects, the federation criticized housing programs.

"Virtually all our housing programs have been aimed at new construction encouraging urban sprawl and burdening municipal budgets with heavy investments to serve the new developments.

"Very little money has been made available for the purchase, rehabilitation or repair of existing housing stock or for the extension of services to raw land. . . ."

The federation asked for full participation in all future federal-provincial conferences on housing.

Among other groups on wanted representation were:

—The coming meeting of federal and provincial welfare ministers.

—Committees which review federal economic incentive programs and design future programs.

—The Canadian transport commission, a federal regulatory body.

—The International Joint Commission, which regulates resource developments affecting both Canada and the United States.

RAPS ASSISTANCE PLAN

The federation criticized the Canada Assistance Plan, under which the federal government pays half the cost of provincial welfare programs.

"The fundamental problem affecting public assistance policy is the lack of an objective definition of 'need.' 'Need,' by which a recipient's eligibility for assistance is determined, is so ill-defined in the Canada Assistance Plan as to leave municipalities to determine 'need' solely in terms of available resources."

Customs to Stay

Canadian customs service at Sidney will probably be altered rather than eliminated, says federal Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury.

"I don't see why the service should be reduced over-all," he told the Sidney Chamber of Commerce.

There is a customs office at the Washington State ferry terminal to clear passengers coming into Canada on the Anacortes ferry. Another customs office is located at the Pat Bay airport.

Stanbury also talked about the new income tax forms, calling them a "masterpiece of simplicity" considering they serve 15 different purposes.

The new forms were designed to encourage people to do their own tax returns and not hire an accountant, Stanbury said, adding that about 80 per cent of taxpayers complete their own forms.

He said the alternative to the new form would be separate forms for such things as federal income tax, provincial income tax, Canada pension, unemployment insurance and other taxes.

GATI SQUELCHES PIPE BAND POPS

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A hiccupping steam pipe interrupted guest artist, soprano Ricki Turofsky as she and Victoria Symphony Orchestra began Verdi's aria, Caro nome. Loud rhythmic bangs threatened to compete in an unwelcome descant.

But Maestro Gati coped. He stopped the music and descending into the pit, turned a valve until it came off in his hand.

Returning nonchalantly to the stage to the accompaniment of laughter and applause, he tossed the valve handle into the wings, took up his baton and with a composed and smiling Turofsky, resumed the music.

Nothing more was heard from the pipe.

From that point forward the program of operatic music proved highly popular with the audience as did the glamorous and gifted soloist.

Highlights of the orchestral part of the program were the familiar Gounod Ballet music from Faust and the concluding Kabalevsky overture to Colas Breugnon which few had heard before and everybody will want to hear again, judging from the ecstatic applause.

It is a richly orchestrated, virtuosic piece, highly melodic in an ethnic sense, sparkling with humor and energy.

Maestro Gati's reading and the orchestra's performance did it full justice. There were crispness, immense vitality, security of rhythm and arresting dynamic contrasts throughout.

This entire program with its dramatic-melodic character emphasizes the excellent spirit that inhabits the orchestra. But more than that it illustrates the high competence of sections of the orchestra often troubled in the past — a brass choir that produces a fine glowing, well tuned sound, reeds and horns that inspire confidence, exceptional percussion, and a velvety cello section.

Miss Turofsky is gifted with a lovely voice, warm and expressive, having a flexibility that produces an enviable coloratura. Her trills and rapid scale passages in Bellini's "mad scene" — Qui la voce from I Puritani — are fluent and clear as to tone.

The orchestral accompaniment unfortunately overpowered her frequently in the more animated movement.

There was a genuine and touching mood encompassing her Caro Nome even though it inclined to reveal unevennesses in her production, certain middle and lower register notes having a tendency to disappear.

Her phrasing is beautifully managed and the buoyancy and tonal purity of her voice at its best are assets that should take this Canadian singer a considerable distance in her search for operatic stardom.

A very difficult work for soprano by the Russian composer, Gliere, is a concerto which the singer vocalizes using only the vowels, O and Ah.

Without the forward thrust and attack provided by lip and tongue consonants, tone placement becomes even more of a mental problem, the stream of breath support more a conscious process.

This work, which introduces Miss Turofsky to her audience, did not on Sunday, show her off to best advantage. Parts of it were quite beautiful but here and there, especilly in the upper register, the production did not sound easy.

Rosemary Brown Honored in Toronto

BROWN

TORONTO — Ten Canadian men and women were honored Saturday night at the first national black award dinner for their contributions to the country's blacks.

Among those honored was Rosemary Brown, an NDP member of the British Columbia legislature and former member of the royal commission on the status of women.

More than 200 blacks attended the $25-a-plate dinner, with proceeds going to the Brotherhood Community Centre Project Inc., a non-profit organization trying to develop programs in Toronto to help blacks appreciate black culture.

Also honored was Carrie Best, 70, of New Glasgow, N.S., for her half-century of fighting for the rights of blacks in Nova Scotia.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Ivan McFadden was left with egg all over his face Saturday, but in the process he set what is believed to be a world record for egg eating.

McFadden and nine other contestants took part in the third annual eggathon here and spectators watched as he downed 101 raw eggs in an hour to win the event.

The Guiness book of records doesn't list any world marks for consumption of raw eggs, although there is a record listed for speed — 26 raw eggs in nine seconds.

The contestants weren't in the contest for glory — the event raised $3,710 for charity.

And only one of the contestants said he'd have eggs for breakfast Sunday. The others said they'd prefer cereal for a change.

Winners of the Vanier Awards were Mayor David Crombie of Toronto, 37, figure skater Karen Magnussen, 20, of Vancouver; Harold Cardinal, 28, president of the Indian Association of Alberta; Boris Brott, 29, director of the Hamilton philharmonic orchestra, and Fraser Dougall, 30, president of CKPR radio and TV in Thunder Bay, Ont.

SEATTLE, Wash. — Beautician Pamela Baxter, confronted by a robber armed with a butcher knife, took the only action she could think of — a bear hug.

"You might as well kill me," she told the man who demanded cash register money. "If I give you the money, my boss will kill me."

She then released the knife-wielder from her clasp and they ran off in opposite directions.

DAVIDSON, N.C. — Porter Halyburton missed his own funeral service eight years ago but got filled in on the details this weekend.

Saturday a group of 250 persons, including Gov. Jim Holshouser, was on hand to welcome the navy flier back from Vietnam where he had been a prisoner since 1965.

In October of 1965 the military told his wife, Marty, that Halyburton was dead and a memorial service was held for him.

"You would have enjoyed your funeral, Porter," Davidson College English professor Charles Lloyd told the pilot. "Thank God, you missed it."

Halyburton, a graduate of Davidson, said: "I don't think I can tell you exactly how I feel at the moment."

NEW YORK — Paul Cornish was drenched by thunderstorms in Ohio, dodged soda pop bottles in Oklahoma and suffered wind burns in the mountains.

But he made it to New York's City Hall Saturday night, ending a record-breaking cross-country bicycle trip. It took 13 days and covered 3,000 miles.

Cornish, 25, from Santa Ana, Calif., set out March 4 to break a record set by another cyclist. He was accompanied by a California bicycle shop manager who rode along in a car with spare parts and protein pills.

Cornish called the ordeal "shattering."

When asked why he had done it, he replied. "Because I'm crazy."

TEL AVIV — Golda Meir and the Sphinx? Jordan's King Hussein in a town in Galilee?

That's the way it was Sunday in the Jerusalem Post, but the whole thing was a joke for the Jewish festival of Purim.

The paper's mock front page included headlines that said Premier Golda Meir was touring the streets of Cairo, Hussein was in Tiberias and Israel had abolished all income tax. Retouched photos showed Mrs. Meir in front of the Sphinx and Hussein sitting in a cafe.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Surgeons Just Human Beings

I just read a remarkable book describing very honestly the life of a surgeon in a hospital and a small city. "A Surgeon's World" was written by William A. Nolen, M.D., who started training at Bellevue Hospital in New York, and later went into the practice in surgery in Litchfield, Minn. He has a wife and three sons and three daughters.

Dr. Nolen courageously discusses many of the subjects that for so long have been taboo for most surgeons to discuss. Most important, he shows the surgeon as a human being, with the same feelings, desires, strengths and weakness that other people have. He shows the surgeon's life as he lives it — and it is perhaps the best story I have seen of a doctor's life and his behavior with different types of patients and with his fellow doctors.

Dr. Nolen has a chapter on how doctors can keep themselves honest; but he says he feels it is a myth that "only doctors can judge other doctors." He feels that intelligent laymen, with technical help from doctors, could do it better.

Dr. Nolen has chapters on doctors and sex, doctors' wives — he tells of the loneliness of the doctor's wife whose husband spends all day and sometimes part of the night in the hospital — about malpractice suits, fee-splitting, how doctors get along with each other, and how doctors in a small town such as Litchfield, Minn. handle the difficult problem of telling a husband or wife who is perhaps a personal friend, that he or she has venereal disease, and that the person's mate must be treated and the source of the disease found.

Dr. Nolen also talks about how patients look to doctors, the treatment and mismanagement of the super-neurotic patient, and many other very interesting subjects.

Few Cats or Dogs in Battered Hanoi

HANOI (CP) — They're beginning to fill in some of the bomb shelters and slit trenches among the coconut palms and banana trees in this bomb-scarred city.

"The war is over," a North Vietnamese official said. "The Americans are never coming back."

Everywhere there are children and signs of abject poverty. And oddly, for a city of about one million children and adults there are few such pets as dogs or cats about.

Cyclists fill the roads with honking trucks trying to clear a path behind them. Along one side of the road an ancient streetcar drags its way through the human traffic, its interior crammed with docile, simple faces.

The North Vietnamese, it seems, are content with the barest essentials, the primitive mode of living usually associated with an isolated state cut off from the rest of the world because of a war that has drawn most of its mature males from the city streets.

CHILDREN SEEM HAPPY

Yet the children appear happy, as most children are everywhere. They seem well fed, their clothes shabby but clean, their feet covered in a common type of rubber sandals.

Shy at first, the youngsters, on a day free of school, fill the tranquil parks, baiting their lines for fish in the smooth ponds. They stare at strangers openly, especially at white persons. They show no signs of hatred.

The sudden appearance Sunday of a large group of Canadian newspaper men, photographers, cameramen and broadcasters filled them with awe. They stared and stared and when finally the Canadians began teasing them, the children suddenly responded.

Bashful lovers giggle at camera

Their numbers swelled. They soon learned how to repeat the name "Canada" when the Canadians pressed them. They followed the Canadians everywhere, begging for a maple leaf lapel button and rushing after the press buses, painted in bamboo green and brown as part of a wartime camouflage.

On Hanoi's outskirts, the new rice shoots are showing. Corn is about three feet high. The coconuts are turning brown, though the bananas are still green and young.

LANDSCAPE SCARRED

The scars are in the fields and the twisted, ruined buildings along the roads. Hanoi built many bomb shelters; some elaborately made of brick; some shaped like a sewer pipe shoved vertically into the ground and covered with a cement lid.

"The American B-52s came along here and here," an official explained as the Canadians toured the city, the first major tour of Hanoi by a Canadian group.

Scorched railway cars stand like skeletons on their twisted tracks. Railway stations appear to have been pulled down and their rubble spread smoothly over the field.

Many of the airport buildings are shattered. The Long Bien bridge leading from the outskirts to the centre of Hanoi is old and battle-scarred. The bicycle riders clog the narrow passages and the trucks behind honk and honk.

Unlike Saigon with its noisy motorbikes, Hanoi's pedal-pushers are mostly silent. The city is a lush green, still conveying some of the atmosphere of an old French colonial town.

And amid the bicycle riders, the oxen still pull the odd cart or stand lazily by the side of the road.

EXCITED BY VISITORS

A stranger in the city seems to bring exciting change. Young soldiers strolling the parks seem as curious as the children. There are few signs of bright lights or brightly-lit cafes.

"We have been at war a long time," the official says without waiting for your question. "We have much to do."

Elderly women sell bits of meat and vegetables in what appear to be scattered informal markets on street curbs. Some men have tiny shops, selling bicycle parts or clothes.

"A radio shop," the official points proudly.

The centre of Hanoi appears intact; no bomber seems to have threatened the roads or buildings, except the residence of the French consul who was wounded fatally in a bomb attack last year.

Man Confesses 13 Murders

LAKE CITY, Fla. (AP) — Columbia County sheriff's investigators said Saturday night a man they've charged with murder has told them of killing 13 people from Florida to New Mexico.

Julian Kennedy, 30, has been charged with murder in the death of Elva Lee Jones of Valdosta, Ga., sheriff's investigator Charles Hollis said. Hollis said Kennedy directed officers to a wooded area where the woman's body was found.

Hollis said Kennedy told police he escaped from the Florida state prison reception centre at Lake Butler last Sept. 9, took a car in Lake City and drive to Valdosta. The detective said Kennedy told officers he kidnapped the woman in Valdosta, brought her back to Columbia County and killed her.

The investigator said Kennedy told officers he was 15 years old when he was initiated into a Tampa motorcycle club.

Hollis said Kennedy told him he and other initiates were assigned to beat a man to death and did so with chair legs and an axe handle in a motel room.

Hollis said his department was checking Kennedy's story with an unsolved case which occurred about 15 years ago in Tampa. They're also checking the other cases Hollis said Kennedy related to the police.

In one, Hollis said Kennedy told him he took part in strangling a man, stuffing his body in a plastic bag and leaving it in the front seat of a car parked in front of the Tampa police station.

NDP Won't Stop Political Talk

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said today he doesn't intend to take any action to stop two administrative assistants employed in the office of the Social Credit opposition from engaging in public political discussion.

He was referring to speeches last week by Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy, former cabinet ministers in the Socred administration, directed against the NDP government's policies.

Last November, Hall sent out a letter reminding administrative assistants of cabinet ministers and opposition parties of their traditional responsibility not to engage in direct political activity, such as "getting involved in political debate on hot line shows, conferences or statements through the media."

Hall commented today: "It's a pity they (Campbell and McCarthy) do not see it the way it's supposed to be seen, but I suppose they are hungry for power and their old habits die hard.

"It's not a question of freedom of speech. It's a question of us all living together in this precinct and providing a financial assistance out of the public purse to a political party to do such jobs. If they can't see those things I feel sorry for them."

Criminal Negligence Charge Remanded

A 25-year-old man was remanded in custody to March 22 after appearing in Victoria provincial court Saturday on a charge of criminal negligence.

Robert Sherburne, of HMCS Columbia, was charged, police said, in connection with a Friday night incident in which a man repeatedly rammed into a car driven by Sherburne's ex-wife, Virginia Linda Urquhart, of 205-904 Carlton Terrace. Mrs. Urquhart and two companions Gerald Courchene of HMCS Chaudiere and Brian Fillman, of 815 Selkirk, were driving along Esquimalt Road around 7:30 p.m. Friday when their vehicle was struck several times by another car.

When the cars stopped, Courchene and Fillman got out of Mrs. Urquhart's car. The man in the other vehicle then tried to run over the two men.

Failing to do this, the man then made a U-turn and returned, ramming Mrs. Urquhart's car on the driver's side. The man then got out of his car, chased Courchene and tried to strangle him, according to police reports.

Sherburne was remanded in custody after he told the judge that he could not promise to stay away from his ex-wife as requested by the Crown.

Practical Guide To Composting

The four articles, together with illustrations, have been reproduced in pamphlet form by Project Recycle under the title "Composting: a practical guide."

Our local soils are notoriously low in humus which is the cause of most of our gardening problems.

The coastal areas of British Columbia were rain forest for centuries. The coniferous trees shed less than 10 per cent of their foliage each year which resulted in a meagre four inches of soil over clay or gravel.

Since 12 inches of soil is considered the minimum for cultivated plants, local gardeners have to provide an additional eight inches before a successful garden can be started.

Fortunately humus, which is decomposed wastes of animal or vegetable origin, provides this essential that makes what we call "soil."

This is how nature makes soil, but nature's methods are slow, too slow for the needs of an intensively cultivated area of widely different plants known as a garden.

To speed up the production of soil man has devised the compost heap, a collection of plant and animal wastes prepared in a way to provide optimum conditions for rapid decomposition.

This pamphlet issued by Project Recycle explains how to create the necessary conditions, lists the waste materials of animal and vegetable origin that can be used, tells how to prepare them for rapid decomposition, and describes the building of a heap in a box or in the open.

Printed on recycled paper, the pamphlet is nominally priced at 10 cents, a figure completely out of proportion to the value of the information it contains, but a means of securing a few dollars to further the work and educational projects designed to partially eliminate the environmental upset created by man.

At present, copies are obtainable by calling in person at the Project Recycle plant, 4026 Borden Street, off McKenzie Street opposite the motor vehicle testing station.

While it is not possible to handle mail orders it is hoped that other distributing centres can be arragned in the near future if sufficient interest is shown in the publication by local gardeners.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal is presented as a mystery. You are informed that our South declarer misplayed his slam contract. It is your job to isolate South's error, and to bring it to light. Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

NORTH
♠ A 3
♡ A Q 2
◇ Q 6 2

WEST
♠ 9 7 2
♡ 10 8 7 5
◇ K 10 7 5
♣ J 9

EAST
♡ K J 9 4
◇ 9 8 4 3

SOUTH
♠ K Q J 10 8 6 4
◇ A J
♣ K 6

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
5 ◇	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♡.

South's four-club bid was the initiation of the Gerber Slam Convention. When North showed three aces and no kings, South settled for a small slam.

When the dummy came into view after West's low heart opening lead, South perceived that he had 11 top tricks. Hoping that West was leading away from the king, declarer finessed dummy's queen of hearts. Upon winning the trick with his king, East returned the jack of hearts to dummy's ace.

Hoping that the six outstanding clubs were divided 3-3, and that the four missing spades were divided 2-2, South next cashed his king of clubs. He then led a club to the board's ace, after which he returned a third club, which he ruffed with his king. West discarded a heart on the third club lead.

Next came the queen of trumps, and this was followed by a trump to dummy's ace. The diamond finesse was then taken, losing to West's king. Thus declarer was down one. In a sense he was unlucky, in that both red kings were adversely located. Nevertheless, declarer committed an error.

Declarer should not have finessed dummy's queen of hearts at trick one, for a better line of play was available. The latter was based on finding the six outstanding clubs divided no worse than 4-2, an 84 per cent chance.

To the first trick, dummy's deuce of hearts should have been played. East winning the trick with his jack. At trick two, East would return a diamond, South's ace winning.

The king of triumps would then be cashed. This would be followed by the king of clubs, the ace of clubs, and a third club, South ruffing high. Now another trump would be led to dummy's ace, after which a fourth club would be ruffed high. Dummy's fifth club would now be a winner.

West's last trump would then be picked up. Dummy would now be re-entered via the heart ace, and on the fifth club South would discard his losing diamond.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"I don't have that much," said Sam. "But I'll lend you what I've got if you can guess how much it is."

"Big deal!" exclaimed Sally. "How can I guess? Give me a clue."

Sam smiled. "Okay. If you add it to double its square root, all in cents, you get 99 cents."

How much did he have?

(Answer tomorrow)

Fridays answer: One other number, 3724.

Award Withdrawn

WINDHAM, Me. (AP) — St. Joseph's College here said it has withdrawn its proposed award of an honorary degree to Ann Landers, the syndicated columnist. A spokesman for the Roman Catholic college said the decision was because of Miss Lander's public stand in favor of abortion.

Blowing snow veils the carnage of Canada's worst traffic accident near Barrie Sunday evening. Rescue workers believe 15 persons were killed when a lumber truck, then a bus, plowed into a lineup of about 30 cars.

Massive Ont. Pile-Up

Times News Services

BARRIE, Ont. — A lumber truck, a bus and about 30 cars collided during a blinding snowstorm Sunday evening, killing at least 15 persons and crumpling the cars like pieces of tin which turned into flaming coffins.

Only nine bodies had been recovered from the wreckage by this morning as searchers continued to pull apart the mangled remains of Canada's worst traffic accident.

A doctor who walked through twisted metal at the scene said it might be days before an accurate death count was established among the debris.

Witnesses said visibility was almost zero as blowing snow and drifts swept across six-lane Route 400, about 50 miles north of Toronto.

David Fetter, a lumber worker from Ayr, Ont., said, "I came along a few minutes later. It was terrible, terrible. An awful mess. There must have been 25 to 30 cars, the truck and the bus.

"Bodies were in the road. The truck was on fire and a whole bunch of cars were beneath it. At least five or six cars were on fire."

"There were quite a few injured standing by the side of the road," he said. "They appeared to have broken arms, broken legs and cuts. People were stopping to give first aid."

Another witness said one car trapped under the rear wheels of the truck was flattened to a height of 10 inches.

Early today, police were still uncertain how the accident happened or how many more bodies they expect to find.

Police and eyewitnesses believe the tragedy started with a minor accident in the southbound lanes of Highway 400, about six miles south of Barrie.

LIKE AN ACCORDION

Cars started backing up from the accident and then a tractor-trailer loaded with lumber smacked into the cars, crushing them together like an accordion.

The truck jack-knifed and sent its load of two-by-fours on to the top of the cars — how many it was not made clear.

Police said the lumber and truck caught fire and soon gas tanks started to explode. People in the cars were trapped.

Shortly after, an Ontario Northland bus, en route to Toronto from Timmins, slammed into the wreckage. Bars had to be used to free the bus driver and many of the 22 passengers had to kick out bus windows to escape.

Survivors at the scene told of incredible terror and piercing screams.

One woman had to be hauled from a car by the hair. Seconds after she was clear, a gas tank exploded.

Police said the combination of an icy road and a sudden burst of blinding snow led to the pile-up. There was no indication of excess speed, they said.

Cpl. Ed Kelso of the provincial police narrowly missed joining the crash in his patrol car and described the scene:

SCREAMS

"Flames were shooting into the sky. I heard people screaming from the cars under the lumber: "Help . . . Get me out . . . I'm burning."

Hours after the accident, smoke from the burning wood could be smelled a mile down wind and the flames could be seen for two miles.

Paul Kneeshaw, a tow-truck driver from a nearby service station, said there were cars in the pile-up that didn't even look like cars any more.

Barrie Corones Dr. William Farrington said one of the the cars taken to the garage may contain four bodies. From another vehicle police removed only a backbone and pelvis.

Ranch Sales Curbed

In future no major ranch in B.C. will be sold to non-Canadians, and at the time of any such sale the varjous leases and permits will be subject to review, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

In such cases, large areas of land will revert back to the crown, if the review indicates that is necessary for wildlife and recreation needs, Williams said.

He was commenting on allegations last week by a regional wildlife biologist that absentee American owners of the Gang Ranch in the Cariboo are responsible for serious mis-management of Crown land.

OVER-GRAZED

The biologist, Harold Matchell, claimed that the Gang Ranch, the largest ranch in North America with more than one million acres under its control, had been overgrazing its land for at least 14 years.

As a result, he said, cattle graze up through the 8,000-foot level of the Coast Mountains and are destroying delicate alpine areas. In the process they compete for grazing with the rare California big horn sheep and threaten its survival.

Mitchell also accused cowboys on the Gang Ranch of slaughtering bears, including grizzlies, on the pretext of protecting cattle. See other story on Page 18).

Williams told reporters today the fish and wildlife branch is aware that Gang Ranch has been up for sale, and a policy has already been established concerning that.

"We have made it abundantly clear to our staff, and they in tur have advised owners or potential buyers that we would not accept the idea of the ranch being sold to non-nationals, to non-resident people from outside Canada," Williams said.

REVIEW

He said it has also been made clear that the various leases and permits held by the present owners would be subject to review at the time of any sale, "and that the Crown would require the reversion of significant portions of the ranch that we would want for the exclusive preservation of wildlife and recreation."

The policy would apply to the sale of all other major ranches in B.C., he added.

Asked if the provincial government had an intention of taking over direct control of Gang Ranch, the minister replied: "None whatsoever."

The ranch headquarters are located about 60 miles southwest of Williams Lake in the Interior. It's territory includes 47,600 acres of deeded land, 16,732 acres of leased land and 821,000 acres of Crown Land under grazing permits.

Saigon Threat To Use Force

Times News Services

SAIGON — The South Vietnamese military command threatened today to launch military operations in the next few days to relieve two of its bases north of Saigon if the International Commission of Control and Supervision does not investigate alleged ceasefire violations.

The command claim Communist troops have laid siege to the bases 25 and 63 miles north of the South Vietnamese capital.

Members of the ICCS, where unanimous agreement is required, could not agree to a Canadian proposal to ask all parties in the Vietnam conflict to end the fighting.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said his ICCS delegation wanted to send 31 South Vietnamese government allegations of ceasefire violations to the four-party Joint Military Commission "with an appeal to the parties", to cease hostilities.

"But we couldn't get agreement on this," he said. "Finally, we got agreement on nothing."

In Washington meanwhile, United States intelligence sources report that military equipment has continued to flow from North Vietnam since President Nixon warned Hanoi to stop infiltrating South Vietnam.

"It's still going on," one source said. He indicated Sunday there has been no measurable slowdown of such movements in the wake of Nixon's statement last Thursday that the North Vietnamese "should not lightly disregard" U.S. expressions of concern.

Intelligence analysist estimate that the North Vietnamese have sent between 400 and 450 armored vehicles, including tanks, into South Vietnam in the less than two months since the Vietnam ceasefire.

Intelligence specialists say some of the new tanks reported in South Vietnam since the ceasefire came down from southern China, where they were stockpiled until the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam was halted.

Sharp Returns, Decision Soon

Times News Services

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp flew back from Vietnam today and said he will make a decision "very quickly" on the future of Canadian ceasefire observer operations.

He told reporters minutes after landing at nearby Uplands airport he has not quite made up his mind on the issue and refused to indicate what recommendations he will make to the cabinet.

Earlier in Hanoi, Sharp told newsmen: "It's not just a simple question of whether we stay or don't stay. There are many possible variations."

The remark seemed to indicate that the minister will be working with his advisers over the possibility of another limited or conditional commitment to the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — A least 34 miners were killed Sunday night in a series of underground explosions in a colliery in the northeast Indian state of Bihar.

Storm Rips Great Lake Regions

Times News Services

Floods forced thousands from their homes, gales ripped ships from their moorings and blizzards blocked roads and rescue efforts in Southern Ontario over the weekend.

In the United States, high winds and snowstorms also brought devastation to the Great Lakes and Eastern states, while torrential rains in eight southern states killed seven persons, caused mass evacuations and sent damage estimates past $75 million.

The Ontario storm began Friday afternoon with winds up to 50 miles an hour, accompanied by rain and freezing rain, followed by snow.

Gigantic waves on Lake St. Clair and Lakes Erie, Huron and Ontario flooded waterfront homes and washed away great chunks of shoreline.

In the Windsor area, the Essex Country Emergency Measures Organization estimated between 2,500 and 3,000 persons were at least temporarily forced from their homes.

Throughout southern Ontario, snowdrifts or flood water blocked highways which were dotted with abandoned cars.

Almost two feet of snow fell in Owen Sound. Roaring winds knocked down trees and ripped 11 ships from their winter moorings in Goderich harbor on Lake Huron.

Before they were corralled two of the drifting vessels smashed into the still-moored grain carrier Patterson, causing extensive damage.

At Ipperwash Beach, 35 miles northwest of London, a variety store, a tourist lodge and two cottages slid into Lake Huron.

At least 2,000 acres of farmland and several homes were flooded in Tilbury East township, 17 miles west of Chatham, when water broke through a 50-foot section of dike.

The department of national defence was asked to send helicopters today to drop crushed car bodies and other material to plug the gap.

As the weather began to clear and the intensive cleanup began today, damage estimates from the floods and the snowstorm soared into the millions.

Power and natural gas services were cut off in flooded areas. But just outside Belle River one house was reported to have blown up in flames when the gas line ruptured.

Stalemate At Priory

Three nuns holding out in the kitchen of St. Mary's Priory will not be allowed to jeopardize the purposes of the Society of the Love of Jesus in its care for the sick and aged.

This was the essence of a statement today by Sister Leonette Hoesing, mother prioress of the Colwood institution operating an extended care hospital and St. Anthony's boarding home on Goldstream Avenue.

The three sisters of the old society, who have lived in the priory for 25-35 years, have refused to budge since Thursday. Each faction in the dispute has its own security guards.

The three — Sister Mary Agnes Eaton, Sister Mary Lucy Ford and Sister Mary Josephine Donovan — have been told by Sister Leonette to vacate the building, which is being closed.

They said they had been threatened by eviction, but up until noon there was no sign of a court order.

In her first statement on the dispute, Sister Leonette said: "The lawful authorized officers of the society have determined that three 'dissident' sisters will not be allowed to jeopardize the purposes of the society in the care of the aged and infirm.

"Since these sisters have refused all offers made to them, they are therefore the authors of their own painful situation."

A meeting of the society would be held soon, she said. It requires two weeks' notice.

Asked what the meeting would accomplish to alleviate the situation in which the three say they will hold out until ordered by law to leave, Sister Leonette said she hoped "some provision might be made so that each sister of the society could be provided for."

The dispute goes back several years and Leonette said for eight years efforts had been made to solve the "painful situation."

"We've tried to settle it to the welfare of each and re-

U.S. DOLLAR STRONGER

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Major money markets reopened today for the first time in 17 days and the U.S. dollar, helped by monetary reforms, displayed early strength. But bankers and dealers agreed with the warning by one French dealer that "this should not be interpreted as a new faith in the dollar."

They said one key to the quiet, stable trading was the apparent decision by speculators, who caused earlier runs on the dollar, to size up the new situation before making their move.

The money markets closed March 2 in the wake of the Feb. 1 devaluation of the dollar by 10 per cent and the subsequent speculative turmoil that dropped the dollar's value still further.

Since then, leading financial nations constructed a new — if temporary — monetary system which scrapped the old system of fixed exchange rates and relied instead on floating rates.

With the official reopening of money markets, central banks regained the right to intervene if the major currencies should float too far from each other. But there was no sign of intervention today.

In London, the dollar opened officially at $2.4655 to the pound — up a cent and a half on last Friday's unofficial rate, then dropped back by about one cent. In Tokyo, the dollar opened at 260 yen, then gained strength to 264.

Other capitals told a similar story. In Paris, the dollar opened at 4.5300 francs and strengthened to 4.5350. In Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Zurich and Brussels, it was well up on its Friday closing figure.

Plane Explodes Killing 59

SAIGON (Reuter) — Government officials flew to the town of Ban Me Thuot today to investigate the crash today of an Air Vietnam DC-4 with 59 passengers and crew aboard.

Police officials reached by telephone in Ban Me Thuot said the four-engine propeller aircraft exploded as if made an emergency landing after an engine caught fire.

Airport sources in Saigon said an investigation is under way to determine whether the plane was hit by ground fire.

Pipeline Test Speeded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court today granted a federal government request to speed its consideration of a lower-court ruling that blocked construction of the Trans-Alaska pipeline.

The supreme court agreed without comment that the schedule for filing papers in the case be accelerated. Left undecided for the time being was the second step of the government request which asked the court to hear and decide the case this term.

Normally, a petition for review brought to the supreme court at this point in the term would be heard next fall or winter if accepted by the court. The government asked that the case be heard in mid-May and decided before the term ends, probably in June.

The federal government, the state of Alaska and a consortium of oil companies are challenging the decision of the U.S. Circuit Court here which blocked construction of the pipeline because a wider right-of-way over public land would be required than is allowed by federal law.

The circuit court did not address the larger question of whether the environmental impact statement prepared by the interior department in issuing a permit to build the pipeline from Alaska's North Slope satisfied the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

The supreme court has been asked to decide this question as well as the right-of-way issue.

A Man in the Woods Building a Monument

Some winters ago, en route to the California desert, we visited San Simeon, the monstrosity willed to the state by William Randolph Hearst, and marvelled at the evidence of the man's fixation with the place.

If someone then had suggested that one day I'd be as single-mindedly absorbed in a mammoth project of my own I'd have responded with at least a small hoot of derision.

One of Hearst's several biographers suggests that the old man began to ship back entire Moorish mosques and parts of Spanish cathedrals and complete Scottish castles and God knows what else as a last desperate bid for immortality. Frankly, I doubt it. I think he just got carried away with a compulsive idea and, as things have turned out, I sympathize with it entirely.

My own fixation is so out of character for a man of my well-known sloth that I hate to test your credulity with it. In its own, though unextravagant way, it is just as gargantuan in concept as San Simeon and I'm sure if I'd a biographer he'd be convinced that I was just as eccentric as Hearst.

My project is the Scott Do-It-Yourself National Park, the single-handed creation of six acres of loveliness hued from the primeval forest, a project fully 20 years in the making and with fully 20 years to go.

It began the very first year that we moved to Salt Spring Island in pursuit of the impossible dream of a complete escape from the rat-race, a dream that's been interrupted fully a dozen times since by the crass need to make a living.

In that first year one of our weekend guests was a forester. He paled visibly as we drove through the property and later took me gently by the arm, walked me back up the road and hacked a path into the tangled undergrowth.

Until then I'd been an unquestioning admirer of Nature's magnificent chaos in our back yard. There were great firs and cedars and maple and arbutus raising their proud heads from an almost impenetrable jungle of smaller stuff. Yet here was an expert telling me that most of it had to go, not merely for cosmetic reasons, but for the health of my woods.

For the first time I actually saw the grey, struggling little pines, fighting for sun, rain and survival, the good little firs being suffocated in clumps of alder, the mass of deadwood and brush that was throttling the nobler growth. This tree would have to go, the forester said, and that tree, and that grove of undernourished cedar and that crowd of whip-like alder and that ancient maple that's so beautiful, but in its dotage.

He loosed a few deft blows with an axe and suddenly I could see it all, the Scott Do-It-Yourself National Park with leafy trails under the canopy of boughs, the forest floor cleared, the copper-and-olive tracery of the arbutus bared to full view, the decay cleared out to make way for the new and stately monarchs of the forest.

My reaction must have been pretty much the same as Hearst's when he first conceived his plan for San Simeon. William Randolph went rushing off to Europe with his cheque book in his hand. I went rushing off to Mouat's hardware department for a new saw and axe and began my life-time assault on the unsuspecting woods.

We have had to leave that blessed spot many times since, have had a dozen different tenants, but always we've somehow found our way back, as we were once again this weekend, and the dream of the Do-It-Yourself National Park remains as my life's ambition.

I could not begin to describe how it's changed my thinking, how I now look at the world with the eyes of a Canadian beaver eager to gnaw at raw timber. A visit to any park, Beacon Hill, Kew Gardens or any other, and my appraising eye is busy sizing up the deadwood that will have to go.

For one year, the year when no suitable tenants appeared, I spent each weekend attacking the undergrowth with the zeal of an avenging knight and crawled back to the city in a state of exhaustion. My week-day nights were spent dreaming alternately of millions of miles of sick timber calling for back-breaking surgery or of hushed parkland that would shame the grandest English estate.

There were times when the forest seemed to be springing up faster than I could throw it back. But there were times, too, when a single falling tree would open a vista of bird-filled forest bowers to convince me I was Nature's errand-boy in a divine plan.

Since it is the place to which one day we'll retire I can see now, as Hearst must have seen with San Simeon, that I have mortgaged my life to a project, that I am well and truly hooked to an undertaking that may rank with the Pyramids and the Great Wall of China as one of the world's monuments to man's insatiable yearning to leave his mark.

Call It Kitesmanship

Gusty winds made kite-flying hard work Sunday afternoon, but that didn't stop over 300 people from registering for the fourth University of Victoria Kite Festival. The kites came in all sizes, from the 11-foot-by-15-foot giant of residence student Edmund Carter to the tiny box kite (right) of Tim Napier. Carter's kite won trophies for best over-all performance and largest kite. Napier's was disqualified because judges ruled it was so small the wind was just blowing the thread, not the kite itself.

Society Awaits Funeral Probe

The Memorial Society of B.C., beset with problems following allegations of funeral irregularities, will organize a general membership meeting in Vancouver when an investigation by the attorney-general's department is completed.

Clare Yarwood, of Victoria, society president, said today he has no indication when the investigation will be finished.

The investigation followed charges by a former employee of First Memorial Services Ltd., the society's undertaker, which included claims the firm would sometimes use the same body for as many as five services a day.

Last week, the society's executive director, Jean Mohart, and five of the 12 directors resigned in a dispute over interim arrangements made with two other undertakers, Sands Mortuary of Victoria and S. Bowell and Sons of New Westminster.

Mrs. Mohart said when these arrangements went to the board for ratification, there was a tie vote which Yarwood broke by voting against the proposal.

She charged at the weekend that the 80,000-member low-cost funeral organization has been "dictated to" by its undertaker, First Memorial Services, since 1968.

She said the North Vancouver firm insisted it alone conduct all funeral services on behalf of society members. She wanted local committees formed which would arrange funeral services with undertakers in their area.

In a statement today, Yarwood said "certain unsubstantiated allegations" have been made against First Memorial Services and the society suspended its contract with the firm "on the basis of these unsubstantiated allegations."

Since then "many confusing and contradictory public statements have been made by persons purporting to speak for the society which served to upset and confuse the membership and the public at large."

The society's board had reversed its position and reinstated its contract with First Memorial pending the results of the attorney-general's department investigation.

"The board of directors wishes to apologize to First Memorial Services for its action in suspending the contract without investigation," Yarwood said.

He advised society members that, those who have resigned from the board, including Mrs. Mohart, "Are no longer empowered to speak on behalf of the society."

Yarwood also said the society's board is considering requesting the attorney-general's department to appoint a trustee in the interim before the report is made.

His statement was also approved by four society board members, or five of the seven board members left after the earlier resignations.

Six Set For Vote March 31

Nominations for the March 31 aldermanic byelection in the city of Victoria closed today with six candidates, none of them newcomers.

Last to sign this morning was veteran of many contests Bill Scott, 75, a Victoria merchant who has run for alderman, mayor and MLA.

Malcolm Anderson, stockbroker, also signed papers today.

No all-candidate meetings have been set.

Gov't Backs Plans For Island Promotion

The provincial government is encouraging formation of a new organization to co-ordinate tourist and industrial promotion on the Island, Vancouver Island chambers of commerce were told today.

The new body would apply for provincial government grants and make a levy on all six Island regional districts to finance all tourist promotion and to organize economic development.

Joseph Garner of Nanaimo, chairman of a chamber of commerce committee on industrial development, said the proposal has been supported by provincial ministers of trade and commerce and municipal affairs.

In a report prepared for the annual convention of Island chambers of commerce, under way today at The Empress, his committee recommended establishment of The Economic Development and Planning Committee of Vancouver Island.

REGIONAL FUNDS

In a proposed budget, presented with the report, the chamber committee foresaw income from the six regional districts in the first year of $230,563. Additional funds would be sought from the provincial government.

Most of the funds, some $145,000, would be spent on tourist promotion. Another $20,000 would be available for trade fairs and brochures.

The new body would be controlled by a 25-member executive, consisting of 18 representatives from regional districts, six from Island chambers of commerce and a full time paid manager, according to the proposal.

Up to $20,000 would be set aside for annual salary for the full-time manager.

Chamber delegates were to discuss the report later in the two-day convention which concludes Tuesday.

The report says: "It is felt that inclusion of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau and Tourist Bureau operations with the proposed operations of the Economic Development and Planning Committee would provide a clearing ground for matters of tourism and publicity.

PLEAS FOR SUPPORT

"Insofar as financing at the local tourist bureau level is concerned, it is fairly obvious that most bureaus experience local financing problems.

"Vancouver Island publicity bureau's continuing problem is financial. It should not be necessary for this voluntary organization to have to plead each year with the chambers of commerce and municipal councils for very modest suggested assessments in toto, in turn, obtain the 60-40 matching grant for the advertising program."

Each year the Island tourist bureau goes out on a limb by planning programs without knowing what grants, if any, would be forthcoming, the report says.

While the main portion of the budget would be directed towards the Island tourist industry, more could be done in other fields if grants are forthcoming from the provincial government.

A primary purpose of the new committee would be to develop an economic blueprint for Vancouver Island.

New Ice Rink —With Help

Modification of a Cloverdale arena design could give Saanich a new ice surface for less than $300,000 with federal and provincial grants, Ald. Fred Severson said today.

The alderman, indoor recreation chairman, said a proposal along this line will be considered by the next meeting of his committee April 3.

Meanwhile, he said municipal staff will be asked to make proposals based upon the second of three ice surfaces built by Surrey municipality within the past 10 years.

Severson, receation manager Bill Young and Pearkes Arena maintenance manager Rob Campbell toured four mainland arenas Thursday, three of them in Surrey, the fourth in South Delta.

"We were most impressed with what we saw," the alderman said.

"We got all the information we need. We could remodel the Cloverdale one and come up with one heck of a fine arena — that is a plan we could do something with."

Severson said the building has no frills, was opened last October and cost about $450,000. It has steel-clad exterior, with an ice surface 85 by 185 feet — 15 feet shorter than what Saanich would require, Severson said.

But there is seating for 350 persons and attached dressing rooms and office space which would suit Saanich, although Severson felt the dressing rooms could be consolidated into the main building and a lobby area separated from the ice area.

A more costly arena in Newton is being built by Surrey municipality with full-size ice surface, separate lobby with windows looking through to the ice, cedar shakes and siding and minimal seating. Due to open soon, the project cost about $600,000.

In North Surrey the party saw a full-size arena erected about 10 years ago at a cost of more than $1 million, cantilever design and seating for nearly 2,000 persons. But the alderman said some aspects of it had become obsolete.

The fourth institution opened last September at a cost of more than $800,000. This one gives South Delta a skating rink plus four sheets of curling ice and a community centre - auditorium adjoining. Facilities are minimal.

Severson hopes detailed information would be available to the public before a referendum likely to take place in the fall.

Wicker Mementoes Fetch $2 a Piece

Wicker armchairs that once lined the ballrooms of the Crystal Garden sold for around $2 each Saturday at Lund's Auctioneers.

Auctioneer Frank Davies said he was surprised the 50 chairs went for that much, as they were in bad condition.

City purchasing agent Gerry Sharpe said they had not been included with other material auctioned off last year when the building was abandoned because they were considered worthless.

JUDGE HALTS PICKETS

A B.C. Supreme Court hearing of an application for an injunction to stop pickets at a Gorge Road East construction site was adjourned this morning until 10 a.m. Thursday, by Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton.

Three companies, J. E. J. Butler and Co. Ltd., Citation Estates Ltd., and Garden City Motel Ltd., represented by J. S. de Villiers have applied for an injunction against the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 1598, and President John Schibli, represented by Louis Lindholm.

Wootton ordered the adjournment on the condition that "this parading will cease" until the matter has been settled.

They claim that unknown men have been carrying placards and picketing the site at 310 Gorge Rd. East since March 5, and that the picket lines are being respected by certain trade union members working on the project.

Lindholm told the court he had become involved in the case only today and requested the adjournment to get "sufficient instructions" from his clients.

Two people have been at the site on "intermittent occasions" carrying placards, said Lindholm.

Last Winter Storm Whips Coast

Winter had a last lick at the B.C. coastline Sunday, lashing it with a storm that snarled ferry and air services, flattened power poles and severely injured a seaman.

The storm began gathering fury Saturday, reaching a peak of 35 miles an hour at 9 p.m., gusting to 54. Another storm is on its way and expected to hit Tuesday night.

Sunday it began to build again at noon and by 3 p.m. the southeasterlies were hitting 40 miles an hour, gusting to 60.

Aboard the freighter Asteri, 700 miles out to sea Sunday, a seaman was hurled against the ship's superstructure by a huge wave and is believed to be suffering severe internal injuries.

Today the Asteri is steaming as fast as she can toward land. Also moving in her direction is the Soviet ship Ussurijsk with a doctor aboard.

A rescue helicopter of the 442 squadron at CFB Comox is standing by.

A spokesman at the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said today if the two ships do not converge before the Asteri is within 100 miles of shore, the helicopter and an escort craft will fly out to the ship and pick up the stricken seaman.

At the height of Sunday's storm the 12:30, 2:30 and 4:30 round trips from Fulford Harbor on Salt Spring Island had to be cancelled. The afternoon run of the B.C. Ferries' Mill Bay vessel was also wiped out.

Cars were backed up well along the Pat Bay Highway Sunday afternoon as motorists travelling to the mainland tried to get home early in case sailings were cancelled.

One crossing between Swartz Bay and the mainland fell victim to the storm.

Because she is operating on only three engines the Queen of Victoria did not leave the Twawwassen terminal at 4 p.m., thus eliminating the 6 p.m. sailing from Swartz Bay.

A B.C. Ferries' official said today it would have been "too dicey" to send her out in the wind-whipped Strait of Georgia with only three engines in use.

To take care of those left behind an extra sailing was put on from Swartz Bay at 11:25 p.m.

Air Canada's DC-9 flight from Vancouver, which arrives here 11:15 p.m., was cancelled.

An Air Canada official said the plane "came over and took a look but there was just too much of a cross-wind to land so she went back."

A Viscount craft brought the passengers over about 3 a.m. today.

Victoria Flying Services Ltd. had to cancel its 4 p.m. flight out of the Inner Harbor because the rough waters could have damaged the float plane.

The high winds toppled a limb on Dolphin Road on the northern end of Saanich Peninsula, cutting off power to Goudge and Coal Islands.

About 10 p.m. Saturday a big snag fell on Wains Cross Road, knocking out power for about four hours.

The RCMP at Port Alberni said 25 inches of snow fell on the highway between Port Alberni and Ucluelet while at Tofino there was a dumping of four inches.

15 Die in Ont. Pile-Up

Blowing snow veils the carnage of Canada's worst traffic accident near Barrie Sunday evening. Rescue workers believe 15 persons were killed when a lumber truck, then a bus, plowed into a lineup of about 30 cars.

Times News Services

BARRIE, Ont. — A lumber truck, a bus and about 30 cars collided during a blinding snowstorm Sunday evening, killing at least 15 persons and crumpling the cars like pieces of tin which turned into flaming coffins.

Only nine bodies had been recovered from the wreckage by this morning as searchers continued to pull apart the mangled remains of Canada's worst traffic accident.

A doctor who walked through twisted metal at the scene said it might be days before an accurate death count was established among the debris.

Witnesses said visibility was almost zero as blowing snow and drifts swept across six-lane Route 400, about 50 miles north of Toronto.

David Fetter, a lumber worker from Ayr, Ont., said, "I came along a few minutes later. It was terrible, terrible. An awful mess. There must have been 25 to 30 cars, the truck and the bus.

"Bodies were in the road. The truck was on fire and a whole bunch of cars were beneath it. At least five or six cars were on fire."

"There were quite a few injured standing by the side of the road," he said. "They appeared to have broken arms, broken legs and cuts. People were stopping to give first aid."

Another witness said one car trapped under the rear wheels of the truck was flattened to a height of 10 inches.

Early today, police were still uncertain how the accident happened or how many more bodies they expect to find.

Police and eyewitnesses believe the tragedy started with a minor accident in the southbound lanes of Highway 400, about six miles south of Barrie.

LIKE AN ACCORDION

Cars started backing up from the accident and then a tractor-trailer loaded with lumber smacked into the cars, crushing them together like an accordion.

The truck jack-knifed and sent its load of two-by-fours on to the top of the cars — how many it was not made clear.

Police said the lumber and truck caught fire and soon gas tanks started to explode. People in the cars were trapped.

Shortly after, an Ontario Northland bus, en route to Toronto from Timmins, slammed into the wreckage. Bars had to be used to free the bus driver and many of the 22 passengers had to kick out bus windows to escape.

Survivors at the scene told of incredible terror and piercing screams.

One woman had to be hauled from a car by the hair. Seconds after she was clear, a gas tank exploded.

Police said the combination of an icy road and a sudden burst of blinding snow led to the pile-up. There was no indication of excess speed, they said.

Cpl. Ed Kelso of the provincial police narrowly missed joining the crash in his patrol car and described the scene:

SCREAMS

"Flames were shooting into the sky. I heard people screaming from the cars under the lumber: "Help . . . Get me out . . . I'm burning."

Hours after the accident, smoke from the burning wood could be smelled a mile down wind and the flames could be seen for two miles.

Paul Kneeshaw, a tow-truck driver from a nearby service station, said there were cars in the pile-up that didn't even look like cars any more.

Ranch Sales Curbed

In future no major ranch in B.C. will be sold to non-Canadians, and at the time of any such sale the various leases and permits will be subject to review, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

In such cases, large areas of land will revert back to the crown, if the review indicates that is necessary for wildlife and recreation needs, Williams said.

He was commenting on allegations last week by a regional wildlife biologist that absentee American owners of the Gang Ranch in the Cariboo are responsible for serious mis-management of Crown land.

OVER-GRAZED

The biologist, Harold Matchell, claimed that the Gang Ranch, the largest ranch in North America with more than one million acres under its control, had been overgrazing its land for at least 14 years.

As a result, he said, cattle graze up through the 8,000-foot level of the Coast Mountains and are destroying delicate alpine areas. In the process they compete for grazing with the rare California big horn sheep and threaten its survival.

Mitchell also accused cowboys on the Gang Ranch of slaughtering bears, including grizzlies, on the pretext of protecting cattle. (See other story on Page 18).

Williams told reporters today the fish and wildlife branch is aware that Gang Ranch has been up for sale, and a policy has already been established concerning that.

"We have made it abundantly clear to our staff, and they in turn have advised owners or potential buyers that we would not accept the idea of the ranch being sold to non-nationals, to non-resident people from outside Canada," Williams said.

REVIEW

He said it has also been made clear that the various leases and permits held by the present owners would be subject to review at the time of any sale, "and that the Crown would require the reversion of significant portions of the ranch that we would want for the exclusive preservation of wildlife and recreation."

The policy would apply to the sale of all other major ranches in B.C., he added.

Asked if the provincial government had an intention of taking over direct control of Gang Ranch, the minister replied: "None whatsoever."

The ranch headquarters are located about 60 miles southwest of Williams Lake in the Interior. It's territory includes 47,600 acres of deeded land, 16,732 acres of leased land and 821,000 acres of Crown Land under grazing permits.

Saigon Threat To Use Force

Times News Services

SAIGON — The South Vietnamese military command threatened today to launch military operations in the next few days to relieve two of its bases north of Saigon if the International Commission of Control and Supervision does not investigate alleged ceasefire violations.

The command claims Communist troops have laid siege to the bases 25 and 63 miles north of the South Vietnamese capital.

Members of the ICCS, where unanimous agreement is required, could not agree to a Canadian proposal to ask all parties in the Vietnam conflict to end the fighting.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said his ICCS delegation wanted to send 31 South Vietnamese government allegations of ceasefire violations to the four-party Joint Military Commission "with an appeal to the parties" to cease hostilities.

"But we couldn't get agreement on this," he said. "Finally, we got agreement on nothing."

In Washington meanwhile, United States intelligence sources report that military equipment has continued to flow from North Vietnam since President Nixon warned Hanoi to stop infiltrating South Vietnam.

"It's still going on," one source said. He indicated Sunday there has been no measurable slowdown of such movements in the wake of Nixon's statement last Thursday that the North Vietnamese "should not lightly disregard" U.S. expressions of concern.

Intelligence analysist estimate that the North Vietnamese have sent between 400 and 450 armored vehicles, including tanks, into South Vietnam in the less than two months since the Vietnam ceasefire.

Intelligence specialists say some of the new tanks reported in South Vietnam since the ceasefire came down from southern China, where they were stockpiled until the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam was halted.

Sharp Returns, Decision Soon

Times News Services

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp flew back from Vietnam today and said he will make a decision "very quickly" on the future of Canadian ceasefire observer operations.

He told reporters minutes after landing at nearby Uplands airport he has not quite made up his mind on the issue and refused to indicate what recommendations he will make to the cabinet.

Earlier in Hanoi, Sharp told newsmen: "It's not just a simple question of whether we stay or don't stay. There are many possible variations."

The remark seemed to indicate that the minister will be working with his advisers over the possibility of another limited or conditional commitment to the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

Storm Rips Great Lake Regions

Times News Services

Floods forced thousands from their homes, gales ripped ships from their moorings and blizzards blocked roads and rescue efforts in Southern Ontario over the weekend.

In the United States, high winds and snowstorms also brought devastation to the Great Lakes and Eastern states, while torrential rains in eight southern states killed seven persons, caused mass evacuations and sent damage estimates past $75 million.

The Ontario storm began Friday afternoon with winds up to 50 miles an hour, accompanied by rain and freezing rain, followed by snow.

Gigantic waves on Lake St. Clair and Lakes Erie, Huron and Ontario flooded waterfront homes and washed away great chunks of shoreline.

In the Windsor area, the Essex Country Emergency Measures Organization estimated between 2,500 and 3,0000 persons were at least temporarily forced from their homes.

Throughout southern Ontario, snowdrifts or flood water blocked highways which were dotted with abandoned cars.

Almost two feet of snow fell in Owen Sound. Roaring winds knocked down trees and ripped 11 ships from their winter moorings in Goderich harbor on Lake Huron.

Before they were corralled two of the drifting vessels smashed into the still-moored grain carrier Patterson, causing extensive damage.

At Ipperwash Beach, 35 miles northwest of London, a variety store, a tourist lodge and two cottages slid into Lake Huron.

At least 2,000 acres of farmland and several homes were flooded in Tilbury East township, 17 miles west of Chatham, when water broke through a 50-foot section of dike.

The department of national defence was asked to send helicopters today to drop crushed car bodies and other material to plug the gap.

As the weather began to clear and the intensive cleanup began today, damage estimates from the floods and the snowstorm soared into the millions.

Power and natural gas services were cut off in flooded areas. But just outside Belle River one house was reported to have blown up in flames when the gas line ruptured.

Stalemate At Priory

Three nuns holding out in the kitchen of St. Mary's Priory will not be allowed to jeopardize the purposes of the Society of the Love of Jesus in its care for the sick and aged.

This was the essence of a statement today by Sister Leonette Hoesing, mother prioress of the Colwood institution operating an extended care hospital and St. Anthony's boarding home on Goldstream Avenue.

The three sisters of the old society, who have lived in the priory for 25-35 years, have refused to budge since Thursday. Each faction in the dispute has its own security guards.

The three — Sister Mary Agnes Eaton, Sister Mary Lucy Ford and Sister Mary Josephine Donovan — have been told by Sister Leonette to vacate the building, which is being closed.

They said they had been threatened by eviction, but up until noon there was no sign of a court order.

In her first statement on the dispute, Sister Leonette said: "The lawful authorized officers of the society have determined that three 'dissident' sisters will not be allowed to jeopardize the purposes of the society in the care of the aged and infirm.

"Since these sisters have refused all offers made to them, they are therefore the authors of their own painful situation."

A meeting of the society would be held soon, she said. It requires two weeks' notice.

Asked what the meeting would accomplish to alleviate the situation in which the three say they will hold out until ordered by law to leave, Sister Leonette said she hoped "some provision might be made so that each sister of the society could be provided for."

The dispute goes back several years and Leonette said for eight years efforts had been made to solve the "painful situation.

"We've tried to settle it to the welfare of each and re-

U.S. DOLLAR STRONGER

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Major money markets reopened today for the first time in 17 days and the U.S. dollar, helped by monetary reforms, displayed early strength. But bankers and dealers agreed with the warning by one French dealer that "this should not be interpreted as a new faith in the dollar."

They said one key to the quiet, stable trading was the apparent decision by speculators, who caused earlier runs on the dollar, to size up the new situation before making their move.

The money markets closed March 2 in the wake of the Feb. 1 devaluation of the dollar by 10 per cent and the subsequent speculative turmoil that dropped the dollar's value still further.

Since then, leading financial nations constructed a new — if temporary — monetary system which scrapped the old system of fixed exchange rates and relied instead on floating rates.

With the official reopening of money markets, central banks regained the right to intervene if the major currencies should float too far from each other. But there was no sign of intervention today.

In London, the dollar opened officially at $2.4655 to the pound — up a cent and a half on last Friday's unofficial rate, then dropped back by about one cent. In Tokyo, the dollar opened at 260 yen, then gained strength to 264.

Other capitals told a similar story. In Paris, the dollar opened at 4.5300 francs and strengthened to 4.5350. In Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Zurich and Brussels, it was well up on its Friday closing figure.

Plane Explodes Killing 59

SAIGON (Reuter) — Government officials flew to the town of Ban Me Thuot today to investigate the crash today of an Air Vietnam DC-4 with 59 passengers and crew aboard.

Police officials reached by telephone in Ban Me Thuot said the four-engine propeller aircraft exploded as it made an emergency landing after an engine caught fire.

Airport sources in Saigon said an investigation is under way to determine whether the plane was hit by ground fire.

Pipeline Test Speeded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court today granted a federal government request to speed its consideration of a lower-court ruling that blocked construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The supreme court agreed without comment that the schedule for filing papers in the case be accelerated. Left undecided for the time being was the second step of the government request which asked the court to hear and decide the case this term.

Normally, a petition for review brought to the supreme court at this point in the term would be heard next fall or winter if accepted by the court. The government asked that the case be heard in mid-May and decided before the term ends, probably in June.

The federal government, the state of Alaska and a consortium of oil companies are challenging the decision of the U.S. Circuit Court here which blocked construction of the pipeline because a wider right-of-way over public land would be required than is allowed by federal law.

The circuit court did not address the larger question of whether the environmental impact statement prepared by the interior department in issuing a permit to build the pipeline from Alaska's North Slope satisfied the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

The supreme court has been asked to decide this question as well as the right-of-way issue.

15 Die in Ont. Pile-Up

Blowing snow veils the carnage of Canada's worst traffic accident near Barrie Sunday evening. Rescue workers believe 15 persons were killed when a lumber truck, then a bus, plowed into a lineup of about 30 cars.

Times News Services

BARRIE, Ont. — A lumber truck, a bus and about 30 cars collided during a blinding snowstorm Sunday evening, killing at least 15 persons and crumpling the cars like pieces of tin which turned into flaming coffins.

Only nine bodies had been recovered from the wreckage by this morning as searchers continued to pull apart the mangled remains of Canada's worst traffic accident.

A doctor who walked through twisted metal at the scene said it might be days before an accurate death count was established among the debris.

Witnesses said visibility was almost zero as blowing snow and drifts swept across six-lane Route 400, about 50 miles north of Toronto.

David Fetter, a lumber worker from Ayr, Ont., said, "I came along a few minutes later. It was terrible, terrible. An awful mess. There must have been 25 to 30 cars, the truck and the bus.

"Bodies were in the road. The truck was on fire and a whole bunch of cars were beneath it. At least five or six cars were on fire."

"There were quite a few injured standing by the side of the road," he said. "They appeared to have broken arms, broken legs and cuts. People were stopping to give first aid."

Another witness said one car trapped under the rear wheels of the truck was flattened to a height of 10 inches.

Early today, police were still uncertain how the accident happened or how many more bodies they expect to find.

Police and eyewitnesses believe the tragedy started with a minor accident in the southbound lanes of Highway 400, about six miles south of Barrie.

LIKE AN ACCORDION

Cars started backing up from the accident and then a tractor-trailer loaded with lumber smacked into the cars, crushing them together like an accordion.

The truck jack-knifed and sent its load of two-by-fours on to the top of the cars — how many it was not made clear.

Police said the lumber and truck caught fire and soon gas tanks started to explode. People in the cars were trapped.

Shortly after, an Ontario Northland bus, en route to Toronto from Timmins, slammed into the wreckage. Bars had to be used to free the bus driver and many of the 22 passengers had to kick out bus windows to escape.

Survivors at the scene told of incredible terror and piercing screams.

One woman had to be hauled from a car by the hair. Seconds after she was clear, a gas tank exploded.

Police said the combination of an icy road and a sudden burst of blinding snow led to the pile-up. There was no indication of excess speed, they said.

Cpl. Ed Kelso of the provincial police narrowly missed joining the crash in his patrol car and described the scene:

SCREAMS

"Flames were shooting into the sky. I heard people screaming from the cars under the lumber: "Help . . . Get me out . . . I'm burning."

Hours after the accident, smoke from the burning wood could be smelled a mile down wind and the flames could be seen for two miles.

Paul Kneeshaw, a tow-truck driver from a nearby service station, said there were cars in the pile-up that didn't even look like cars any more.

Ranch Sales Curbed

In future no major ranch in B.C. will be sold to non-Canadians, and at the time of any such sale the various leases and permits will be subject to review, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

In such cases, large areas of land will revert back to the crown, if the review indicates that is necessary for wildlife and recreation needs, Williams said.

He was commenting on allegations last week by a regional wildlife biologist that absentee American owners of the Gang Ranch in the Cariboo are responsible for serious mis-management of Crown land.

OVER-GRAZED

The biologist, Harold Matchell, claimed that the Gang Ranch, the largest ranch in North America with more than one million acres under its control, had been overgrazing its land for at least 14 years.

As a result, he said, cattle graze up through the 8,000-foot level of the Coast Mountains and are destroying delicate alpine areas. In the process they compete for grazing with the rare California big horn sheep and threaten its survival.

Mitchell also accused cowboys on the Gang Ranch of slaughtering bears, including grizzlies, on the pretext of protecting cattle. (See other story on Page 18).

Williams told reporters today the fish and wildlife branch is aware that Gang Ranch has been up for sale, and a policy has already been established concerning that.

"We have made it abundantly clear to our staff, and they in turn have advised owners or potential buyers that we would not accept the idea of the ranch being sold to non-nationals, to non-resident people from outside Canada," Williams said.

REVIEW

He said it has also been made clear that the various leases and permits held by the present owners would be subject to review at the time of any sale, "and that the Crown would require the reversion of significant portions of the ranch that we would want for the exclusive preservation of wildlife and recreation."

The policy would apply to the sale of all other major ranches in B.C., he added.

Asked if the provincial government had an intention of taking over direct control of Gang Ranch, the minister replied: "None whatsoever."

The ranch headquarters are located about 60 miles southwest of Williams Lake in the Interior. It's territory includes 47,600 acres of deeded land, 16,732 acres of leased land and 821,000 acres of Crown Land under grazing permits.

Saigon Threat To Use Force

Times News Services

SAIGON — The South Vietnamese military command threatened today to launch military operations in the next few days to relieve two of its bases north of Saigon if the International Commission of Control and Supervision does not investigate alleged ceasefire violations.

The command claims Communist troops have laid siege to the bases 25 and 63 miles north of the South Vietnamese capital.

Members of the ICCS, where unanimous agreement is required, could not agree to a Canadian proposal to ask all parties in the Vietnam conflict to end the fighting.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said his ICCS delegation wanted to send 31 South Vietnamese government allegations of ceasefire violations to the four-party Joint Military Commission "with an appeal to the parties" to cease hostilities.

"But we couldn't get agreement on this," he said. "Finally, we got agreement on nothing."

In Washington meanwhile, United States intelligence sources report that military equipment has continued to flow from North Vietnam since President Nixon warned Hanoi to stop infiltrating South Vietnam.

"It's still going on," one source said. He indicated Sunday there has been no measurable slowdown of such movements in the wake of Nixon's statement last Thursday that the North Vietnamese "should not lightly disregard" U.S. expressions of concern.

Intelligence analysist estimate that the North Vietnamese have sent between 400 and 450 armored vehicles, including tanks, into South Vietnam in the less than two months since the Vietnam ceasefire.

Intelligence specialists say some of the new tanks reported in South Vietnam since the ceasefire came down from southern China, where they were stockpiled until the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam was halted.

Sharp Returns, Decision Soon

Times News Services

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp flew back from Vietnam today and said he will make a decision "very quickly" on the future of Canadian ceasefire observer operations.

He told reporters minutes after landing at nearby Uplands airport he has not quite made up his mind on the issue and refused to indicate what recommendations he will make to the cabinet.

Earlier in Hanoi, Sharp told newsmen: "It's not just a simple question of whether we stay or don't stay. There are many possible variations."

The remark seemed to indicate that the minister will be working with his advisers over the possibility of another limited or conditional commitment to the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

NEWS BRIEFS

Houses Engulfed

REYKJAVIK (AP) — Iceland's rumbling Helgafell Volcano spewed up more lava Sunday and engulfed eight houses on Heymaey Island.

Further Blackout

EDMONTON (CP) — Trouble hit the power system here again today, blacking out parts of the city for about 16 minutes, while workers struggled to recover from an explosion and fire during the weekend that left parts of the city without power for up to 14 hours.

Rail Conciliation

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal Labor Minister John Munro said today that a conciliation board probably would be established to deal with the contract dispute between Canada's two major railways and their associated non-operating employees.

Storm Rips Great Lake Regions

Times News Services

Floods forced thousands from their homes, gales ripped ships from their moorings and blizzards blocked roads and rescue efforts in Southern Ontario over the weekend.

In the United States, high winds and snowstorms also brought devastation to the Great Lakes and Eastern states, while torrential rains in eight southern states killed seven persons, caused mass evacuations and sent damage estimates past $75 million.

The Ontario storm began Friday afternoon with winds up to 50 miles an hour, accompanied by rain and freezing rain, followed by snow.

Gigantic waves on Lake St. Clair and Lakes Erie, Huron and Ontario flooded waterfront homes and washed away great chunks of shoreline.

In the Windsor area, the Essex Country Emergency Measures Organization estimated between 2,500 and 3,0000 persons were at least temporarily forced from their homes.

Throughout southern Ontario, snowdrifts or flood water blocked highways which were dotted with abandoned cars.

Almost two feet of snow fell in Owen Sound. Roaring winds knocked down trees and ripped 11 ships from their winter moorings in Goderich harbor on Lake Huron.

Before they were corralled two of the drifting vessels smashed into the still-moored grain carrier Patterson, causing extensive damage.

At Ipperwash Beach, 35 miles northwest of London, a variety store, a tourist lodge and two cottages slid into Lake Huron.

At least 2,000 acres of farmland and several homes were flooded in Tilbury East township, 17 miles west of Chatham, when water broke through a 50-foot section of dike.

The department of national defence was asked to send helicopters today to drop crushed car bodies and other material to plug the gap.

As the weather began to clear and the intensive cleanup began today, damage estimates from the floods and the snowstorm soared into the millions.

Power and natural gas services were cut off in flooded areas. But just outside Belle River one house was reported to have blown up in flames when the gas line ruptured.

Stalemate At Priory

Three nuns holding out in the kitchen of St. Mary's Priory will not be allowed to jeopardize the purposes of the Society of the Love of Jesus in its care for the sick and aged.

This was the essence of a statement today by Sister Leonette Hoesing, mother prioress of the Colwood institution operating an extended care hospital and St. Anthony's boarding home on Goldstream Avenue.

The three sisters of the old society, who have lived in the priory for 25-35 years, have refused to budge since Thursday. Each faction in the dispute has its own security guards.

The three — Sister Mary Agnes Eaton, Sister Mary Lucy Ford and Sister Mary Josephine Donovan — have been told by Sister Leonette to vacate the building, which is being closed.

They said they had been threatened by eviction, but up until noon there was no sign of a court order.

In her first statement on the dispute, Sister Leonette said: "The lawful authorized officers of the society have determined that three 'dissident' sisters will not be allowed to jeopardize the purposes of the society in the care of the aged and infirm.

"Since these sisters have refused all offers made to them, they are therefore the authors of their own painful situation."

A meeting of the society would be held soon, she said. It requires two weeks' notice.

Asked what the meeting would accomplish to alleviate the situation in which the three say they will hold out until ordered by law to leave, Sister Leonette said she hoped "some provision might be made so that each sister of the society could be provided for."

The dispute goes back several years and Leonette said for eight years efforts had been made to solve the "painful situation.

U.S. DOLLAR STRONGER

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Major money markets reopened today for the first time in 17 days and the U.S. dollar, helped by monetary reforms, displayed early strength. But bankers and dealers agreed with the warning by one French dealer that "this should not be interpreted as a new faith in the dollar."

They said one key to the quiet, stable trading was the apparent decision by speculators, who caused earlier runs on the dollar, to size up the new situation before making their move.

The money markets closed March 2 in the wake of the Feb. 1 devaluation of the dollar by 10 per cent and the subsequent speculative turmoil that dropped the dollar's value still further.

Since then, leading financial nations constructed a new — if temporary — monetary system which scrapped the old system of fixed exchange rates and relied instead on floating rates.

With the official reopening of money markets, central banks regained the right to intervene if the major currencies should float too far from each other. But there was no sign of intervention today.

In London, the dollar opened officially at $2.4655 to the pound — up a cent and a half on last Friday's unofficial rate, then dropped back by about one cent. In Tokyo, the dollar opened at 260 yen, then gained strength to 264.

Other capitals told a similar story. In Paris, the dollar opened at 4.5300 francs and strengthened to 4.5350. In Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Zurich and Brussels, it was well up on its Friday closing figure.

Plane Explodes Killing 59

SAIGON (Reuter) — Government officials flew to the town of Ban Me Thuot today to investigate the crash today of an Air Vietnam DC-4 with 59 passengers and crew aboard.

Police officials reached by telephone in Ban Me Thuot said the four-engine propeller aircraft exploded as it made an emergency landing after an engine caught fire.

Airport sources in Saigon said an investigation is under way to determine whether the plane was hit by ground fire.

Pipeline Test Speeded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court today granted a federal government request to speed its consideration of a lower court ruling that blocked construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The supreme court agreed without comment that the schedule for filing papers in the case be accelerated. Left undecided for the time being was the second step of the government request which asked the court to hear and decide the case this term.

Normally, a petition for review brought to the supreme court at this point in the term would be heard next fall or winter if accepted by the court. The government asked that the case be heard in mid-May and decided before the term ends, probably in June.

The federal government, the state of Alaska and a consortium of oil companies are challenging the decision of the U.S. Circuit Court here which blocked construction of the pipeline because a wider right-of-way over public land would be required than is allowed by federal law.

The circuit court did not address the larger question of whether the environmental impact statement prepared by the interior department in issuing a permit to build the pipeline from Alaska's North Slope satisfied the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

The supreme court has been asked to decide this question as well as the right-of-way issue.
